Christmas Eve Church Services Are Announced

The Christian world will celebrate the birthday of Jesus Christ in diversified ways, yet the simple fact that to them was born the Savior is a common bond.

The story of how Christ was and read to small children and they soon learn that with God nothing is impossible.

Area churches have listed

all are open to the public.

service of carols and candlelight will begin at 9 in the sanctuary.

of carol singing and candle lighting by the entire

A White Noel Unlikely In Local Area

Weather, thus far in December has contributed little to present a winter scene. And the prospects of a white Christmas are very slight.

Inconsistent and above normal temperature recorded ranged from a high of 67 on the first day of the month to a low of 18 degrees on Dec.
14. High temperature on Monday of 35 degrees was the overnight low Tuesday.

Precipitation has been recorded on 11 days of the month. Snow flurries were ill-timed, occurring on Dec. 4, 5, and 6. Rain, not all measurable, has fallen on nine days, totaling 2.73 inches, nearly one inch above normal precipitation for December.

There have been two sunny days, eight partly sunny, the remainder cloud-covered.

The current weather outlook for Christmas Eve in the area is variable cloudiness and cold.
Precipitation is probable on Christmas day in the form of rain or snow.

Anxious children are assured however that Santa Claus will make his annual trip Christmas Eve, regardless of weather conditions.

According to word received here, he is expected in Pickaway County shortly after midnight Thursday.

It faces also a struggle over

U.S. Sees Release Of POW List As Propaganda Move By Viet Reds

TRIAL RUN? — The Herald photographer was taking a picture of the Pickaway County Courthouse at dusk one day this week when what to his wondering eyes should appear . . . Hanoi Said Slowing Supply Flow

WASHINGTON (AP) — There are indications of a slowdown in the movement of supplies through North Vietnam since President Nixon warned Hanoi that any threatening buildup could bring new U.S. air attacks, Pentagon sources report.
No longer certain of freedom from major U.S. bombing, the North Vietnamese are moving fewer truck convoys by daylight than they did before Nixon's Dec. 10 statement, the sources said.

This would mean that the majority of the enemy supply movements through the North Vietnamese panhandle toward Laos, South Vietnam and Cambodia are being made only at night, instead of around the clock.

Sources said the North Vietnamese also apparently have started to disperse stockpiles they had prepared quite openly while getting ready for a big dry-season push.

This tends to make the enemy's supply structure less efficient, sources said.

Post Office To Close At Noon Thursday

Circleville Postmaster Charles Walters advised today that the post office will close noon Thursday.

Deliveries will be made according to regular week-day schedule but there will be no window service after that hour.
All parcels should be mailed and stamps purchased prior to 12 noon.

The post office will remain closed until Dec. 28, when regular hours and service will resume.

Lame Ducks Get Jobs From Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) —
Thomas Kleppe of North Dakota may be No. 3 on the list of lame duck Republican congressmen to be handed a job by President Nixon after failing in bids for the Senate.

Kleppe, a loser to Democratic Sen. Quentin Burdick, confirmed Tuesday he has been offered the top post in the Small Business Administration.
He added, however, that he had "four almost academic questions" to ask the White House over its views on the SBA, but "I'm sure the answers will be affirmative." He declined to outline his questions.

If Kleppe does move into the SBA, that would leave three more men who, like him, vacated safe House seats to carry the administration's banner into Senate races and wound up in an elite unemployment line.

They are Reps. Laurence J.
Burton of Utah, John Wold of Wyoming and William C. Cramer of Florida.

Nixon earlier this month named Rep. George Bush of Texas as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and made Rep. Clark MacGregor, the man who faced Hubert Humphrey, chief White House lobbyist southern Laos have cut the volume of enemy supplies entering South Vietnam and Cambodia about 80 per cent.

As a result, officials claim, enemy ground activity continues at a low level in South Vietnam and U.S. battle casualties are also low.

Striking at key roads and truck parks, among other targets, American bombers are dropping somewhat less than 1,500 tons of ordnance a day on the Ho Chi Minh trail.

According to current intelligence estimates, the U.S. air effort has made the enemy allocate a significant part of the 40,000 logistics troops he has in southern Laos to building bypasses around bombed out

bridges and transshipment points.

The enemy began his resupply effort somewhat early this year, in October, and U.S. warplanes have been hammering at the road set through Laos.

The big months of the dry-season resupply push are just ahead, January and February.
That is when U.S. military authorities expect the enemy to try to fill his supply pipeline and literally flood the routes leading

Poles Name New Premier

WARSAW (AP) — Jozef Cyrankiewicz stepped down today as Poland's premier, it was announced a meeting of the Sejm, the parliament.
He was moved to the ceremonial office of president, succeeding Marian Spychalski.

Cyrankiewicz was succeeded by Piotr Jaroszewicz, who has held a deputy premier's post for the last 18 years.

The changes were announced by Poland's new Communist party leader, Edward Gierek.

Spychalski resigned from the Communist party leadership on Sunday along with Wladyslaw Gomulka who ran the country for 14 years.

Jaroszewicz, 61, is a veteran of Polish politics and a leading economist.

Cyrankiewicz told the Sejm:
"I believe on the ground of my long experience that I should not retain my position in view of the recent events which I could not prevent."

Officials Believe Not All Included

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnam's release of a purported official prisoner of war list Tuesday was criticized by Secretary of State William P. Rogers today as "a contemptible maneuver . . . for propaganda purposes."

He said the North Vietnamese invited two senators to send representatives to Paris to gain information on the prisoners of war, but added they failed to provide any fresh information on the fate of the captured Americans.

Representatives of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., received in Paris a listing of 339 names of Americans now held.
All had been listed unofficially earlier. Also named were 20 men listed as dead and nine others who had already been released.

Rogers said the North Vietnamese acknowledge capturing and holding 399 men, but the United States already knew that. The United States has information that 39 other men were captured whose exact fate is uncertain and the North Vietnamese provided no help on those.

"The fact is that they're maneuvering with these prisoners-of-war in a way that's inhuman.
They're diverting attention from their barbarism by this method."

"I think it was a contemptible maneuver and should be recognized as such."

The fact is, he asserted, that there will continue to be uncertainty as to the completeness of POW lists "until North Vietnam complies with the rules of international war and allows inspection of prisoner-of-war camps."

At another point he declared:
"So we conclude they're using the POW issue in a very inhuman way to advance their political objectives."

In releasing the lists in Paris
Tuesday, the North Vietnamese characterized them for the first time as official, although the same names had been given unofficially earlier.

It marked the first time official representatives of the U.S. government received such a POW list directly. Thus it made the list the closest thing yet to an official Hanoi accounting of POWs.

But the administration wasn't giving much importance to the North Vietnamese move.

Biggest point of contention was whether the list was complete and final.

U.S. pacifists, through whom Hanoi sent earlier lists, said it was.

But U.S. officials said a quick check showed there was no reason to believe the list was complete and added earlier reports indicate Americans not on the list are held captive by Hanoi.

One new element in the list, however, was inclusion of the dates of death and/or capture.

Pacifist leaders of the Committee of Liaison with Families of Servicemen Detained in North Vietnam declared the list has all the names of prisoners the Hanoi government holds.

In Paris, committee spokesman Rennie Davis said, "There are no new names and the North Vietnamese are holding no more prisoners."

The North Vietnamese told him they don't know where missing U.S. servicemen might be, Davis said, adding that they may have been lost when their planes were shot down.

Kennedy told a Washington release of the list that he didn't know if it was accurate and complete, but added the letter handed his representative, Washington lawyer John E. Nolan Jr., contained a line that said this was the official list of the North Vietnamese.

Nolan returned to the United States Tuesday night, but refused to talk with newsmen.

Nolan took the list to David K.E. Bruce, U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, Kennedy said. The senator passed it on to the White House and Rogers.

David Dellinger, co-chairman of the pacifist committee, said the North Vietnamese picked Kennedy and Fulbright to get the list because they were "men of good will."

9 Ohioans On Hanoi POW Roster

NEW YORK (AP) — The Defense Ministry of North Vietnam has released an official document naming 339 Americans currently being held as prisoners of war, including nine Ohioans.

The document, released Tuesday to the Committee of Liaison with Families of Servicemen Detained in North Vietnam, is said to be identical to the one delivered to Democratic U.S. Sens. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas.

Corra Weiss, pacifist co-chairman of the committee, said Tuesday evening the names were the same ones made public by representatives of North Vietnam this summer.

"The heavy news is that it's final," she said.

The Defense Department, however, claimed the release of the list was a propaganda play, and said a cursory check revealed the list was far from complete.

The Ohioans listed as captives are: William Joseph Baugh, Piqua; Burton Wayne
Campbell, Amherst; John Peter
Flynn, no city address; Edward John Mechenbier, Dayton;
Thomas Nelson Moe, Columbus;
Cowan Glenn Nix, Warrensville Heights; Bradley E. Smith, Lake Milton; Robert E. Wide-man, Rocky River; and Alan Pierce Lurie of University Heights.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaving a legislative shambles behind it, Congress has gone home for Christmas.

But the work isn't done, and the run-on 91st Congress is by no means over.

The Senate returns to session
Dec. 28, still facing a deadlock and a filibuster over appropriations to continue federal subsidies for the supersonic transport —SST—airplane.

It faces also a struggle over the triple-header bill to boost Social Security benefits, institute President Nixon's plan of welfare reform, and impose new trade restrictions.

The House voted to recess until Dec. 29—after the two senior members of the Ways and Means Committee declared that Social Security and welfare reform measures cannot be enacted this session no matter what the Senate does. Despite that prediction from Rep. Wilbur

Mills, D-Ark., and Rep. John Byrnes, R-Wis., Sen. John J.
Williams, R-Del., said he would move soon after the Senate reconvenes to strip all but the Social Security provisions from the bill, and try to get that passed. The House already has passed differing and separate versions from those embodied in the catch-all Senate measure.

President Nixon, however, doesn't want it done that way.
He wants action on the whole package, and administration supporters could force a new deadline on the matter next week.

Byrnes and Mills said it won't be possible for House-Senate negotiators to work out the necessary compromises, "under the time pressures which we now face."

Congress did struggle out of one deadlock tying up foreign aid and defense bills. Both chambers agreed on compromise legislation authorizing aid to Cambodia, but barring the use of U.S. combat forces or military advisers there. It also declares that the assistance does not represent a commitment to the defense of Cambodia.

The Senate 41 to 29, and then the House approved Tuesday night a bill authorizing $255 million in military and economic aid for Cambodia, with the stip-

3 Civic Clubs Help Santa

Through the efforts of Circleville's Kiwanis Club, Junior Women's Club and Jaycees—a poor farm family in the northwestern part of Pickaway County will have a Merry Christmas Friday.

The Kiwanis Charity Newsies received a letter last week from a mother of 13 children who related the family was too poor to have any Christmas celebration this year for the eight youngsters still at home.

Robert Wilson received the letter and referred it to Bob Ogden and Maynard Burns, co-chairman of the Kiwanis Boys and Girls Committee.

Burns talked to the family personally. The father is a farm worker, but had not been able to find steady employment recently partly because of a lack of transportation and partly because of health.

The home was warm, heated with wood-burning stoves. The father had cut the wood for fuel. He also was in the process of repairing the car himself, according to Ogden.

The Rev. David Allardice checked with the welfare department, and the family had apparently never been on the welfare rolls.

The mother and father had 13 children, eight still at home. The Junior Women's Club became involved in helping the family because Mrs. Ogden is a member of that organization. And through Mrs. Robert Liggett, a Junior Women's Club member, the Circleville Jaycees became involved. Her husband is a member of that civic group.

The three organizations provided a Christmas tree and decorations, toys for the children, clothing and food to help make the holiday a happy one for this family.

"It made us feel real happy to be able to help because here was a family that needed help but was just looking for a handout," Ogden said.

Syrians Reject Any Settlement In Middle East

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Syrian government continues to reject any peaceful settlement in the Middle East, Syrian Foreign Minister Badel Hali Kaddam told the Beirut News-paper L'Orient today.

Khaddam said he was convinced Egypt had accepted the American cease-fire peace initiative in the belief it would fail. Thus Syria's participation in a proposed federation with Egypt, Libya and Sudan would not conflict with Syria's rejection of a peaceful settlement, he added.

Khaddam said Syria shuns all efforts to achieve a peaceful Arab-Israeli settlement because it would mean liquidation of the Palestine cause, recognition of Israel by all countries, lifting of all bars on emigration of more than 7 million Jews living outside Israel and "a gigantic Zionist-Israeli economic domination" of the Arab world.

Debray Freed By Bolivians

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The Bolivian government today released French revolutionist Regis Debray and five other guerrillas who fought with Che Guevara in his abortive attempt to foment a peasants' uprising in 1967.

Interior Minister Jorge Galdardo said the 30-year-old French Criter, Argentine painter Roberto Bustos and four Bolivians were taken to Chile by a Bolivian military plane.

They had been in a military prison in Camiri, in southeastern Bolivia. Debray and Bustos were serving 30-year terms. The four Bolivians had never been tried.

All were captured in 1967 by the army forces that killed Guevara.

Lame Ducks Get Jobs From Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thomas Kleppe of North Dakota may be No. 3 on the list of lame duck Republican congressmen to be handed a job by President Nixon after failing in bids for the Senate.

Kleppe, a loser to Democratic Sen. Quentin Burdick, confirmed Tuesday he has been offered the top post in the Small Business Administration.

He added, however, that he had "four almost academic questions" to ask the White House over its views on the SBA, but "I'm sure the answers will be affirmative." He declined to outline his questions.

If Kleppe does move into the SBA, that would leave three more men who, like him, vacated safe House seats to carry the administration's banner into Senate races and wound up in an elite unemployment line.

They are Reps. Laurence J. Burton of Utah, John Wold of Wyoming and William C. Cramer of Florida.

Nixon earlier this month named Rep. George Bush of Texas as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and made Rep. Clark MacGregor, the man who faced Hubert Humphrey, chief White House lobbyist southern Laos have cut the volume of enemy supplies entering South Vietnam and Cambodia about 80 per cent.

As a result, officials claim, enemy ground activity continues at a low level in South Vietnam and U.S. battle casualties are also low.

Striking at key roads and truck parks, among other targets, American bombers are dropping somewhat less than 1,500 tons of ordinance a day on the Ho Chi Minh trail.

According to current intelligence estimates, the U.S. air effort has made the enemy allocate a significant part of the 40,000 logistics troops he has in southern Laos to building by-passes around bombed out bridges and transshipment points.

The enemy began his resupply effort somewhat early this year, in October, and U.S. warplanes have been hammering at the road set through Laos.

The big months of the dry-season resupply push are just ahead, January and February. That is when U.S. military authorities expect the enemy to try to fill his supply pipeline and literally flood the routes leading southward from North Vietnam.

Youth Benefit From CHS's Toy Collection Program

Happy sounds of girls and boys working over holiday gifts will be repeated Christmas morning when smaller youngsters awake to find presents awaiting them, compliments of Circleville High School.

The happy sounds were those of teens as they gave their study halls to wrap gifts to be given to various families throughout Pickaway County. A Toys for Tots operation, sponsored by the student government group at CHS and enthusiastically supported by all high school students, resulted this year in over 700 books and toys for underprivileged children.

The teens have been busy collecting and wrapping the presents. An annual project in its third year for the council, it received even greater support than last year when some 600 items were brought in. This year the program was supervised by Mary Beth Rhoads, projects chairman for Student Council.

Mary Beth selected one week — Dec. 14 to Dec. 18 — as a collection week for toys. Boxes were donated by Owens-Illinois and placed in every home and a contest held among the classes to see which would collect the greatest number of gifts. A junior home-Mary Alice Greenwood won the honor and the "Christmas Spirit Stick" for 85 toys and present donations.

In the first two years, the Toys for Tots program was strictly school program and gifts were distributed along with Christmas baskets sent out by clubs and churches. This year when the Project Rudolph gift collection, the student council volunteered to join them.

Today some 25 high school students will be delivering the remaining gifts to numerous families throughout the county. Included will be books, games, dolls, stuffed animals, doll houses, tricycles, wagon, an organ and countless other items.

In this way Student Council primarily a student action group, has given CHS'er's a chance to work for and with the community with its Toys for Tots program.

ulations the Senate had insisted upon.

All told, that bill authorized a total of $535 million in supplemental foreign aid spending.

The formula under which it was cleared could pave the way for action next week on a $66 billion defense appropriations bill, stalled in a similar foreign policy hassle.

Once the authorizing bill was sent to the White House, Senate-House negotiators settled on a $1.8 billion supplemental appropriations bill which will provide the money. More than $1 billion of it is for foreign aid. That bill includes $500 million for military sales credits to help bolster Israel's armed forces.

But with that snarl settled, the Senate rejected a compromise version of yet another aid bill, this one the basic, $2.53 billion appropriation measure. That one foundered on Senate resistance to a $200 million item for foreign military credits, which has not been cleared by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It will take a new compromise to settle that one.

Senate - House conferees, meanwhile, agreed to a compromise food stamp program which unless enacted by the first of the year will run out of funds, probably in January.

Sen. George McGovern D-S.D., promised a floor fight when the measure is returned to the Senate floor. He objects mainly to a work requirement provision he said would leave some children hungry. The compromise also requires House passage.

Another battle loomed over action on a $1.5 billion bill to provide funds designed to smooth the course of school desegregation. Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., blocked quick consideration and served notice Southern foes of the bill are armed with at least six amendments, which could block its course.

In other major steps on the eve of the holiday getaway —

The House passed a bill providing $125 million in loan guarantees for financially ailing railroads, with most or all of the aid destined for the Penn Central. That was set to the Senate.

The Senate approved and sent to President Nixon a bill designed to protect investors against bankruptcies in the brokerage business. It would set up a security investor protection corporation, through which investors would be reimbursed for bankruptcy losses.

The Senate made two futile attempts to break the supermajority transport deadlock. The Senate voted no funds for the SST, the House $290 million, and a compromise version seeks $210 million. Foes of the airplane have been filibustering against that, and the Senate failed for a second time to limit debate on the issue. Tuesday's vote was 44 to 42, but it takes two-thirds to end a filibuster.

The dispute is stalling a $7-billion Department of Transportation appropriations bill. Senate leaders came up with a proposal that Congress approve the rest of the bill, and vote by resolution to continue SST spending at a rate equal to $290 million a year, until March 30 SST advocates balked, however.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson D-Wash., said the House wouldn't go along with the scheme. Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., suggested Senate leaders could instead propose a vote on the embattled appropriations bill at some specific time next week.

U.S. Ambassador David K.E. Bruce told the meeting "on the eve of the Christmas holidays two subjects come naturally to the forefront—the question of putting an end to the fighting in Southeast Asia and the question of prisoners of war."

Bruce repeated the Washington-Saigon desire to enter into "immediate negotiations for an internationally supervised cease-fire in place throughout Indochina."

Bruce recalled South Vietnam's decision to free some North Vietnamese prisoners on the occasion of Tet, the lunar new year, in late January.

Christmas 'Star' To Appear Again After 800 Years

BOSTON (AP) — Early Christmas morning three "wandering stars" will appear together to reproduce a rare celestial event that may have led the Wise Men to the Bethlehem manger where Christ was born.

The "stars," actually the planets Venus, Jupiter and Mars, will mass that morning near the crescent moon in a phenomenon very like one that occurred in 7 B.C., the year the Christ child is believed to have been born.

In that year, the planets Jupiter, Saturn and Mars came together in the heavens, an event that happens once every 800 years, said Walter N. Webb, assistant director of the Charles Hayden Planetarium of the Boston Museum of Science.

The massing of three planets will not be a visually spectacular event this year, said Webb, nor would it have been in the year Jesus was born. But to an astrologer—and the Three Wise Men are thought to have been expert in the occult science of interpreting heavenly signs—the planets' coming together may have seemed fraught with meaning.

Some historians believe the Wise Men came from the area of Mesopotamia. If so, said Webb, the apparent westward movement of the three planets, caused by the rotation of the earth, could have suggested to them that the new-born king they sought was to be found in the west in the direction of Judea.

"In those days everything in the sky was described as a star," Webb said. "The planets were wandering stars, and an event like the massing of three planets would have been called a star."

The massing of the three planets on that morning, he suggested, may have been what the ancients called the Star of Bethlehem.

He said the planets do not come close enough to appear as a single star; even to the naked eye, they remain three distinct points of light in a triangle.

Since the three massed stars are close to each other for only one or two nights, Webb said, the Wise Men must have set off on their long journey many days before the planets appeared together.

The suggestion that three massed stars may have been the Star of Bethlehem is not new, Webb noted. It was first proposed by the German astronomer and mathematician Johannes Kepler in 1604.

Greenfield Is City According To Census Count

Greenfield, one of Ohio's cities threatened with losing city status according to the 1970 census count, was reassured Monday that city status will be retained.

A city-financed census, conducted over a period of a week, showed Greenfield's population to be 5,153. The unofficial figure released by the U. S. Census count was 4,725.

A city is identified as a municipal corporation with a population of 5,000 or more.

The census, just completed in the Highland County city, was conducted under the direction of the city auditor. The new figures will be notarized and sent to the secretary of state.

Congress ... Christmas 'Star' To Appear Again After 800 Years

ulations the Senate had insisted upon.

All told, that bill authorized a total of $535 million in supplemental foreign aid spending.

The formula under which it was cleared could pave the way for action next week on a $66 billion defense appropriations bill, stalled in a similar foreign policy hassle.

Once the authorizing bill was sent to the White House, Senate House negotiators settled on a $1.8 billion supplemental appropriations bill which will provide the money. More than $1 billion of it is for foreign aid. That bill includes $500 million for military sales credits to help bolster Israel's armed forces.

But with that snarl settled, the Senate rejected a compromise version of yet another aid bill, this one the basic, $2.53 billion appropriation measure. That one foundered on Senate resistance to a $200 million item for foreign military credits, which has not been cleared by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. It will take a new compromise to settle that one.

Senate House conferees, meanwhile, agreed to a compromise food stamp program which unless enacted by the first of the year will run out of funds, probably in January.

Sen. George McGovern D-S.D., promised a floor fight when the measure is returned to the Senate floor. He objects mainly to a work requirement provision he said would leave some children hungry. The compromise also requires House passage.

Another battle loomed over action on a $1.5 billion bill to provide funds designed to smooth the course of school desegregation. Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., blocked quick consideration and served notice Southern foes of the bill are armed with at least six amendments, which could block its course.

In other major steps on the eve of the holiday get-away — The House passed a bill providing $125 million in loan guarantees for financially ailing railroads, with most or all of the aid destined for the Penn Central. That was set to the Senate.

The Senate approved and sent to President Nixon a bill designed to protect investors against bankruptcies in the brokerage business. It would set up a security investor protection corporation, through which investors would be reimbursed for bankruptcy losses.

The Senate made two futile attempts to break the supermajority transport deadlock. The Senate voted no funds for the SST, the House $290 million, and a compromise version seeks $210 million. Foes of the airplane have been filibustering against that, and the Senate failed for a second time to limit debate on the issue. Tuesday's vote was 44 to 42, but it takes two-thirds to end a filibuster.

The dispute is stalling a $7-billion Department of Transportation appropriations bill Senate leaders came up with a proposal that Congress approve the rest of the bill, and vote by resolution to continue SST spending at a rate equal to $290 million a year, until March 30 SST advocates balked, however.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson D-Wash., said the House wouldn't go along with the scheme. Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., suggested Senate leaders could instead propose a vote on the embattled appropriations bill at some specific time next week.

U.S. Ambassador David K.E. Bruce told the meeting "on the eve of the Christmas holidays two subjects come naturally to the fore — the question of putting an end to the fighting in Southeast Asia and the question of prisoners of war."

Bruce repeated the Washington-Saigon desire to enter into "immediate negotiations for an internationally supervised ceasefire in place throughout Indochina."

Bruce recalled South Vietnamese decision to free some North Vietnamese prisoners on the occasion of Tet, the lunar new year, in late January.

Young Votes Against Foreign Aid Money
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, voted with the minority Tuesday as the Senate passed 41-20 a $535 million foreign aid authorization bill that included $255 million in Cambodian aid but barred the use of U.S. ground forces in that country.

Ohio's other senator, Republican William B. Saxbe, was not present to cast his vote.

BOSTON (AP) — Early Christmas morning three "wandering stars" will appear together to reproduce a rare celestial event that may have led the Wise Men to the Bethlehem manger where Christ was born.

The "stars," actually the planets Venus Jupiter and Mars, will mass that morning near the crescent moon in a phenomenon very like one that occurred in 7 B.C., the year the Christ child is believed to have been born.

In that year, the planets Jupiter, Saturn and Mars came together in the heavens, an event that happens once every 800 years, said Walter N. Webb, assistant director of the Charles Hayden Planetarium of the Boston Museum of Science.

The massing of three planets will not be a visually spectacular event this year, said Webb, nor would it have been in the year Jesus was born. But to an astrologer—and the Three Wise Men are thought to have been expert in the occult science of interpreting heavenly signs—the planets' coming together may have seemed fraught with meaning.

Some historians believe the Wise Men came from the area of Mesopotamia. If so, said Webb, the apparent westward movement of the three planets, caused by the rotation of the earth, could have suggested to them that the new-born king they sought was to be found in the west in the direction of Judea.

"In those days everything in the sky was described as a star," Webb said. "The planets were wandering stars, meteors were shooting stars, and an event like the massing of three planets would have been called a star."

The massing of the three planets on that morning, he suggested, may have been what the ancients called the Star of Bethlehem.

He said the planets do not come close enough to appear as a single star; even to the naked eye, they remain three distinct points of light in a triangle.

Since the three massed stars are close to each other for only one or two nights, Webb said, the Wise Men must have set off on their long journey many days before the planets appeared together.

The suggestion that three massed stars may have been the Star of Bethlehem is not new, Webb noted. It was first proposed by the German astronomer and mathematician Johannes Kepler in 1604.

Humphrey said he plans to concentrate his legislative efforts in these four areas: —Rural development. He is planning an incentive proposal to deal with the problem of overpopulation in certain areas and lack of population in others.

—Health services. —Revenue sharing. He and Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., have already announced plans for legislation that goes beyond what is being pushed by the Nixon administration.

Both health care and revenue sharing are expected to be major administration proposals in the new Congress. But Humphrey said he expects the administration bills "will only be first steps. They will be very limited steps."

Humphrey's return to the Senate, where he served for 16 years, presents something of a problem for the Democratic leadership, since he returns with lower seniority than many senators who also seek the more prestigious and powerful committees.

Greenfield Is City According To Census Count

Greenfield, one of Ohio's cities threatened with losing city status according to the 1970 census count, was reassured Monday that city status will be retained.

A city-financed census, conducted over a period of a week, showed Greenfield's population to be 5,153. The unofficial figure released by the U. S. Census count was 4,725.

A city is identified as a municipal corporation with a population of 5,000 or more.

Men Depend On Living Experiences To Reveal God

The Circleville Herald, Wed. Dec. 23, 1970 3
Circleville, Ohio

1 EDITOR'S NOTE — Who is God? What is He about? From the beginning, men wondered. And they found clues in living experiences, not systematic analysis. Scripture tells of happenings, of relationships with people and the powerful working of compassion and justice in history, displaying the divine will. This article, third installment of a four-part Christmas series on the case for God, deals with that testimony.

A wild deer spots a human figure and flees in terror. Later, trapped beneath a fallen tree, the deer is freed by a forest ranger and trots off in amazement.

Red Sub Base Threat Returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler says the Nixon administration doesn't know yet if Russia is building a submarine base in Cuba.

The statement Monday came on the heels of a Time magazine report that U.S. reconnaissance photos show the Soviet base is near completion at Cienfuegos, Cuba.

Also on Monday, Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., told the House he has fresh information Russia has built or is about to complete, a sub base in Cuba.

Ziegler said there is Soviet activity in the Caribbean area relating to submarines and submarine support activities. He said the United States is watching it very carefully.

President Nixon said Dec. 10 he saw no threat to American security in Russian activities in the western Atlantic. Ziegler said administration thinking is that Soviet intentions are covered by an understanding that Russia will build no bases in the vicinity.

Rogers did not disclose the source of his information but told the House he was fearful the Russians had hoodwinked the administration.

"This new information comes just shortly after the administration has denied that such a base was being built and that the activity in Cuba was in line with our agreements of 1962 and later verbal agreements that the administration has made within the past six months," he said.

Rogers called on President Nixon and the appropriate Senate and House committees to investigate the Soviet activity and to make public the status of the Cuban base, plus any agreements this country may have with Russia.

Instead of drawing sustenance through its roots, seaweeds synthesize food from nutrients absorbed from the water. Giant kelp, towering up to 125 feet tall, will grow a foot a day under the right conditions.

relief. Again, starving in winter, he is fed from a hay truck.

Gradually the deer begins to catch on. He's not a prey of his environment, but in a preserve, still facing his own choices and risks, but puzzlingly somehow, cared for. He becomes aware of the ranger not as an alien danger, but as a miraculous friendly power involved in living, as one who frees and feeds.

That, in a rough analogy, is how man got to know God. More precisely, it is how God made himself known to man—by showing His ways in human history.

"He made known His acts," the Psalmist says, "to the people of Israel."

Although other major religions see the world as a bleak, sad cycle from which they seek surcease, Judeo-Christianity considers it a dynamic, divinely constituted stage of revelation, responsibility and growth toward a sacred consummation.

"The Biblical view is that God himself is present in the historical struggle, directing the course of human affairs toward his own end, says Anglican scholar C. F. D. Moule.

It is only through the unfolding tutelage of events that mankind discerns the signs of God in the human story.

A "light to the nations," the prophet Isaiah put it. "Behold, your salvation comes . . . The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea."

That's what puts the promise into the earthly pilgrimage. The realization didn't result from philosophical speculation, theorizing or metaphysical abstraction, but rather was thrust upon men by God's self-disclosure in occurrences, at His initiative and as He determined.

That actually the only possible way men can know about God, since anything they could figure out would be a man-fashioned, man-sized "dog," a domesticated idol, devised by their own minds and under their control.

"But it is never the truth, says the late great Swiss Protestant scholar Karl Barth. He says men share knowledge of God only "as God unveils himself in His works and sign in our creaturely sphere to the extent He deems 'suitable for us.'"

This is why Judeo-Christianity is called "revealed religion—it is considered divinely imparted, not thought up by men. The revelations came through a particular people, the Jews.

"Behold, My covenant is with you," God's call struck through to Abraham, far back in antiquity in the Tigris-Euphrates Valley, regarded the cradle of human life. "Go . . . and I will make you a blessing . . . to all families of the earth."

He went. From the start, it was through action that men received the divine "Word," which doesn't mean just a disturbance of sound waves, but an out-flowing of God's presence, spirit and will.

The record of His disclosure among men is contained in a compendium of books, the Bible. Unlike most religious literature, it is not chiefly a collection of noble sayings, but a drum-roll of events, people, struggles, great and terrible, of frailty, doubts and heroism, of the ultimate might of right.

It isn't meant as a scientific treatise but as "salvation history," a vivid, sometimes parabolic account, not of man's searching out God, but of God's persistent, unrelenting quest for man and man's stumbling, often faithless response.

"For the mountain may depart and the hills be removed, but My steadfast love shall not depart from you," came the holy message sensed by the prophets, those strange, acute men, divinely singled out, sometimes reluctantly, their consciences attuned to mirror God's own concern.

The documentary accounts, projecting their points through allegory, poetry, narratives and history that archeology has found to be highly accurate, generally sees God's work in the natural sphere, but also includes reports of miraculous phenomena, counter to modern rationalism.

While some of these descriptions may be pictorial imagery, common in Hebrew literature, others clearly are presented as actual occurrences. In the books of prophets and later New Testament books, the writers, who were keenly conscientious men, have a major advantage over modern detractors.

They were there. They are the witnesses. And their testimony has an undeniably, basic ring of reliability.

Notably, it's only through confidence in the dependability of others that man can know any history at all, American or otherwise. Most everything anyone knows—from astronomy to yesterday's news—depends on others. It takes faith. The engineer depends on the makers of his slide rule, and it's only through the work of mapmakers that people have any idea what the coastlines look like.

And Scripture sets down the trail-blazing map of God's doings among men.

The ancient world seethed with a polytheism of nature "gods," animal "gods" and national "gods" used to sustain the status quo, but the Israelites were confronted with something radically new, a God everywhere, incisive, irresistible.

"What is His name?" asked a perplexed Moses, when God's summons seized him, asking him to lead his enslaved people out of their 400 years of harsh bondage under the powerful Egyptian Pharaoh, Ramses II. It is the question always flung against encompassing mystery.

"I Am Who I Am." "I will be with you," Puzzled, but trusting, Moses dared it. "Let my people go!" Out of a bewildering series of ensuing incidents, the ragtag slaves broke free from the world's then dominant military empire. It seemed incredible.

"The Lord is my strength and my song," the people sang. "Thou hast led in they steadfast love the people whom thou hast redeemed."

So then, they began to know. God had shown himself as one who rescues, who defends the weak and the oppressed, who sets the captive free.

It had been enigmatic before, but an experience had communicated its meaning, and now they knew. God was involved in things, active, caring, intervening, breaking and entering, toppling and building up, invoking mercy and justice through human endeavor.

"I will make all My goodness pass before you," Scripture relates.

Deeds Of Good Will

Christmas is the great leveler of Christendom, channeling emotions away from controversies and reducing the human inclination toward selfishness as the great majority think of others for a while. There is a devotion to values not commonly uppermost in the workaday world.

We think of relatives and friends, exerting ourselves to find the gift that may please them. Those who contend dourly that it is a competition with commercial overtones, that it yields unhappy comparison because some can give more than others, miss the point.

The fundamental tenet of Christmas is to love one another and show that love by deeds of sacrifice.

And Christmas is a broadening of that ethic beyond a narrow circle of relatives and friends. The spirit of charity is wider at this season than at any other time of the year. Everyone becomes our neighbor as we contribute to the causes and the funds to befriend the helpless.

Dutch Prison Decline

Penologists who are becoming increasingly concerned about the growing prison population in the United States and are looking for some meaningful reform might take a look at Holland's recent experience. But if they do, they ought to go below the surface of the obvious.

The Dutch appear to have solved their prison problems. In the last five years the prison population has declined one-fourth, to 2,700 persons and a prisoner rate of only 21 per 100,000 population — a far lower rate than almost any other Western country.

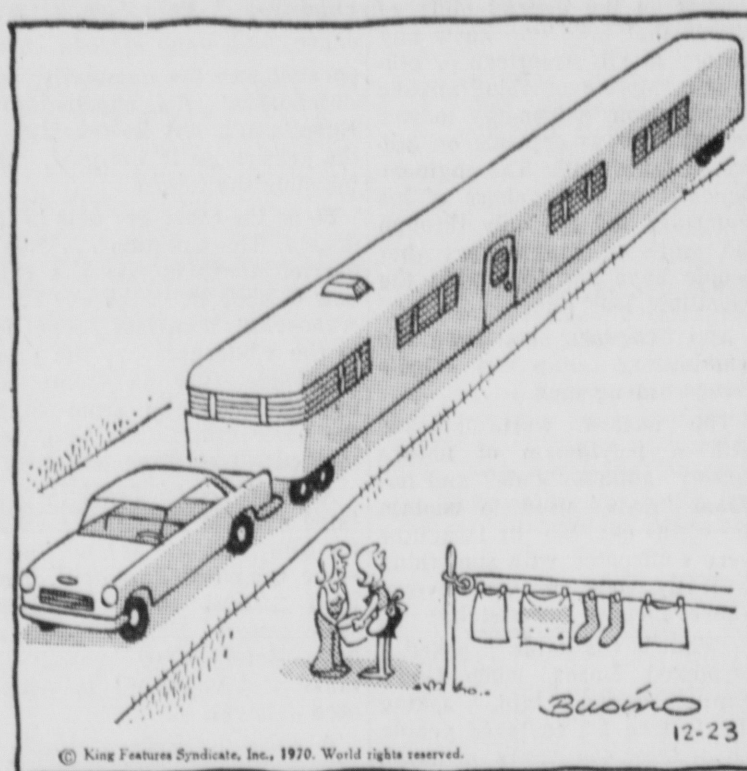

The reason? Holland's courts are imposing shorter sentences than previously. Seldom is a sentence of more than 10 years handed down, and two-thirds of prisoners are serving sentences of less than one year.

But in conjunction with the more lenient court treatment, the Dutch have inaugurated extensive rehabilitation services designed to rescue all but the incorrigible from a life of crime. Working with a small group of men, the chances for directing rehabilitative attention to each individual's needs are greatly increased.

If that personal attention does succeed in deterring men from crime there seems less reason why prisons, as they are known today, could not disappear entirely. The question is, does the Dutch system work as well as its prisoner count would indicate?

BOB SYLVESTER, quoting a Honolulu feather pillow manufacturer's beef that inflated costs have all but destroyed his business, observes sadly that now even down is up.

Sylvester, his ears always to the ground, also tells about the Egyptian belly dancer, moonlighting as an artist's model, who refused flatly to pose in the altogether. She insisted on wearing a veil over her face.

Current magazines and newspapers are full of stories and warnings about pollution of our air and waterways. Due credit should be given to E. B. White, however, because way back on May 16, 1959, he wrote in the New Yorker, "Because the slaughter of the innocents continues here and abroad, and the contamination of air, sea, and soil proceed apace, we will undertake to assemble bulletins henceforth tracing Man's progress in making the planet uninhabitable. This is Bulletin Number One."

Mr. White persisted with his crusade, too, and it was at his urging that Rachel Carson, in 1962, wrote her trail-blazing "Silent Spring." And now, maybe at long last, we're going to see some ACTION—before we all choke!

Barbra Streisand says the day she knew that she was on her way to fame and fortune was when she realized finally she no longer had to spoon out her melon clear down to the rind.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

If cirrhosis has once set in, can the liver ever again become normal? I have had a drinking problem, which is now controlled.

Don't guess. Discard all unlabeled medicine.

Mr. A. F., Okla. Dear Mr. F.: Cirrhosis of the liver is a condition in which scar tissue forms and, if it is extensive enough, impairs the important functions of this organ.

Alcoholism is one of the major causes of cirrhosis. Unfortunately, cirrhosis of the liver may go undetected for many years and show few symptoms of poor liver function. This may give the chronic drinker a false sense of security and make him believe that "it's not happening to me."

The liver is a remarkable organ and is really the chemical factory of the body. It is the clearing house for all poisons.

One of the great characteristics of the liver is that it can continue to function even after cirrhosis has set in.

It is not until a large part of the liver is handicapped that the body suffers from poor liver function.

The fact that you have stopped drinking is most important, because the likelihood is great that cirrhosis has not progressed since.

When any of the toxic causes of cirrhosis are removed, the liver damage can usually be kept in check.

One of the great dangers of chronic alcoholism, however, is that there is a point where cirrhosis has progressed so far that the condition cannot be checked, even with complete cessation of alcohol.

There now are available many liver-function tests and even X-ray methods, for scanning the liver to determine its condition.

It would be wise for you to take advantage of these tests by consulting your own doctor. This would give you the added assurance you need.

On January 1 of the New Year the TV broadcasting systems are supposed to banish cigarette advertising from the airwaves. Since I gave up smoking long ago, this means nothing to me personally. Nor, since I have never bought a tobacco stock, does it trouble me financially. But as a citizen I do own the protection of the Bill of Rights, and I don't like to see its guarantees chipped away, where it is by Supreme Court interpretation, or the malfeasance or misfeasance of Congress, or the fiat of the Federal Communications Commission.

If there is a health reason for banning cigarette advertising from the air, the outlawry should extend to all the media. If, however, it remains an unproven proposition that nicotine causes lung cancer, then the partial crackdown on tobacco advertising shatters the Constitution in two ways. It is a violation of the First Amendment, which is supposed to protect all media in their right to freedom of speech and of the press. It is also a violation of the clause that guarantees to all citizens the equal protection of the laws.

The Federal Communications Commission, in placing itself above the law, errs in other ways. It is not above hinting to broadcasting companies that they had better make room for ethnic minority employment in their studios if they want "impartial" consideration on license renewals. Other things being equal, the TV companies should give a fair break to ethnic — as well as ideological — minorities when it comes to hiring. However, there is the test of relevance to be considered. The color of a man's skin has no connection with his ability to analyze the news or to act as a master of ceremonies or to script a good program. The most that any broadcasting company should be expected to do is to give anybody who shows promise a fair trial.

Most broadcasting companies are rather well staffed by liberals anyway, and I doubt very much that they discriminate against applicants because of ethnic prejudice. A more important criticism is that expressed by Max Wyllie, an old Columbia Broadcasting System hand whose "Writing for TV" should be must reading throughout the industry. Mr. Wyllie doesn't think TV pays enough attention to nurturing good writing talent of any kind, regardless of the skin color of applicants.

The silent oppression of the FCC, which regulates and licenses the practitioners of broadcast journalism, has been analyzed in a most courageous speech delivered in Gatlinburg, Tennessee by Richard S. Salant, president of Columbia Broadcasting System News. Mr. Salant, in a bit of excellent history, argues that there has always been an adversary relationship between government and the press. George Washington, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson had their troubles with journalists; so, too, did Abraham Lincoln, whose Gettysburg Address was mocked by the Harrisburg (Pa.) Patriot and Union.

At a later date Franklin Roosevelt gloried in giving Iron Crosses and dunces caps to newspapermen who had displeased him, and John F. Kennedy petulantly cancelled his subscription to the New York Herald Tribune. The newspapers that were thus reproached from on high took such reprisals as part of the game. Yet, as Mr. Salant says, the people in broadcast journalism must consider themselves second-class citizens, for they are licensed by the appointees of the very government that is in an adversary relationship with them. There is a built-in inequality here because the FCC can renew or fail to renew a license at its own pleasure.

This has nothing to do with Vice President Agnew's attacks on the media, most of which this columnist, who is not a liberal within the contemporary definition of the term, thinks were well taken. I hope that pressure from the so-called silent majority of the listeners will be enough to cause the broadcasting companies to hire more Howard K. Smiths as anchor men during news commentary hours. Quite aside from any presumed need for reform, however, it is a ruin of the Bill of Rights to vest the renewal of air wave licenses in any administrative body. Once granted, air licenses should be bought and sold in the marketplace, just as magazines and newspapers are. (The press use public street to carry it ware to readers.) The public itself should do the criticizing, and the adversary position of all types of journalism should remain intact.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans are accustomed to hearing that taxes are anti-inflationary—that one of their purposes is to regulate demand and thereby keep the economy from becoming overheated.

The average annual living costs for urban families—as of last spring—have just been released by the Labor Department and they show that the chief increases for millions of people were taxes—local, state and federal, income, sales and real estate.

The department, which regularly issues three budgets for a "typical" family of a 38-year-old husband, nonworking wife, boy 13 and girl 8, announced that 30 to 40 per cent of the 1970 budget increases resulted from taxes.

On the lowest of the three budgets, the family was estimated to need $6,990 a year, an increase in one year of $393. The intermediate budget rose to $10,664 from $10,077, and the higher level budget to $15,511 from $14,589.

All three budgets are supposed to provide sufficient nourishment, but the liberal budget allows for better meats and more convenience foods than the moderate plan, while the low cost plan has fewer meat and few convenience foods.

The higher plan also permits considerably better shelter, as reflected in the figures showing that 33 per cent of the higher budget goes for housing, while only 26 per cent is allowed for housing in the lowest budget.

All these figures are hypothetical, of course. No more than a few places are likely to be anywhere near the average, which is made up of great extremes, some of them due to the peculiar geography of certain regions.

In Anchorage, Alaska, for instance, the average cost of existing on the intermediate budget was a whopping $14,535. In Austin, Tex., however, the same style of living could be enjoyed for $9,212.

Even among the larger cities there were great contrasts. In New York, the intermediate budget was estimated at $12,134, but in Chicago it was $1,014 lower, and was lower in Los Angeles by $1,364.

But back to the original question: Are taxes inflationary or deflationary? To some extent it depends upon your viewpoint, where you take the individual or the governmental view, whether you give or receive.

A lot depends upon how the revenue is spent, whether it is for productive, useful goods and services or simply wasted. If wasted, then taxes certainly can dilute both individual and governmental power. Which is what inflation does.

NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is the greatest medicine man. It heals and cures better than the ablest doctor. And like a skilled surgeon, it selectively removes the dead tissue of the mind so that only the living past remains to encourage us and make us hopeful.

Memory helps give us fortitude and keep us brave. It suggests that if we have endured what has already happened to us, we have good reason to expect that we can bear to survive what lies ahead.

Every heart is thronged with a million memories, large or small. You are well supplied with them yourself if you can look back and remember when popular film stars. The last men to give up wearing a vest were scholars, because it served as such a wonderful backdrop to show off their Phi Beta Kappa keys.

For every American who cleaned his teeth with a toothbrush, there were three who did it with a toothpick.

If you found a lump of coal in the bottom of your stocking on Christmas morning, that was Santa's way of warning you that you had been a bad boy or girl—and next year might not get a present unless you mended your ways.

To be fat was no disgrace. Many doctors thought plumpness was a sign of health, and worried that an underweight patient was likely to come down with tuberculosis.

Penmanship was an art. Whether or not its contents were worthwhile, a letter was often made memorable by the curlicues that adorned the writing.

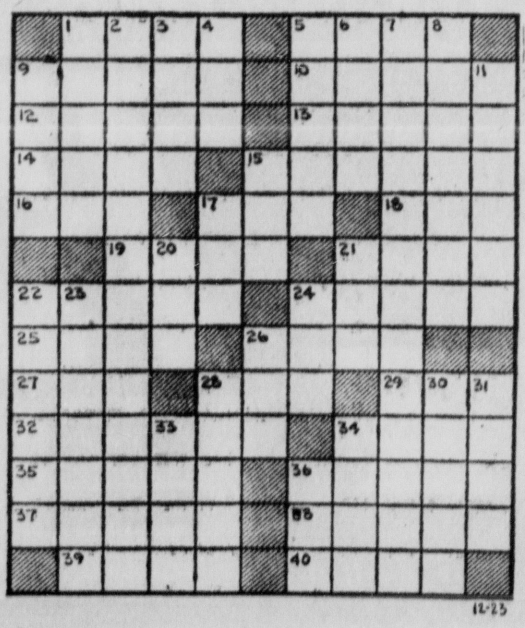

Before the popularity of the Christmas office party waxed and waned, few fathers came home on yuletide eve loaded—but sometimes their breath did smell a bit of Sen Sen.

No one reached for a helping until the man who sat at the head of the table had asked, with folded hands, a blessing on all who sat there from the One in whose honor they had gathered.

QUES. WHEN DOES THE FRAUD DECIDE TO USE THE HOT WATER IN THE KITCHEN?

WHY JUST WHEN FRIEND HOOSBAN IS TAKING A NICE WARM SHOWER, OF CUSS, OF CUSS...

Deeds Of Good Will

Christmas is the great leveler of Christendom, channeling emotions away from controversies and reducing the human inclination toward selfishness as the great majority think of others for a while. There is a devotion to values not commonly uppermost in the workaday world.

We think of relatives and friends, exerting ourselves to find the gift that may please them. Those who contend dourly that it is a competition with commercial overtones, that it yields unhappy comparison because some can give more than others, miss the point.

The fundamental tenet of Christmas is to love one another and show that love by deeds of sacrifice.

And Christmas is a broadening of that ethic beyond a narrow circle of relatives and friends. The spirit of charity is wider at this season than at any other time of the year. Everyone becomes our neighbor as we contribute to the causes and the funds to befriend the helpless.

Dutch Prison Decline

Penologists who are becoming increasingly concerned about the growing prison population in the United States and are looking for some meaningful reform might take a look at Holland's recent experience. But if they do, they ought to go below the surface of the obvious.

The Dutch appear to have solved their prison problems. In the last five years the prison population has declined one-fourth, to 2,700 persons and a prisoner rate of only 21 per 100,000 population — a far lower rate than almost any other Western country.

The reason? Holland's courts are imposing shorter sentences than previously. Seldom is a sentence of more than 10 years handed down, and two-thirds of prisoners are serving sentences of less than one year.

But in conjunction with the more lenient court treatment, the Dutch have inaugurated extensive rehabilitation services designed to rescue all but the incorrigible from a life of crime. Working with a small group of men, the chances for directing rehabilitative attention to each individual's needs are greatly increased.

If that personal attention does succeed in deterring men from crime there seems less reason why prisons, as they are known today, could not disappear entirely. The question is, does the Dutch system work as well as its prisoner count would indicate?

Sylvester, his ears always to the ground, also tells about the Egyptian belly dancer, moonlighting as an artist's model, who refused flatly to pose in the altogether. She insisted on wearing a veil over her face.

Current magazines and newspapers are full of stories and warnings about pollution of our air and waterways. Due credit should be given to E. B. White, however, because way back on May 15, 1959, he wrote in the New Yorker, "Because the slaughter of the innocents continues here and abroad, and the contamination of air, sea, and soil proceed apace, we will undertake to assemble bulletins henceforth tracing Man's progress in making the planet uninhabitable. This is Bulletin Number One."

Mr. White persisted with his crusade, too, and it was at his urging that Rachel Carson, in 1962, wrote her trail-blazing "Silent Spring." And now, maybe at long last, we're going to see some ACTION — before we all choke!

Barbra Streisand says the day she knew that she was on her way to fame and fortune was when she realized finally she no longer had to spoon out her melon clear down to the rind.

More Realism Is Expected In Poland

WARSAW (AP) — Western observers in Warsaw expect Edward Gierek's new Polish regime to be more pragmatic than that of Wladyslaw Gomulka and its decision making to be less of a one-man operation.

The new leadership is composed of "people who get things done," said one Western source, "although the leadership will probably be more collective until Gierek finds his feet. Gomulka was patriarchal. He didn't like to consult with anybody and would make his decisions alone."

Gierek replaced Gomulka Sunday as first secretary of the Communist party and five new members were named to the 12-man Politburo, replacing Gomulka and four others purged with him.

Although Gierek promised an overhaul of the economy and revision of the new five-year plan, Warsaw Radio said Monday there will be no retreat from the 17-20 per cent price increases which last week set off the riots that brought Gomulka down.

"We must be aware of the fact that there is no possibility to return to the previous anomalous state of the price system," he government radio said. It added that the new regime will carry out Central Committee orders to alleviate the economic problems of poor families with several children.

Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev sent congratulations to Gierek and expressed the hope that the Polish party "will successfully overcome the difficulties which recently occurred." The message praised the new first secretary as a "sincere friend of the Soviet Union."

Westerners speculated that Brezhnev or one of his Kremlin subordinates engineered the changes during a weekend trip to Warsaw.

The other Communist giant, Red China, said the events in Poland show "that Russian rule in Eastern Europe has 'fallen into a crisis.'"

Open Fire On 'Seniority'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A private political-action organization, saying the House won't clean itself of the seniority system has announced it hopes to clean house through the election process.

The National Committee for an Effective Congress (NCEC) said Monday it hopes to sweep out of office in the 1972 primaries those "obstructionists" in key positions who are interested mainly in preserving the status quo.

"In all cases, defiance of change is the watchword," it said.

The group said it planned to find and finance candidates to run against the chosen targets. Candidates chosen, it said, would "be dedicated to public service, articulate, and have a broad community base, an ability to raise funds, and a commitment to an all-out campaign."

The NCEC said it had concluded the House was so locked into the seniority system there is little hope of changing it internally. It did not disclose its target list but said anywhere from five to 30 members of each party could be opposed.

Consumer Group Hits 'Bonuses'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer organization, contending some firms give cash bonuses to retail salesmen who push their products, says it will ask the federal government to outlaw the practice.

Consumers Union said Monday the practice leaves the consumer who relies on the advice of a store salesman "vulnerable to the prodding of a monetarily inclined salesman," and amounts to little more than a bribe.

The non-profit organization said bonuses are given most frequently by firms which manufacture cameras, vacuum cleaners, sound equipment and other household devices.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — James Chambers of Fremont and James Andrews of Cleveland have been elected trustees of the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers (FASH), a group trying to disassociate itself from the Teamsters Union.

William J. Hill of Pittsburgh was elected president for a fourth term at weekend sessions attended by delegates from eight states.

Countryside Near Bethlehem Symbolizes Yuletide Season

BETHLEHEM (AP) — In 2,000 years, time has only faintly brushed the bleak Judean country around this little town of Christ's birth.

Now, at Christmastide, winter has washed the hills and fields in tawny browns, leaden grays and olive drabs.

Low overhead in the palest of Mediterranean skies, wispy cumulus seud silently eastward to cross the Dead Sea and pile up above the desolate mountains of Moab.

This is Bible country. Wherever you look, scenes from the Scriptures dramatically materialize.

In the fields below the old

Crusader Church of the Nativity, but within easy hearing of the bells of Bethlehem, shepherds still tend their flocks as shepherds did on the night of His birth.

They guard against the bitter night wrapped in long sweeping robes, faces and heads muffled in colorful keffiyehs. An aging patriarch, staff in hand, limps painfully across the rocky earth, trailed by a lamb.

Ungainly camels and their Bedouin Arab monsters plodding home across the Judean desert remind one of a similar caravan that must have brought the Eastern Wise Men to their journeys' end under Bethlehem's brilliant star.

Much of the rural transportation and freighting here still depend on that ubiquitous Jack-of-all-Middle East burdens—the donkey. On some days, these sturdy animals seem to outnumber cars in Bethlehem.

The ancient city itself is far from being a modern town, in the 20th century sense.

Some of its twisting, cobbled lanes and facing stone buildings cannot be too different from the scene that greeted the Holy Family on that first Christmas.

May the days ahead reflect the peace of this greatest of all holidays.

Miss Cheryl Diane Smith Weds Robert Hendrickson

MRS. ROBERT HENDRICKSON

The altar of Stoutsville Trinity Lutheran Church was adorned with arrangements of white mums flanked by seven branch candelabra for the wedding of Miss Cheryl Diane Smith and Mr. Robert Hendrickson.

Dr. Harold Zieff performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Keith Smith, Route 1, Stoutsville, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Smith, Route 2, Amada, 7:30 p.m. Nov. 23. A program of music preceded the ceremony by Mrs. Jerry Voss, organist and Mrs. David Huffer, vocalist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was escorted down the aisle past candelabra and white bows marking the pews. She selected for her wedding a satepeau full length gown fashioned with an empire waistline and bodice encircled with bands of scalloped Venice lace. The lace formed the high neckline and cuffed the long full sleeves. The attached satin train fully edged in the scalloped lace, fell into a circular effect. Double satin bows trimmed the trim on the gown held her tiered silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade arrangement of stephanotis and white roses. Her only jewelry was diamond earrings, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Rhonda Smith served her sister as maid of honor in a full length gown with a brown crepe skirt in an orange and yellow floral design. The bodice was of yellow nylon with sheer long full sleeves and brown velvet cummerbund. A matching velvet bow was worn as a headpiece. She carried a bouquet of yellow and bronze pompon mums with long streamers. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Harry Rubin and Miss

Emergency Measures Aid In Facing Up To Holidays

FRESHEN UP — After a bubble bath spray on cologne mist from head to toe for a fragrant and refreshing lift.

COVER UP — If your hair is straight and straggly hide out under a wig. This one can be worn several ways.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

There comes a moment mid-holiday hustle-bustle when you suddenly see yourself in a mirror and think, "Good grief! Is that me?"

You're looking somewhat the worse for wear and tear and it's small wonder, for the holiday pace is a hectic one.

But don't let a frazzled appearance throw you. Sneak time—30 to 40 minutes — out of your busy schedule and you can emerge radiant and revived. All you need do is take these quick and easy emergency measures:

Mask the Problem: Dip into a jar of facial mask. Smooth it on clean skin. While it sets — about 10 to 15 minutes — try our next tip and...

Relax In The Tub: Run water not too hot, not too cold but a happy medium lukewarm. Toss in some scented bubble bath. Settle down and soak exhaustion out of your bones. You might also use tub time to give your nails a manicure.

Blot yourself dry with an absorbent towel, then spray

Newcomer's Club Holds Yule Dinner

Newcomer's Club held its December meeting at the Presbyterian Church Wednesday evening. A social evening with a carry-in dinner was the program for the evening. Tables were gaily decorated with Christmas tablecloths and centerpieces.

Three drawings highlighted the evening. Doorprizes were won by Judy Wortman and Patsy Marquart. Centerpieces were won by Lynn McCain, Marcella Dickerhoffe, Ann Morehart, Liz Barton, and Judy Luce. The last drawing was for a Christmas gift exchange. Each of the 23 members attending received a gift.

Mrs. T. Bevan, president, introduced and welcomed one newcomer, Mrs. F. Peters, to the club.

There was no business meeting this month, but members were reminded that crazy bingo would be played at the January meeting.

Newcomers to the Circleville area interested in attending January's meeting are asked to call Connie Sherman at 474-8085 for further information.

yourself head to toe with cologne mist. You will feel better instantly. It's guaranteed!

Take Ten: Fresh from the bath, lie down for 10 minutes, feet elevated (10 to 12 inches higher than your head) in the Beauty Angle. For a bonus, place witch hazel pads over your eyes.

Makeover Magic: Apply make up with care. Use a white coverup stick to conceal dark under-eye circles. Apply blusher not just on cheeks but on forehead, nose tip and chin, too, for overall glow.

Hairdo How-To: If your hair is straggly, your best bet is to hide out under a wig. If you haven't succumbed yet, now is the moment. Stretch wigs are inexpensive wonderworkers. Get one in a shade close to your own hair-coloring and none will be the wiser.

Lacking a wig, electrically heated rollers can provide quick curls. It takes 10 to 15 minutes for the curl to take. Comb, spray and you're beautifully set for any gala occasion on your social schedule.

Exploratory Drilling Plans Slated By Columbia Gas

The Circleville Herald, Wed. Dec. 23, 1970
Circleville, Ohio

A letter of agreement has been signed under which Columbia Gas Development Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Columbia Gas System, Inc., will participate in an exploratory drilling program on extensive acreage held by Dome Petroleum Ltd. in Canada. C. E. Loomis, Wilmington, Del., chairman of board of the Columbia Gas System and J. P. Gallagher, Calgary, Canada, president of Dome, announced today.

Under the farm-out arrangement, the Columbia subsidiary will advance $30 million over the next three years for exploratory drilling on Dome's acreage to earn a 7 1/2 per cent interest in all of Dome's exploratory acreage. The sum will be matched by Dome Petroleum Ltd. thereafter.

The primary objective of the transactions is to stimulate the exploration for gas on promising acreage in Canada. To the extent that gas is found, part of it will become available to the Columbia Gas System.

Only recently the Columbia System also announced its participation in an Arctic Gas Trunk Study Group that will evaluate the engineering, economic and environmental feasibility of constructing a large-capacity gas transport pipeline to connect the Prudhoe Bay oil and gas field in Alaska with existing gas transport facilities in Alberta, Canada and then to North American markets, including those states served by the Columbia System.

W. F. Laird, Columbus, president of Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., Ohio Fuel Gas Co. and Ohio Valley Gas Co., described the Columbia System's participation in the Canadian drilling program and the group studying the feasibility of an arctic gas pipeline as "important developments for natural gas consumers in Ohio."

"This is just another one of many things we are doing to assure our customers of adequate supplies of natural gas," Laird said.

He pointed out that in addition to expanding its own exploration for natural gas in the Southwest and offshore in the Gulf of Mexico — the source of most of the gas used in Ohio today — Columbia has signed two long-term contracts to import vast supplies of natural gas in liquid form by ship from Algeria and Venezuela and only recently formed a company to expedite the commercialization of coal gasification for supplementing future supplies of gas.

Laird also said extensive drilling operations are being conducted here in Ohio, and in the Appalachian area, to probe rock formations more than two miles deep in search of new supplies of gas. Columbia Gas of Ohio, Ohio Valley Gas Co. and Ohio Fuel Gas Co. are part of the Columbia Gas System. They serve more than a million customers retail in a 61 county area of Ohio and 25 wholesale customers, including Dayton Power & Light Co. and Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co.

Brazilians Agree To Some Demands

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP). — The Brazilian government says it won't release murderers or kidnapers, but it is willing to set free 51 of 70 prisoners demanded as ransom for kidnaped Swiss Ambassador Giovanni Enrico Bucher.

The Justice Ministry was awaiting a reply today to the offer made Monday night, its first official response to the third list of prisoners reportedly submitted by the terrorist kidnapers. The first two were rejected as fakes.

A Christmas Story The Miracle at Derrick, Texas

by Luise Putcamp Jr.

Synopsis: When the orphans creep onstage in the carol contest a lot of people get up to leave. The orphans know that this year they have to win! But the Orphanage ladies, Mrs. Motherwell and Miss Princh, think with misgivings how it will sound when little one-deaf Christopher starts singing.

CHAPTER III THE MIRACLE

MRS. MOTHERWELL lifted her hand for the singing to begin.

"O come, all ye faithful!" sang the thin, sweet voices of the orphans, all starting at once, all close together like the silver pipes of an organ.

As they sang, they listened for the hoarse voice of Christopher. And as they listened, the miracle happened at Derrick, Texas.

One voice climbed above the others with a sound like bells, like birds never heard before, the sound that starlight would make if light had sound, the voice of love if love had a voice.

Out in front, the people who were standing took no step, and the people who were still sitting drew no breath.

One by one the children stopped singing and turned to listen to this voice that sang "O come, let us adore Him!" not like a football yell, but like an invitation to the most wonderful birthday party in the world.

And as Christopher stood there singing all alone, a strange thing happened.

Old Mrs. Bittrell suddenly remembered that Christmas was something besides toes stepped on in the stores, and a postman who came later each day. She remembered Christmas when she was just a mite of a girl, and there was a manger, and a little wax Baby with a bright face.

Banker Skind thought with a kind of surprise that he never wanted the carol festival to end. It was better than sleeping on the couch after Sunday dinner — even better than foreclosing mortgages. Why was it he'd never wanted to come before?

And Gus Derek, in his hand-tooled boots and his solid gold derrick cuff links, passed a hand over his eyes. He thought of the thing he'd tried for years to forget, the thing nobody else in Derrick, Texas knew.

"Why man," he told himself, "you used to be a little underfed orphan kid, just about like that one singing up there!"

For a minute after the song ended, there was a breath-holding silence. Then people Onstage, the orphans and Mrs. Motherwell and Miss Princh were clustered around Christopher.

began stirring like people waking up from a dream, and they began clapping as if they had gone crazy.

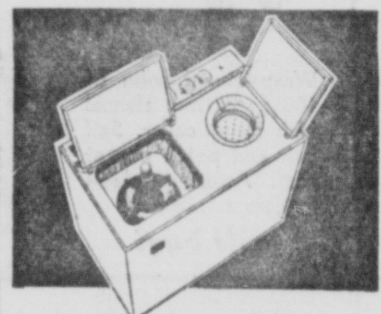

Fred Ketchum stood up excitedly and said to anybody who would listen: "I've never heard anything like it! I've been usherin' at these carol things for fifteen years, and I tell you, I've never heard anything like it before!"

The judges were hustling up to tell Mrs. Motherwell that for the first time since the carol festival began, the Orphanage choir had won the prize.

Mrs. Bittrell wanted to get a better look at that boy who sang. His face reminded her of the little wax Baby's face. Banker Skind was trying to catch up with Gus Derek, and ask if Derek didn't think they'd all been a bit hasty about condemning the Orphanage building.

And Derek, bounding up the stage steps, was waving his check book and saying: "Hang the ten thousand dollars! How much would it cost to build a whole new orphanage building? And fill up these kids with T-bone steaks besides?"

Onstage, the orphans and Mrs. Motherwell and Miss Princh were clustered around Christopher, all hugging him and each other and all talking at once.

GIs Angered At South Viets

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Anger at the South Vietnamese government tainted the homecoming joy of 350 GI's who flew here after delays of up to two days because a giant 747 charter jet was refused permission to land at Saigon.

"We were very disappointed," said Spec. 4 John Carolina Jr., 19, of Bridgeport, Conn. one of those aboard the first of four substitute Air Force transport flights. "There were a lot of guys who were just living for that flight."

The troops poured off the C141 Starlifter aircraft Monday at this wind-whipped air base, the "gateway to the Pacific" for thousands of troops serving in Southeast Asia.

I am Terressa Williams and I am 3 years old. I've been good and I listen to my mommy and my babysitter Eunice.

I want a Barbie doll and Francie. I want a play store to put in my bed room. I also want a stove but since Kim, my sister, wants one too, maybe one will be OK for both of us.

I'll need some clothes for my Barbie doll and anything else you think I'd like.

Kim has already asked you to bring something for our cat Wiskers, but she forgot Miss Pat, our mother cat. Miss Pat would like a little house since she stays outside all winter.

Don't forget the other little boys and girls and make sure you don't miss anyone.

I'll leave you some pie and chocolate milk and some hay for Rudolph.

I want new Crissy and new Velvet. Also a stove to go with the sink you brought me last year. You don't have to bring any dishes because I still have the ones you brought me before.

I have a cat named Wiskers and he'd like a stocking with some toys and a red ball. He's been good also (just a little ornery at times).

I will leave you some cookies and milk and I'll cover them up so Wiskers won't eat them.

Chase Manhattan Cuts Rate Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Chase Manhattan Bank Tuesday reduced its prime rate to 6 per cent from 7 per cent saying that there has been a decline in market rates and a "generally moderate" demand for loans in the last four weeks.

Chase had initiated a drop in the prime rate—the interest it charges its biggest and most creditworthy borrowers four weeks ago, from 7 1/4 to 7 per cent.

For you a Smile

Ohio, Tuesday credited the force of world opinion for the release of the names of prisoners of war by North Vietnam.

Taft said that world-wide publicity given the plight of the U.S. prisoners in recent months had been decisive in producing the "desired response from the North Vietnamese."

Taft, currently a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said the recent U.S. prison camp raid near Hanoi "may have helped dramatize the matter and thus to have contributed to the release of the names."

It's a busy, busy week and it's for sure no one is complaining of being bored. We took the time to meander around the town and a bit out in the country to see more of the lovely decorations.

The Willard Fennekens have a pretty place. Mom and Pop (Mr. and Mrs. Bill) Kadel's have such warmth, the Ray Valores have a huge manger scene, Walter and Marge Hill's lighting is pretty and on down 22 the Trapps, Sr. and young marrieds (Don and Anice) are all "lit up." I like the Richard Speakman home, Paul and Helen Whitesed have a pretty place, the Don Smith's trailer is beautiful, their neighbors "Booge" and Thelma Puff-barger used the popular candles and across the street so did Alonzo and Rachel Buzzard.

The Shulls have a very Christmasy home and "Meek" and Bernice Hulse's doorway has such an inviting look about it. The Sowers, Sr. have a clever twinkling blue light in the window and along the same street all bedecked for the holidays are Sowers, Jr., the Vern Rhoades, the Lloyd Ratliff's, Laura Wolfe, the Bowsens, and the green house whose occupants I am not acquainted with but they have pretty lights.

Bob and Iris Garrison used large candles and red twinkly bells and an enormous tree, the Mike McCaffertys used candles and so did my neighbor, Inez Lingo and also Twila West. A fat Santa decorates the window at Mrs. James Hooks and at the Don Greene's it is lots of lights and a Santa and they didn't use the big, big letters spelling out the greeting that they had last year that I liked so well. The Collins family up the street are well decorated, too, and my next door neighbor, Maria Hastings has her lights up as well as the Don Cooks and A. J. and Juanita Cook who have the larger bulbs that I am envious of but seem to be unavailable anymore except for commercial purposes.

The tree outside at Cliff and Shirley Bowsers is so pretty and they have it merrily sending its glow in the early morning hours which is such a nice gesture. Ralph and Bea Wallace have an outside tree all a-glow, too, and at the Francis Rutherford home they have used those tiny, tiny lights that are so popular this year, too, as well as other lights and the miniature lighted tree in the window is lovely. George and Janie Hamman are one of the lucky couples that has a tree in the yard that lends itself so perfectly to the yuletide lighting.

I just wish everyone could see how beautifully our homes are done this year and it is my sincere wish that time be taken to drive around and see all the effort and work and enjoy all of it. Pat Clark has a window facing 22 that is cleverly done and Carl and Ruth Long have the tiny lights framing a window and even bachelor Johnny Martindale has a candle in the window. The Leroy Lanes used lights to frame a picture window with their tree in the center which makes it look like a picture postcard. Joe and Nellie Wright have an outside tree all bright and gay and the Dorr McDill's have lights, lights, and more lights which are truly beautiful.

The only thing missing is a bit of snow but that can wait until like after midnight Thursday and then let it snow, let it snow. And from our house to your house every good wish for Christmas and the New Year and may the Angels take the stars down to the world for it needs some warmth and light. Make them shine in every home and every heart tonight.

Grandma Agnes Brayshaw was pleasantly surprised to have her niece, Hilda Sedlak of and nephew, Frank Sedlak of Indianapolis, Ind. for a visit last Tuesday. They spent the day with Grandma and also with Pearl Cochenour (a cousin) who lives right by Grandma. And that reminds me, by the way, that Grandma has her cozy trailer home all pretty with red Christmas lights. That same morning Grandma was pleased to receive a call from a granddaughter who lives in California.

Karen (Mrs. Jim) Dean entertained her Euchre club at its Christmas party last Monday evening. Her home was attractively decorated in keeping with the season and the exchange gifts were placed under the tree. Winners were high and most losers, Dorothy (Mrs. Lawrence) Carle; traveling, Scarlett (Mrs. Billy) Carter; low, Pearl (Mrs. Pete) Cochenour.

Others at the tables were Glenna (Mrs. Darrel) Wiscup, Sue (Mrs. John) Graffis, Janie (Mrs. Joe) Cottrill, and yours truly. Scrumptious Christmas cookies, tea sandwiches, punch, coffee, nuts and carols were served buffet style.

Mrs. Paul (Louise) Drummond entertained at the annual Deer Creek Variety Extension Group Christmas meeting last Wednesday evening. Members and guests exchanging gifts and playing seasonal games were, Mrs. John Ater, Mrs. John Beck, Mrs. Otha Lewis, Miss Saralie Grabill, Mrs. Pete Cochran, Mrs. Agnes Brayshaw, Mrs. David Drummond, Mrs. Omer Lemming, Mrs. Clyde Herron, Mrs. John Diffendahl, Mrs. John Wardell, Mrs. Eugene Grigsby, Mrs. Paul Dawson, and Miss Mary Clark.

Residents of this community are upset that our pretty Pat (Mrs. Robert) Metzger and her two daughters, Lori and Crystal were involved in a serious accident, Saturday, at the intersection of Routes 104 and 22. Pat suffered injuries and was admitted to Berger Hospital.

Something must be done about that accident prone spot!

Welcome home to Russell McDill who was recently discharged from Berger where he had been a heart patient for quite some time. He is a retired principal of Williamsport elementary school.

Mrs. Rose Horch, one of our well known and prominent citizens, too, has been very ill at her home and under her doctor's care. May good health soon be hers to enjoy.

The David Drummonds and two gals, Connie and Sandee attended the wedding of Miss Susan Williams and Midshipman Norman John Phelps at Central College Presbyterian Church, which was a candlelight service, Saturday evening.

Miss Williams, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Williams is a relative of David's. A military wedding, the guests were thrilled to witness the crossed swords or sabers (or whatever they cross) ceremony and the bridal couple pass through.

Little Joy Lynn Drummond was the evernight guest of her grandparents, Doyen and Kathleen Bode of Adelphi, as usual.

Reporting more of the Drummonds social whirl, they were among the members of the Chief Logan Farm Bureau Council attending the annual Christmas dinner which was held at Wardell's Party home this year. That was last Thursday. Sunday night they were among the guests at a carry-in supper at the Paul

Drummonds when they hosted the Christmas meeting of the Clarksburg 4-H Jolly Beef Feeders.

Paul Huff and Wayne Atwood have moved their garage business to the former John Deere building located near the A & W at Route 22 and 56. Located in the Clark building here in the village, they had to vacate due to the owner desiring the building. So their many customers and friends will find it business as usual at the new location.

Busily packing and taking care of last minute details are Bill and Marcia Horch and two excited youngsters, Kenny and Sheryl who will step aboard a jet Thursday and wing their way to Boston, Mass. for good old fashioned New England Christmas at the home of Marcia's parents, the Robert Spence's.

For all those of the Concerned club about the unsightliness of our high school please take note that during the holidays the hallways are to have a sealer applied which is supposed to correct the dingy appearance of late. Let's hope the restrooms are thoroughly gone over and if we cross our fingers just right maybe the gym floor will be cleaned.

Our school has been maintained so well over the few years it has been in existence that it really hurts to witness the present deterioration. Along with any number of concerned citizens, all I want is for our school to be kept in tip-top shape.

Three evenings in succession we were so pleased to have carolers. Friday the local Brownie Troop under the leadership of Mrs. Mike McCafferty sang so enthusiastically; Saturday it was the M.Y.F.'ers with leader Jim Howell and their renditions and on Sunday we had them caroling from an old fashioned pony express complete with two outriders. I venture it was the horse club Steve and Onda Fullen belong to but the name escapes me. Howsomever, we enjoyed the holiday spirit. Our thanks to each group for sharing with us.

Mrs. Paul (Louise) Drummond entertained at the annual Deercreek Variety Extension Group Christmas meeting last Wednesday evening. Members and guests exchanging gifts and playing seasonal games were, Mrs. John Ater, Mrs. John Beck, Mrs. Otha Lewis, Miss Saralie Grabill, Mrs. Pete Cochenour, Mrs. Agnes Brayshaw, Mrs. David Drummond, Mrs. Omer Lemming, Mrs. Clyde Herron, Mrs. John Diffendahl, Mrs. John Wardell, Mrs. Eugene Grigsby, Mrs. Paul Dawson, and Miss Mary Clark.

Residents of this community are upset that our pretty Pat (Mrs. Robert) Metzger and her two daughters, Lori and Crystal were involved in a serious accident, Saturday, at the intersection of Routes 104 and 22. Pat suffered injuries and was admitted to Berger Hospital.

Something must be done about that accident prone spot!

Welcome home to Russell McDill who was recently discharged from Berger where he had been a heart patient for quite some time. He is a retired principal of Williamsport elementary school.

Mrs. Rose Horch, one of our well known and prominent citizens, too, has been very ill at her home and under her doctor's care. May good health soon be hers to enjoy.

The David Drummonds and two gals, Connie and Sandee attended the wedding of Miss Susan Williams and Midshipman Norman John Phelps at Central College Presbyterian Church, which was a candlelight service, Saturday evening.

Miss Williams, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Williams is a relative of David's. A military wedding, the guests were thrilled to witness the crossed swords or sabers (or whatever they cross) ceremony and the bridal couple pass through.

Little Joy Lynn Drummond was the evernight guest of her grandparents, Doyen and Kathleen Bode of Adelphi, as usual.

Reporting more of the Drummonds social whirl, they were among the members of the Chief Logan Farm Bureau Council attending the annual Christmas dinner which was held at Wardell's Party home this year. That was last Thursday. Sunday night they were among the guests at a carry-in supper at the Paul

Drummonds when they hosted the Christmas meeting of the Clarksburg 4-H Jolly Beef Feeders.

Paul Huff and Wayne Atwood have moved their garage business to the former John Deere building located near the A & W at Route 22 and 56. Located in the Clark building here in the village, they had to vacate due to the owner desiring the building. So their many customers and friends will find it business as usual at the new location.

Busily packing and taking care of last minute details are Bill and Marcia Horch and two excited youngsters, Kenny and Sheryl who will step aboard a jet Thursday and wing their way to Boston, Mass. for good old fashioned New England Christmas at the home of Marcia's parents, the Robert Spence's.

For all those of the Concerned club about the unsightliness of our high school please take note that during the holidays the hallways are to have a sealer applied which is supposed to correct the dingy appearance of late. Let's hope the restrooms are thoroughly gone over and if we cross our fingers just right maybe the gym floor will be cleaned.

Our school has been maintained so well over the few years it has been in existence that it really hurts to witness the present deterioration. Along with any number of concerned citizens, all I want is for our school to be kept in tip-top shape.

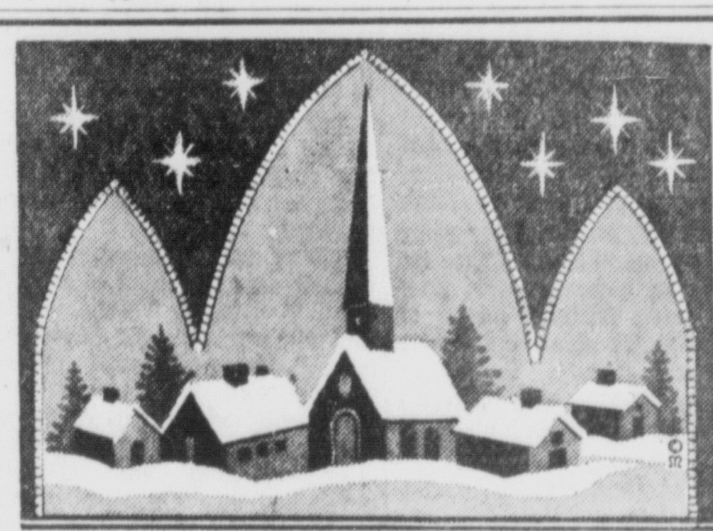

Three evenings in succession we were so pleased to have carolers. Friday the local Brownie Troop under the leadership of Mrs. Mike McCafferty sang so enthusiastically; Saturday it was the M.Y.F.'ers with leader Jim Howell and their renditions and on Sunday we had them caroling from an old fashioned pony express complete with two outriders. I venture it was the horse club Steve and Onda Fullen belong to but the name escapes me. Howsomever, we enjoyed the holiday spirit. Our thanks to each group for sharing with us.

Dear Abby: Marriage License Needs Renewal

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend and I took out a marriage license over two years ago, but he keeps changing his mind about getting married. I am getting pretty fed up with him. How long is a marriage license good for?

FLORENCE
DEAR FLORENCE: In your case, it's good for nothing.

DEAR ABBY: I am going with Ray, a very nice gentleman who isn't yet officially divorced. There is no problem there because Ray and his wife are very friendly. In fact, she is all set to marry another man as soon as the divorce is final.

The problem is that Ray's wife is being married soon in another state and Ray wants me to go to the wedding with him. I don't think I have any business going. Ray's wife's boy friend is going with her, and Ray says it would be less awkward if he brought me along.

There will be many of Ray's relatives present and I'm a little old-fashioned about meeting them under these circumstances.

If I could sit inconspicuously in the church it wouldn't be so bad, but Ray is his son's best man, which would put me in the wedding party.

Ray wants me to go, but he isn't insisting. What would you do?

RAY'S LADYFRIEND
DEAR LADYFRIEND: I'd pass.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married only four months and I love my husband dearly. I have done everything I can to make him happy, and I thought I succeeded, but I am miserable because since our wedding day not once has he said, "I love you," or, "You look nice," or, "I enjoyed the dinner."

He seems satisfied with my housekeeping and cooking and I know he is proud to be seen with me, but when I brought up my need to be told, he seemed surprised that I would expect any compliments or verbal

Dear Editor:

At this Christmas season I would like to thank all of the volunteers who helped with the Summer Head Start in Pickaway County. Without this volunteer help it would be virtually impossible to carry out a meaningful program.

I especially want to thank the Junior and Senior SOS Girls from Circleville High School and their adviser Mrs. Lois Brobst. These girls spent many hours gathering and delivering furniture, clothing and food for one of our needy families in the Orient area. With money earned in their food booth they provided some new clothing and Thanksgiving dinner for this family.

I'm sure Christmas will have more meaning for all of these fine teenagers because they have helped those in need.

signs of affection or appreciation.

He had the nerve to say I should be thankful that he isn't an alcoholic or a run-around.

I have tried discussing this with him, but he gets furious and says I expect too much, that he loves me and that is that.

I need more than bread and board. I feel like a housekeeper and a mistress. It would take so little for me to feel just great. He reads your column. Maybe you can get to him.

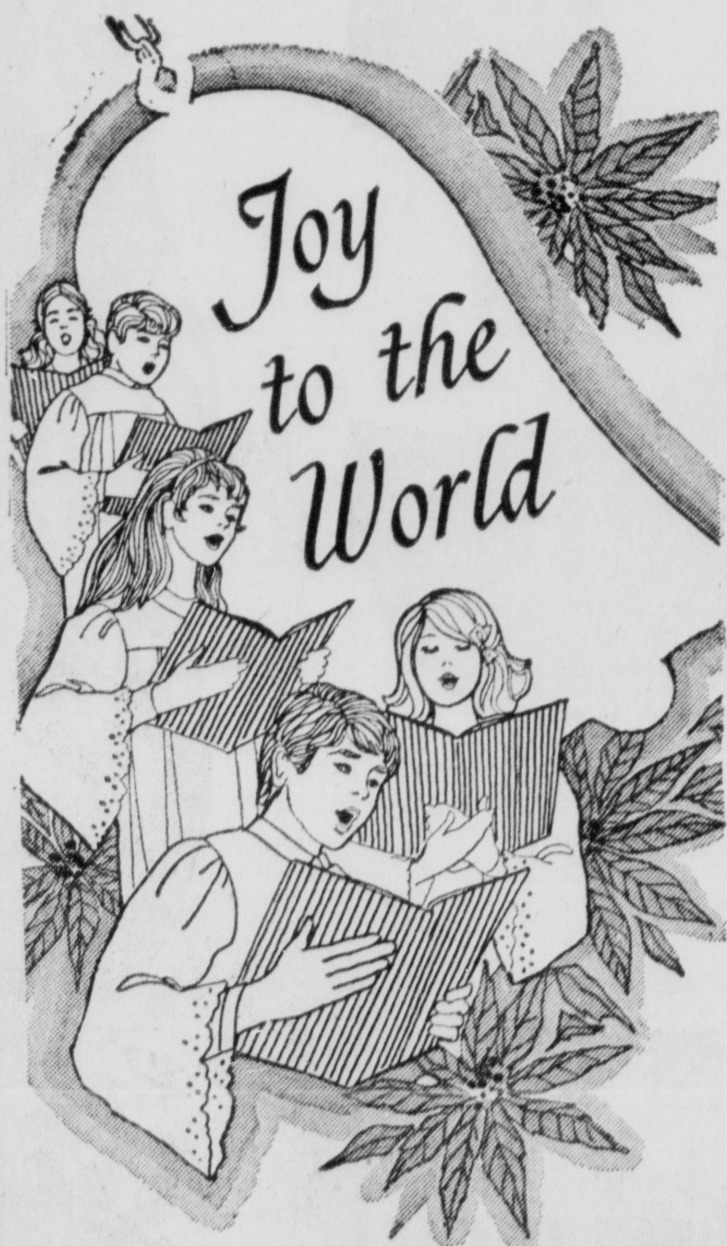

UNHAPPY
DEAR UNHAPPY: If you've discussed it with him and can't make any headway, quit talking about it. (From now on, it's not "discussion," it's nagging.) You may have to accept this non-verbal man the way he is. It's not what a man says, it's what he does that conveys the real message.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning that woman who saw a man sneak into her neighbor's house through the garage door in the wee hours of the morning, noticed he stayed an hour and 50 minutes and then departed. I'm sure I am the man.

But that's not half of it, Abby. I was on my way to her house, but spotted her husband's car at home (he was supposed to be in Seattle) so, as I am not one to waste an opportunity, I visited her neighbor, who had previously caught me sneaking into her neighbor's house, but had the presence of mind to write to me instead of to Dear Abby.

This will not seem too confusing if you will remember that moral indignation is nothing but jealousy with a halo.

Police, 'Street People' Join In Yule Spirit

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — The pre-Christmas night in Lawrence was quiet and cold. Among a group of young people, a child of 2 stood and listened. And then songs of Christmas swelled and echoed down the city street.

A group of about 30 Lawrence "street people" had come to the Lawrence police station Saturday night in a gesture to bring a measure of peace to troubled relations.

The "street people" are young persons who live near the University of Kansas campus.

Their appearance and life style have caused friction in the past. In April, in July and again this month, the Lawrence street people and city police had clashed in bitter and bloody fighting which left two people dead, others injured and more than a million dollars in property damage.

But now it was Christmas time and the spirit of the season had touched everyone.

On Saturday morning, a card arrived at the Rock Chalk Cafe, a gathering place for many youths. It was addressed to "The Street People." Inside was handwritten, "To the Street People" plus the printed message, "Merry Christmas, and Peace, Good Health, Happiness in the New Year."

The card was signed, "Lawrence Police Department."

It was not the "official" police department Christmas card and it wasn't clear who had sent it. But privately there was speculation in the police department offices that one of the men had done it on his own.

No matter who sent the card, it touched those who gathered that morning in the Rock Chalk.

Barni Mitchell, a young woman who lives in Kansas City but spends many weekends in Lawrence with friends, began to sketch out the idea for a Christmas poem.

"I was working with 'Season's Greetings' but it wouldn't work out," she said.

She had tried making the letters of "Season's Greetings" be the first letter of each line of the poem.

Then she changed to "Merry Christmas." And "I wrote that in about three minutes. It really came easy."

So Barni and others decided they would carol that night at the police station. They began arriving about 10:30. Barni and other organizers were the last to arrive and they found most of the group waiting somewhat apprehensively across the street from the police station.

They began walking across the street singing—just a little off key.

After they sang "Jingle Bells," Barni and another girl took their poster-size Christmas card to the policemen who had gathered at the door of the station.

"I was really scared at first," Barni said. "There were about five of them all standing around the door. They were all smiling and I can't really remember what they said."

"But they read the poem and said it was really nice and a very true poem. . . ."

Barni's poem:

"Men are different Every one Running from a different fear
Running from a different star
Yet
Christ said a men are brothers
no matter
How different our life styles may be,
Ruled by His love are we all.
Though each Individual has his own dreams,
Separate from the others,

The fact remains that we are all brothers and Must act accordingly.

And in this season when love is in the hearts of all men we must Strive for an understanding.

The poem was signed "Season's Greetings from the Rock Chalk River City Citizens."

"It's important," Barni said Monday. "It's important to us just as much as anybody else. We love Lawrence just as much as anybody else or we wouldn't be here. We want to see it turn into an ideal community, too."

Jewish Celebrate Hanukkah Arrival

NEW YORK (AP) — Jews around the world began the eight-day observance of Hanukkah at sundown Tuesday, commemorating the victory more than 2,000 years ago of a small band called the Maccabees over a Syrian tyrant.

According to tradition, the Maccabees found a lamp with oil for only one day as they were cleansing and rededicating the temple in Jerusalem. But the lamp burned for eight days, giving rise to the custom of lighting candles during the holiday, also known as the Festival of Lights.

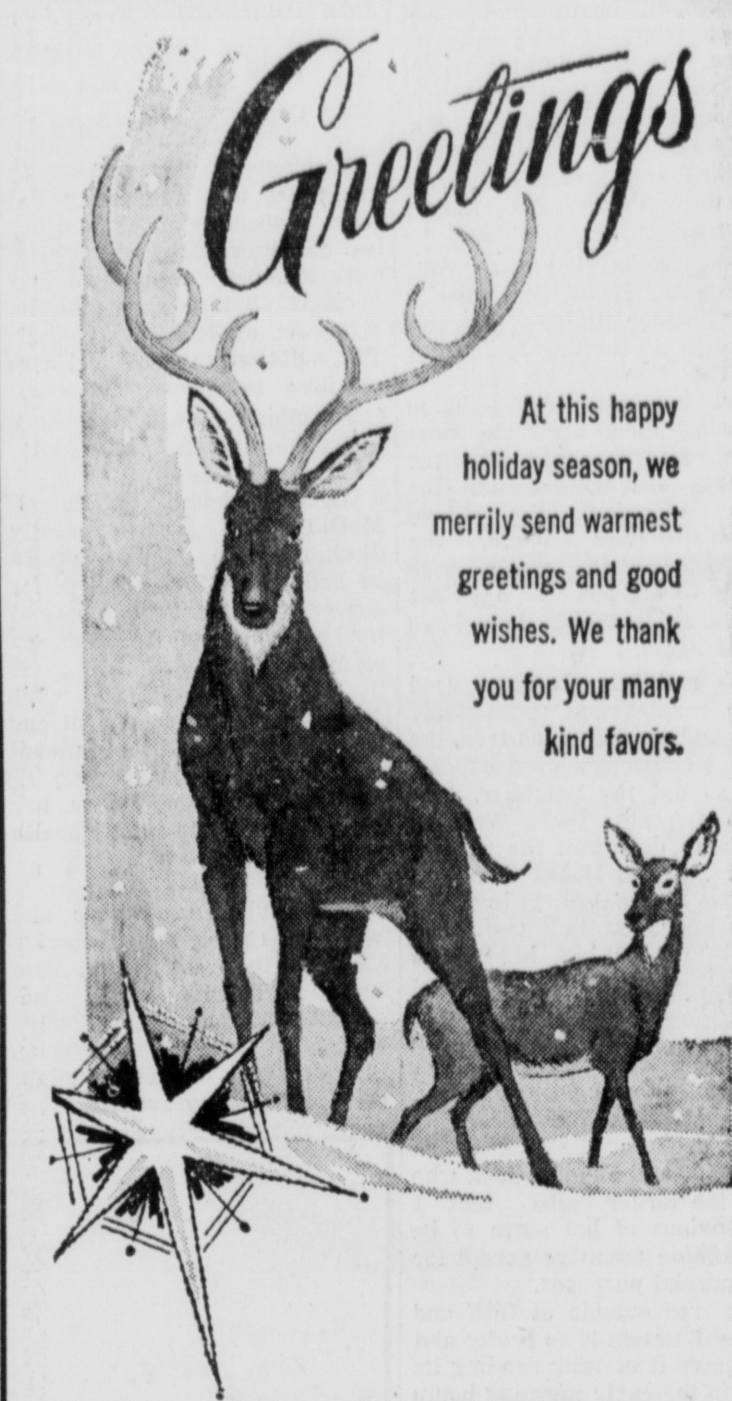

JOY TO THE WORLD — Christmas carols were sung Sunday evening by a group of approximately 40 persons from Community United Methodist Church. They sang as they walked to Kearns Nursing Home where they presented a concert directed by Marc Davis. Each patient at the home received a Christmas gift. The group sang at homes of other shut-ins as they walked back to the church for a social hour.

May the Star that blazed in the heavens on the night of His birth shine upon you and yours, bringing much Christmas joy.

Westfall Drops Encounter To Wehrle Memorial, 75-60

Wehrle Memorial jumped out to an early lead and stayed there as they downed the Mustangs of Westfall, 75-60, Tuesday on the Wehrle floor.

Westfall was never ahead in the contest and trailed 14-8 at the end of the first period, fell behind 35-26 at halftime, was down 56-44 at the close of the third quarter and ended on the short end of a 75-60 count.

The Mustangs rallied in the third quarter and pulled to within four points of Wehrle but Memorial came right back and took the game away from the Mustangs.

Bruce Beatty paced Westfall with 19 points, Jerry Williams and Larry Kempton had 12 apiece, Randy Alkire 10, Larry Harris seven and John Valasek and Joe Clem each added one to complete the Mustang scoring.

WURASEK had 20 markers, Metzger added 16 and Pettiford has 12 to lead the Wehrle attack.

Wehrle outshot the Mustangs from the floor hooping 31 buckets to 16 for Westfall but the Scarlet and Grey converted 29 of 36 from the charity stripe and Wehrle netted 12.

Rebounding honors went to Wehrle 35 to 23 and Alkire, Williams and Kempton each pulled down seven for the Mustangs.

Turnovers were even in the fray with each team misplaying the ball 17 times.

Westfall is now 5-4 on the season and will be back in action on Jan. 8 when they travel to Logan Elm to meet the Braves.

Weather Lets Up For Bowl Practice

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The Ohio State and Stanford football teams were able to practice outside Tuesday with a letup in the inclement weather but the West Coast representatives for the Rose Bowl had better fortune than did the Midwest-erners.

"It was awfully slippery and there were mud holes," said Coach Woody Hayes of the Big Ten champions. "We had trouble with pass receiving and some of them looked like they never saw the ball before."

Kentucky State Remains AP Poll Leader

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kentucky State might have held onto its top ranking in the Top Twenty college division basketball poll of the Associated Press this week, but it was two Louisiana teams that made the big splash in the rankings.

Louisiana State of New Orleans rocketed into contention by soaring from ninth to the runnerup spot, and right behind LSU was Southwestern Louisiana, buried in 19th place a week ago.

Both, however, still have plenty of ground to cover before taking those final steps needed to replace Kentucky State, which attracted nine of the 14 first-place votes, despite being idle last week.

Kentucky State, 5-0, attracted 258 points in the balloting by sports writers and sportscasters throughout the country. LSU-NO 8-0, picked up 167 points and SW Louisiana, also 8-0, got two top votes and 162 points. LSU-NO moved up after two victories last week and SW Louisiana won the Bayou Classic.

Stephen F. Austin, 5-2, got one first-place vote and 148 points in dropping from second to fourth. Howard Payne, No. 7, the Tennessee State, No. 3, each got one top vote.

The rest of the Top Ten was No. 5 Ashland, which dropped from third; No. 6 Cheyney State; No. 8 Philadelphia Textile, and No. 10 Oral Roberts. Tennessee State was the new team in the top Ten moving up from 12th to ninth.

Issel Leads Colonels To Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dan Issel might be one of the smallest centers in the American Basketball Association, but his statistics are growing taller and taller.

The 6-foot-7 rookie pivot man considered more of a pro prospect at forward than center when he finished an All-American career at Kentucky last spring, led the Kentucky Colonels to a 116-109 victory over Pittsburgh Tuesday night with 40 points and 29 rebounds.

Issel had been averaging better than 26 points and almost 13 rebounds a game, but in the last six games, his figures were 33.5 and 15.

The game was the nightcap of a doubleheader at Louisville, where Indiana came from behind to beat the Floridians 131-123 in the opener. In other games, Larry Cannon led Denver past Memphis 104-102 and Texas shattered a club scoring record with a 160-122 rout over Carolina.

Issel set a club record with his rebounds, grabbing three in the final minute. Kentucky had little trouble after building a nine point halftime lead as Pittsburgh could get no closer than 10 in the final half.

Chicago Bulls Rip Cavaliers, 121-80

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cleveland Cavaliers have more reason to hate the establishment than any hippie. An 0-28 record can build plenty of dislike.

That's the figure the Cavaliers reached against established clubs Tuesday night when they lost to the Chicago Bulls 121-80 and continued toward the worst record in National Basketball Association history.

The only three victories Cleveland has managed in 39 games this season have been against the other two expansion clubs in the league, Buffalo and Portland.

In other games, Philadelphia overcame Phoenix 133-129 in overtime, Seattle clipped the New York Knicks 119-103 and Atlanta tripped Los Angeles 119-115.

Grid Coaches Change Faster Than Lineups

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—If you think the unemployment rate is high in the United States, take a glance at the risky profession of coaching football.

With the regular college and professional seasons barely over, the coaching fraternity has had more openings than a busy dentist.

Some 18 coaches who started the season at major colleges are no longer on the job, although four of them have turned up elsewhere.

That includes highly successful Bob Blackman of Dartmouth, who was to be officially named head coach at Illinois today. The Illinois athletic board tried to fire Jim Valek during the season but his players stood up for him and he was allowed to finish out the campaign.

Others who latched on elsewhere include Mike McGee, who went from East Carolina to Duke to replace the dismissed Tom Harp; Bill Peterson, who departed Florida State for the dual job of head coach and athletic director at Rice, and Jim Pitman, who left Tulane for Texas Christian shortly after winning the Liberty Bowl. Bo Hagan had resigned at Rice while Fred Taylor was let out at TCU.

Jobs still open include Dartmouth; Florida State; Harvard, where John Yovicsin resigned on doctor's orders; Iowa, where Ray Nagel stepped down after being fired and quickly rehired last spring, and Tulane.

Sonny Randle, a former pro star, was elevated from an assistant's job to replace McGee at East Carolina.

In other moves, Don James a Colorado aide, took over for the resigned Dave Puddington at Kent State; Fran Curci of Tampa, a former Miami, Fla. quarterback, returned to his alma mater, where Charlie Tate quit early in the season and Walt Kichefski finished up as interim coach.

Harry Gamble of Lafayette succeeded Bob Odell, who resigned at Penn, and was in turn replaced by Neil Putnam, an assistant at Yale. Joe McMullen of San Jose State took ill during the season and Dewey King, who took over, was later given the job for next year, as well.

Three Virginia schools named their head men. Assistants Don Lawrence and Bob Thalman replaced George Blackburn and Vito Ragazzo at Virginia and VMI, respectively, while Virginia Tech picked Charlie Coffey, defensive coordinator at Virginia Tech, to succeed Jerry Clairborne. Lloyd Eaton stepped down at Wyoming and assistant Fritz Shurmur moved up.

In addition, Ben Wilson of Wichita State and Rick Tolley of Marshall were killed, along with many of their players, in plane crashes.

At least 11 small colleges also lost their coaches for one reason or another.

The coaching upheaval has spread into the pros. Three of the 26 teams have openings today and several others reportedly could have before too long.

Phil Bengtson resigned Tuesday after three years as Vince Lombardi's successor with the Green Bay Packers. Cleveland's Blanton Collier and Houston's Wally Lemm have announced their retirements.

Elsewhere, J. D. Roberts served on an interim basis after replacing Tom Fears in mid-season at New Orleans and George Allen does not expect to have his contract renewed at Los Angeles. Others said to be on shaky ground include Buffalo's John Rauch, San Diego's Charlie Waller, Washington's Bill Austin, Chicago's Jim Dooly and Philadelphia's Jerry Williams.

Alex Webster, who guided the New York Giants to their best record in seven years, was rehired Tuesday for one year—the term he insisted on—at a reported $400,000. Earlier, Boston's John Mazur, who succeeded Clive Rush in midseason, was signed for another year.

The heralded meeting between the Big G and Big Mac takes place tonight in college basketball.

The Big G, otherwise known as 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore of the University of Jacksonville, and Big Mac, 7-foot Jim McDaniels of Western Kentucky face each other in Freedom Hall in Louisville, Ky.

A capacity crowd is expected to watch the clash of the giants as well as a test of two unbeaten nationally ranked teams. Jacksonville is No. 4 in the Associated Press poll, Western Kentucky 10th. Each boasts a 5-0 record.

Top-ranked UCLA, idle for 10 days, romped to its fifth in a row Tuesday night. The unbeaten Bruins crushed Missouri 94-75 behind the combined 57 points of Sidney Wicks and Curtis Rowe. Wicks scored 20, Rowe 28.

Kentucky, No. 7 in the AP poll, rebounded from its defeat by Purdue last week, and defeated Oregon State 84-78. Ninth-ranked Drake made it seven in a row by overwhelming Minnesota 83-66.

There were some surprises among the AP Second Ten.

Indiana No. 11 with George McGinnis scoring 33 points, rolled over Butler 111-94, but North Carolina, St. John's of New York and New Mexico State No. 17, 19 and 20, respectively, were beaten.

Utah whipped North Carolina 105-86 led by Mike Newlin's 30 points. Boston College, paced by Jim O'Brien's 26 points, snapped the six-game winning streak of St. John's 69-66. New Mexico State fell before New Mexico 72-66.

Michigan won its own Michigan Invitational tourney by beating Wyoming 94-76 as Dan Fife showed the way with 20 points. California landed third place by beating Harvard 77-74.

Johnny Neumann, the No. 1 collegiate scorer, came up with 53 points for Mississippi against Vanderbilt, but the Johnny Rebs were routed 130-112 by the Commodores. The 130 points set a Vanderbilt record for one game.

Two free throws by Bob Siemak with 29 seconds left gave Los Angeles Loyola an upset 63-61 victory over Cincinnati and Jake Davis' 30-foot jumper in the last second gave Pepperdine an 86-84 overtime triumph over NYU.

N.C. State handed Davidson its first defeat 77-64, while in other games Fordham won its seventh by shading Miami, Fla., 85-83. Chicago Loyola humbled Cornell, 82-69. Duke downed Dayton 70-64. Colorado squeaked past Texas Tech, 67-66. Massachusetts trounced Hofstra 87-60 and Brigham Young edged Santa Clara, 68-67.

Ivy Leaguers Join Shrine East Team

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—

The Ivy Leaguers, back in the East-West Shrine Football game after 18 years, will give a good account of themselves, predicts East Coach John Pont.

"I can tell you that the Ivy League plays good football," Pont said Tuesday as the players for the Jan. 2 game began arriving here.

The Cincinnati-Baltimore playoff game Saturday matches the team with the longest winning streak in the American Football Conference against the team with the best record, but for imposing opposite forces the Detroit-Dallas showdown later in the day has a big edge.

When the Lions and Cowboys collide at 4 p.m. EST in a game that will be nationally televised by CBS, it is likely that an immediate slugfest will take place along the line of scrimmage, where Dallas' No. 1 ranked rushers will take on Detroit's No. 1 ranked defenders.

The ringleader for the Cowboy running backs is, surprisingly, a rookie—Duane Thomas, who gained 803 yards for a 5.3 average during the regular season. Detroit's best was Mel Farr, who gained 717 yards for a 4.3 average before separating his shoulder. He remains a question-mark for Saturday's game.

While the battle on the ground takes place, each team likely will be wary about putting the ball in the air since both have been particularly adept at missing interceptions. Detroit tied Minnesota for the NFC lead with 28, Dallas was next with 24.

The individual leaders were Dick LeBeau for Detroit with nine and Charlie Waters for Dallas with five. LeBeau's figures gave him the NFC championship in that department.

Two AFC statistical champions will be on display at Baltimore when the Bengals, with seven consecutive victories, and the Colts, with an 11-2-1 record, tangle in a game that will be nationally televised at 1 p.m. EST, by NBC.

Jim Duncan provided the Colts with the most exciting kickoff returning in the AFC by averaging 35.4 yards a return. Dave Lewis supplied the Bengals with the top long-distance punting with a 46.2 average on 79 punts.

The Bengals and Colts never have met before but the two coaches—Cincinnati's Paul Brown and Don McCafferty of Baltimore—know each other well. McCafferty was coached by Brown when he was at Ohio State.

The Lions and Cowboys, who each have won five straight, did not meet this season. They last played in 1968 with Dallas winning 59-13.

Wooster Surprises Ashland 73-70 In Cage Tournament

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It took two overtimes to do it, but unranked Wooster surprised small college title contender Ashland 73-70 in the finals of the Marion College Basketball Tournament Tuesday night.

The Scots overtook Ashland with a clutch jump shot with less than two minutes to go in regulation play, then alternated a controlled stall with an occasional scramble to upset the Eagles, fifth-ranked in the latest Associated Press small college poll.

It was Wooster's second consecutive Marion Tournament crown.

High scorer for the Scots was Mike Grenert with 16 points, just one point shy of the game-high 17 scored by Ashland junior guard David Jones.

The victory boosted Wooster's record to 7-1. Ashland stands at 6-2.

In the consolation game at Marion, Marionetta eased past Kenyon 73-65.

In Cincinnati, Bob Siemak of Loyola University of Los Angeles sank two free throws with 29 seconds remaining in the game to upset the University of Cincinnati 63-61 in non-conference action.

The Lions moved out to a comfortable 15 point lead midway through the second half only to have Cincinnati storm back to tie the game at 61-all before bowing to Siemak's charity shooting.

Cincinnati's record is now 4-2.

Loyola evened its season at 4-4. Duke University brought its record to 4-4 too, with a 70-64 victory over the hosting Dayton Flyers.

Dayton's second half lead dissolved behind 25 per cent shooting from the floor, and the Blue Devils moved ahead for good after a flashy 10-point scoring burst with about 12 minutes remaining.

Game scoring honors went to Dayton's senior forward Kenny May with 23 points.

Elsewhere in college competition, Youngstown crushed Hiram 60-35; Kentucky Wesleyan inched past Wittenberg 63-62; Wright State outran Rose Poly. Ind., 103-91 and Duquesne blasted Steubenville 90-50.

In tournament play, Urbana moved into the finals of the spring Arbor, Mich., competition with an 89-70 victory over Tri-State, Ind.

Westfall Drops Encounter To Wehrle Memorial, 75-60

Wehrle Memorial jumped out to an early lead and stayed there as they downed the Mustangs of Westfall, 75-60, Tuesday on the Wehrle floor.

Westfall was never ahead in the contest and trailed 14-8 at the end of the first period, fell behind 35-26 at halftime, was down 56-44 at the close of the third canto and ended on the short end of a 75-60 count.

The Mustangs rallied in the third quarter and pulled to within four points of Wehrle but Memorial came right back and took the game away from the Mustangs.

Bruce Beatty paced Westfall with 19 points, Jerry Williams and Larry Kempton had 12 apiece, Randy Alkire 10, Larry Harris seven and John Valase and Joe Clem each added one to complete the Mustang scoring.

WURASEK had 20 markers, Metzger added 16 and Pettiford has 12 to lead the Wehrle attack.

Wehrle outshot the Mustangs from the floor hooping 31 buckets to 16 for Westfall but the Scarlet and Grey converted 29 of 36 from the charity stripe and Wehrle netted 12.

Rebounding honors went to Wehrle 35 to 23 and Alkire, Williams and Kempton each pulled down seven for the Mustangs.

Turnovers were even in the fray with each team misplaying the ball 17 times.

Westfall is now 5-4 on the season and will be back in action on Jan. 8 when they travel to Logan Elm to meet the Braves.

Weather Lets Up For Bowl Practice

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The Ohio State and Stanford football teams were able to practice outside Tuesday with a letup in the inclement weather but the West Coast representatives for the Rose Bowl had better fortune than did the Midwest-erners.

"It was awfully slippery and there were mud holes," said Coach Woody Hayes of the Big Ten champions. "We had trouble with pass receiving and some of them looked like they never saw the ball before."

Kentucky State Remains AP Poll Leader

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kentucky State might have held onto its top ranking in the Top Twenty college division basketball poll of the Associated Press this week, but it was two Louisiana teams that made the big splash in the rankings.

Louisiana State of New Orleans rocketed into contention by soaring from ninth to the runner-up spot, and right behind LSU was Southwestern Louisiana, buried in 19th place a week ago.

Both, however, still have plenty of ground to cover before taking the final steps needed to replace Kentucky State, which attracted nine of the 14 first-place votes, despite being idle last week.

Kentucky State, 5-0, attracted 258 points in the balloting by sports writers and sportscasters throughout the country. LSU-NO 8-0, picked up 167 points and SW Louisiana, also 8-0, got two 'op votes and 162 points. LSU-NO moved up after two victories last week and SW Louisiana won the Bayou Classic.

Stephen F. Austin, 5-2, got one first-place vote and 143 points in dropping from second to fourth. Howard Payne, No. 7, the Tennessee State, No. 9, each got one top vote.

The rest of the Top Ten was No. 5 Ashland, which dropped from third; No. 6 Cheyney State; No. 8 Philadelphia Textile, and No. 10 Oral Roberts. Tennessee State was the new team in the top Ten moving up from 12th to ninth.

Issel Leads Colonels To Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Dan Issel might be one of the smallest centers in the American Basketball Association, but his statistics are growing taller and taller.

The 6-foot-7 rookie pivot man considered more of a pro prospect at forward than center when he finished an All-American career at Kentucky last spring, led the Kentucky Colonels to a 116-100 victory over Pittsburgh Tuesday night with 40 points and 29 rebounds.

Issel had been averaging better than 26 points and almost 13 rebounds a game, but in the last six games, his figures were 33.5 and 15.

The game was the nightcap of a doubleheader at Louisville, where Indiana came from behind to beat the Floridians 131-123 in the opener. In other games, Larry Cannon led Denver past Memphis 104-102 and Texas shattered a club scoring record with a 160-122 rout over Carolina.

Issel set a club record with his rebounds, grabbing three in the final minute. Kentucky had little trouble after building a nine point halftime lead as Pittsburgh could get no closer than 10 in the final half.

Chicago Bulls Rip Cavaliers, 121-80

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Cleveland Cavaliers have more reason to hate the establishment than any hippie. An 0-28 record can build plenty of dislike.

That's the figure the Cavaliers reached against established clubs Tuesday night when they lost to the Chicago Bulls 121-80 and continued toward the worst record in National Basketball Association history.

The only three victories Cleveland has managed in 39 games this season have been against the other two expansion clubs in the league, Buffalo and Portland.

In other games, Philadelphia overcame Phoenix 133-129 in overtime. Seattle clipped the New York Knicks 119-108 and Atlanta tripped Los Angeles 119-113.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved wife, mother and sister, Lovina
Adelaide (Addie) Martin who passed away, Dec. 23, 1969.
Friends may think we have forgotten
When at times they see us smile,
They know little of the heartaches
That the smile hides all the while.
Days of sadness still go on before us.
Secret tears do often flow,
But the memory keeps her ever
near us.
Though she died one year ago,
Sadly missed by husband,
children, sisters and brothers.

In loving memory of our dear husband, Dad and Dad Dad, James Speakman.
Three Christmas will soon pass
since you left us.
We remember when others forget.
Only God knows how we miss you.
The gift we are sending is not so very new.
It is warm and it is torn.
Dear Jim we are sending you our hearts.
Missed and loved by his family

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Charles C.
Kocher who passed away one year ago today, December 23, 1969.
There is a sad, but sweet remembrance.
There is a memory fond and true.
There is a token of affection, Father
And a heartache still for you.
Sadly missed by wife Marie Daughters Lucille, Mildred and Mabel

Cincy Schools Cut Back Due To Budget Deficit In '71

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Board of Education will slash class time in high and junior high schools, and close down two schools as part of $3.9 million in cutbacks for 1971.

The board, which operates the 82,000 public school system, also said that kindergarten class days will be reduced by 50 per cent and all junior high and high school reserve athletics will be dropped.

The board unanimously decided on the action announced Monday because it said it anticipated a 1971 budget deficit of $5.9 million. Members cited decreased state aid and lower revenue from property tax as reasons.

Beginning in September, class time in high and junior high schools will be sliced from 160

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved wife mother and sister, Lovina
Adelaide (Addie) Martin who passed away, Dec. 23, 1970.
Friends may think we have forgotten
When at times they see us smile,
They know little of the heartaches
That the smile hides all the while.
Days of sadness still go on before
us
Sweet tears do often flow,
But the memory keeps her ever
near us
Though she died one year ago,
Sadly missed by husband,
children, sisters and brothers.

In loving memory of our dear
husband, Dad and Dad Dad, James

Three Christmas will soon pass

We remember when others forget.
Only God knows how we miss you.
The gift we are sending is not so
very new
It is worth and it is true.
Dear Jim we are sending you our hearts.
Missed and loved by his family

Bengtson Leaves, Packers Fade

By BOB GREENE
Associated Press Sports Writer
GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Confidence and camaraderie, two vital ingredients of the Green Bay Packers during the Vince Lombardi era, were less prominent this past season on the National Football League team.

Whether the Packers' decline from two-time Super Bowl champions to also-rans in the National Conference's Central Division, and Tuesday's resignation of Phil Bengtson as coach and general manager, can be traced to the apparent cooling is a point of conjecture.

The 57-year-old Bengtson's resignation ended a dismal three-year stretch that saw the Pack win 20 games while losing 21 and tying once. This year's mark of 6-8 was the worst for the Green-Gold since 1958 when they posted a 1-10-1 record.

The 1969 season saw Lombardi take over the reins of a chronic loser and elevate the club to the role of champion. Although Lombardi's public image was that of an ogre the Packer players knew better.

One of Lombardi's first moves as Packer coach-general manager was to hire Bengtson as his defensive coach. Through astute trades and recognizing his players' strong points—and their weak ones—Lombardi was able to mold a good, if not great, team.

He added confidence—his own—and demanded camaraderie. The Packers then were no longer a team, but a close-knit family.

Now, from outward appearances, the Packers are just another pro football team. The Packers are close, they are friends, but no longer are they family.

In the nine years that Lombardi coached the Packers, Bengtson's defensive team was never lower than third-best in the NFL.

Prior to the 1968 season, Lombardi stepped out of the head coach's job and gave the reins to Bengtson. The following season, Lombardi left Green Bay entirely to become head coach and vice president of the Washington Redskins. Bengtson then took over as general manager of the Packers.

To be fair, Bengtson didn't walk into a powerhouse when he took over.

Bengtson had to completely rebuild a team around the few remaining veterans.

Then the injuries began.

Besides quarterback Bart Starr, who played with arm, rib and knee injuries, the Packers lost a backup quarterback Don Horn; linebacker Dave Robinson; running backs Dave Hampton and Travis Williams and defensive tackle Rich Moore for long periods through injuries. There also were other problems with the Packers—internal problems.

"Because of a very disappointing season in 1970, and hoping that a change will improve the win-loss record of the Packers in 1971, I hereby tender my resignation to become effective Feb. 1, 1971," Bengtson said.

The Packer Board of Directors is expected to meet shortly to consider a replacement for Bengtson.

Among those rumored under consideration are George Allen, coach of the Los Angeles Rams; Bill Austin, Washington Redskins head coach and former Packer assistant; Tom Fears, former head coach of the New Orleans Saints who also was a Packer aide under Lombardi; Ara Parseghian, head coach at Notre Dame, and Starr.

Rangers Defeat Buffalo Sabres, 7-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The old Rangers had their brief moments of fun, but it wasn't enough to keep the new Rangers from skating back into a share of first place in the National Hockey League's East Division.

Moving easily behind Dave Balon's three goals within two three-goal spurts, the New York Rangers crushed the expansion Buffalo Sabres 7-2 Tuesday night for their sixth straight triumph that moved them into a first place deadlock with the Boston Bruins.

In the only other game, California felled Chicago 5-2.

Intelligence Agents Face Trial Call

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — A military judge has ruled that lawyers for Sgt. Esequiel Torres, charged in the alleged My Lai massacre, may subpoena three men said to have done the intelligence work that preceded the sweep through the hamlet.

Attorneys for Torres, 22, of Brownsville, Tex., identified the three as agents of the Central Intelligence Agency and said they would show that the agency "set the whole stage for My Lai."

The motion was granted Tuesday by Col. James A. Hagan, the military judge who will preside over the court-martial of Torres. His ruling came at another in a series of pretrial hearings for the soldier.

Attorney Charles Weltner told newsmen he believes the CIA planned to eliminate Viet Cong sympathizers by capture or assassination.

Torres' trial was tentatively set for Feb. 15.

Another My Lai defendant, Pvt. Gerald A. Smith, 22, of Chicago, lost a bid Tuesday for a hearing on the evidence in his case. He is charged with murder and indecent assault.

The military judge in Smith's case, Col. Richard Jones, ruled at a pretrial session that his lawyers had failed to show sufficient cause for such a hearing.

300 Cincy Teachers To Be Cut

CINCINNATI (AP) — About 300 teachers will be fired in the financially troubled Cincinnati public school system by September, according to John Shreve, an associated superintendent of the Cincinnati Board of Education.

Shreve, speaking in an interview Tuesday, also estimated that 350 full and parttime civil service posts will be eliminated and 15 to 17 administrative and supervisory positions sliced.

He said it is hoped that the reductions in teaching positions can be made through scheduled retirements, and resignations in June. The 80,000-pupil school system currently employs about 3400 teachers.

"The elimination of positions goes across the board," he said. "It affects almost every type of position you can name."

The staff reductions are necessary because of $3.9 million in cutbacks for 1971 announced Monday by the Board of Education which said that it has been receiving less state aid, and revenue from property taxes.

Roger Stephens, president of the Cincinnati Federation of Teachers, said that the 300 figure was higher than expected but "we've been shocked so often in the past three or four years it's getting to the point we can't tolerate it anymore." Shreve said that the first administrative post to go will be his. But he resigned in November—effective Dec. 31—to become a professor at Miami University.

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' Tuesday night special, "A World of Love" — with another all-star cast surrounded by darling children on behalf of a worthy cause—worked as entertainment, too.

Shirley MacLaine was hostess of the show supporting UNICEF. She introduced the television audience to a U.N. General Assembly chamber packed with the children of U.N. personnel, many of them in native costumes.

In the course of the hour, Julie Andrews reminisced on a Christmas theme. Richard Burton had a reading and told a story of his own childhood—in theatrical terms, too. Audrey Hepburn and a group of children sat on a Roman hillside and sang "Silent Night" in Italian. Barbra Streisand sang a sentimental song about a newborn child. All were taped additions to the basic show and only Miss Hepburn and company blended happily with the scene.

The real stars were those enchanting U.N. children, but they needed some shrewd help from Bill Cosby and Florence Henderson both with an easy way with kids.

Cosby and a group of little ones made up a fairy story. Miss Henderson led them in song and marching.

It was a gentle and moving program, just right for the time of the year, even including Cosby's pleas for UNICEF support.

Later, CBS' biweekly "60 Minutes," was a little less provocative than usual.

The first segment was an inspection of some potentially lethal toys among 2,000 collected by a Boston attorney.

Since the dinner-hour news programs had demonstrated some dangerous toys banned by the Federal Trade Commission, "60 Minutes," which had postponed the sequence for two weeks, was mildly scooped.

The toys demonstrated, however, were not on the banned list. Interviewer Mike Wallace, usually imperturbable, was so appalled by the power of a projectile from a toy cross-bow that

Spanish Violence Blamed On Commies

MADRID (AP) — Vice President Luis Carrero Blanco blamed the Communists Monday night for recent antigovernment activity in Spain and said the armed forces would be strengthened to combat it.

Carrero Blanco told the Cortes, Spain's parliament, that the Basque terrorist organization ETA uses "the apparent political affiliation of Basque separatism to cover the reality of its true function—terrorism in the service of communism."

he exclaimed "My God, that's truly a weapon!"

There was a long segment on Jerusalem and some film shot at a group encounter session at a self-help center for young drug addicts in Westport, Conn.

Brightest moments came last when Hughes Rudd took a look at some male fashion models in a parade of what the well-dressed man may—or may not—be wearing soon.

Think GIs Told Fibs On Violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Donald E. Johnson, Veterans Administrator, says a Harvard sociologist's testimony in Congress Dec. 3 was an insult to Vietnam veterans.

The sociologist, Dr. Charles J. Levy, said before the Senate Labor Committee veterans subcommittee he had found 60 Marine returnees from Vietnam to be violence prone.

The men told Levy in interviews they felt greater hostility toward South Vietnamese and American military personnel than they did toward the Viet Cong.

"It is my personal opinion," Johnson said Tuesday, "that at least some of those interviewed were telling tall war stories even, perhaps, pulling the doctor's leg."

Johnson criticized the publicity Levy's testimony received at a hearing to help returning Vietnam veterans.

"I can think of nothing more damaging or less helpful to these veterans than to be pictured in the light of this kind of testimony," Johnson said. He emphasized Levy's admission that all those interviewed were from one branch of service, from one community in the Boston area and were all white. Also, Johnson said, some of the group were not honorably discharged from the service.

"Even if these stories are true, it is an insult to infer that they are typical of most of our American veterans of the fighting in Vietnam," Johnson said.

High School Students Stage Candlelight Drive On Drugs

By EARLE JOSIAH

Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Led by four shaggy-haired youths carrying a wooden coffin depicting "the longest trip," thousands of high school students coupled Christmas caroling with a mass candlelight procession against drugs.

Singing Christmas carols and shouting antidrug slogans, the marchers clogged traffic for more than two hours Tuesday night on busy Hollywood Boulevard, then went to a nearby park where a rock concert was staged.

"All this march meant to say was, 'give us a chance,'" said John Costello. "We have a hard drug problem in this area and we must fight it."

"I think we accomplished a lot," added the 18-year-old student at South Broward High.

The march was protested by businessmen who said it would hurt last-minute Christmas shopping. During the march some stores closed, but soon reopened.

"There are drugs everywhere you turn and young people are the easiest victims," said 18-year-old John Ackley. The student at South Broward High said, however, he never touched the stuff.

"I am proud of our young people and I'll back them all the way," said Ann Ignatowicz, who paced the pavement while her son marched.

The assault on drugs was launched at McArthur High, and supporters were enlisted from several other schools in Broward County.

"We don't like the idea of the older people looking after us," said Ken Eisner, an 18-year-old student at McArthur High. "We have decided to handle the problems ourselves, and that's what we are doing tonight."

Bill Protects U.S. Investors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed and sent to President Nixon a bill that would protect the nation's investors from losses should their broker go bankrupt.

The measure was given approval on a voice vote.

Under the bill, a Security Investor Protection Corp. would be established to protect investors. Terms of the bill provide for insurance for up to $20,000 in cash losses and up to $50,000 for total losses, including securities.

The bill's passage came against the backdrop of 110 brokerage houses having failed or merged with other houses in the past two years.

Nearly all brokers would have to join the corporation, paying assessments to build a trust fund that would provide the protection.

The object of the march was to raise funds to fight drug abuse. "The struggle has just begun," said Costello.

Vision, Hearing Program Reports Issued By Nurse

Vision and hearing programs have been conducted in Williamsport and Jackson schools, according to the report of County Nurse Helen Pickers made to the County Health Board.

The children were checked by mothers trained by specialists to conduct the examinations.

The findings as reported to the department were of the 280 students checked for vision at Williamsport, eight were referred to family eye doctors. Using the audiogram to test hearing, 264 pupils were checked and six referred to family physicians.

In Jackson School, 313 were submitted to vision checks, 15 were referred to eye doctors and of those, six have received new glasses.

The audiogram test detected 13 with hearing problems. Mrs. Pickers advised that all schools have lighted arell charts and may follow the above procedure.

One child was referred to ophthalmologist in cooperation with the State program regarding strabismus (cross eyes).

Other services provided by the county nurse during December was to assist in Berger Hospital clinics, make home visits to a cancer patient as requested by a physician and to four crippled children.

Conferences with the county school superintendent and school principals completed the month's workload.

Claim Many Red-Held POWs Ignored

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — An Army officer who was imprisoned by the Viet Cong for five years says Americans are overlooking half of the men held captive in Southeast Asia.

Green Beret Maj. James Rowe, 32, of McAllen, Tex., says 770 men—about half of the estimated 1,500 held by the enemy—are imprisoned in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

But in their zeal to pressure Hanoi into releasing Americans held in North Vietnam, Americans are forgetting about those 770 men, Rowe told newsmen Tuesday.

He was held in Viet Cong prison camps in South Vietnam from his capture in October 1963 until his escape on Dec. 31, 1968.

He called on Americans to pressure the Viet Cong in South Vietnam and the Pathet Lao in Laos along with the North Vietnamese.

The Viet Cong and Pathet Lao, he said, "have enjoyed an anomalous status because no attention has been focused on them."

Rowe said he favors raids on POW camps similar to the one in North Vietnam recently which found a camp empty.

He acknowledged that such raids would risk the prisoners' lives, but he asked, "How many men are going to die in those camps if they're not gotten out?"

Rowe said he was soon to be executed at the time of his escape. He said that of eight other Americans held in prison camps with him during his five years in captivity, three died of starvation, one was executed and one was dying when released.

Intelligence Agents Face Trial Call

FT. MC PHERSON, Ga. (AP) — A military judge has ruled that lawyers for Sgt. Esequiel Torres, charged in the alleged My Lai massacre, may subpoena three men said to have done the intelligence work that preceded the sweep through the hamlet.

Attorneys for Torres, 22, of Brownsville, Tex., identified the three as agents of the Central Intelligence Agency and said they would show that the agency "set the whole stage for My Lai."

The motion was granted Tuesday by Col. James A. Hagan, the military judge who will preside over the court-martial of Torres. His ruling came at another in a series of pretrial hearings for the soldier.

Attorney Charles Weltner told newsmen he believes the CIA planned to eliminate Viet Cong sympathizers by capture or assassination.

Torres' trial was tentatively set for Feb. 15.

Another My Lai defendant, Pvt. Gerald A. Smith, 22, of Chicago, lost a bid Tuesday for a hearing on the evidence in his case. He is charged with murder and indecent assault.

The military judge in Smith's case, Col. Richard Jones, ruled at a pretrial session that his lawyers had failed to show sufficient cause for such a hearing.

300 Cincy Teachers To Be Cut

CINCINNATI (AP) — About 300 teachers will be fired in the financially troubled Cincinnati public school system by September, according to John Shreve, an associated superintendent of the Cincinnati Board of Education.

Shreve, speaking in an interview Tuesday, also estimated that 350 full and parttime civil service posts will be eliminated and 15 to 17 administrative and supervisory positions sliced.

He said it is hoped that the reductions in teaching positions can be made through scheduled retirements, and resignations in June. The 80,000-pupil school system currently employs about 3,400 teachers.

"The elimination of positions goes across the board," he said. "It affects almost every type of position you can name."

The staff reductions are necessary because of $3.9 million in cutbacks for 1971 announced Monday by the Board of Education which said that it has been receiving less state aid, and revenue from property taxes.

Roger Stephens, president of the Cincinnati Federation of Teachers, said that the 300 figure was higher than expected but "we've been shocked so often in the past three or four years it's getting to the point we can't tolerate it anymore."

Shreve said that the first administrative post to go will be his. But he resigned in November—effective Dec. 31—to become a professor at Miami University.

Production Of Christmas Trees Specialized Industry

By BARTON REPERT
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Dad and the kids may go downtown every holiday season to finger needy branches and compare hues and finally settle on a Christmas tree to grace the family living room.

But they probably aren't aware that their evergreen pride and joy is the product of a multi-million dollar New York State industry, getting more and more specialized every year.

Altogether more than 150,000 acres in the state are planted with Christmas trees, harvested by about 1,500 growers, according to estimates by the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

But the big amateur Christmas tree-planting boom of past years has bogged down and the New York crop of about three million trees a year is coming to market from a smaller number of individual producers, who now work full-time to handle a large-scale output.

"The small and inefficient grower is going to be forced out of the business, because he can't afford the best machinery and techniques," commented Leslie Stutzman, Stutzman and his sons farm about 1,200 acres near Hornell in the state's Southern Tier.

About 80 per cent of New York trees are sold within the state, bringing in about $2 million in annual profits but they satisfy only about 60 per cent of the total in-state demand, according to Burton Buell, a senior marketing representative for the state government. Buell said other trees have to be brought in from neighboring states and Canada to fill the holiday demand.

Several growers said that because of higher profit margins and an increasing demand they are shifting much of their production from Scotch pine to what Buell dubs "The Cadillac of the Christmas tree business" — Douglas fir.

Douglas fir requires up to 18 years to reach a marketable height of six or seven feet, compared with about 10 years for Scotch pine, a hearty tree that remains very popular in the state. But the fir trees also carry on a considerably higher price.

Several growers report they have pared down their labor costs for cutting by permitting adventurous would-be woodmen to cut their own Christmas trees — sold fresh off the stump.

Stutzman said he does a thriving cut-your-own business at his Steuben County farm, offering free coffee, sleigh and snowmobile rides, plus a Santa Claus to give out lollipops to small children.

Grower F. M. Wroblewski, whose tree farm is only about 25 miles southeast of Buffalo, said the weekend tree-chopping expeditions from the city area are usually a "family affair," and always quite a sight.

"The people with the smallest cars cut the biggest trees," he noted.

When the time comes to dispose of the Christmas tree, cooperative extension agents have a suggestion for these with flower gardens. Cut off the tree branches and place them over the perennials as a winter mulch. This can be done right over the snow.

Danish Christmas Changes Little Through The Years

By OLE DUUS
Associated Press Writer

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Danish Christmas 1970 will be pretty much like Danish Christmas 1870, only it will be more expensive, more extravagant, more commercial. For even if Christmas now is what makes the difference between profit and loss on the year's balance in much retail trade, many old traditions do survive.

Christmas Tree Has Come Long Way To Ohio

EDITOR'S NOTE — The following article was reprinted from the December issue of "Echoes," the official publication of the Ohio Historical Society.

The Christmas tree has come a long way — across many lands, seas and centuries — to become an Ohio parlor decoration around which the holiday festivities are centered.

According to the records, the symbolic use of trees had its origin in Egypt long before the Christian era. The palm tree is known to have put forth a branch every month and a branch of this tree with twelve shoots on it was used in Egypt at the time of the winter solstice as symbol of the year completed.

A tree with hanging toys, a Roman custom described by the poet Vergil, was a forerunner of the decorated Christmas tree.

There is no doubt that the German settlers of America brought the custom into the new world and eventually into Ohio. German settlers of Pennsylvania had used the tree as a holiday symbol as early as 1800. Many of these Germans migrated to Ohio and brought the usage of the decorated tree with them.

Cincinnati lays claim to distinction with early records of the "Tannenbaum," diaries of the Krausnick and Kefuss families reporting a holiday tree as early as 1835.

In 1847, August Imgaard, a German immigrant, brightened up Christmas for his brother's children in Wooster with a spruce tree decorated with paper ornaments and a metal star made by a local blacksmith. After that, the idea caught on and all Wooster adopted the idea of a decorated tree. Ten years after Imgaard's first tree was trimmed, the Ohio General Assembly made Christmas a legal holiday.

The nation's first Christmas tree was the General Grant Tree in General Grant National Park, California, dedicated May 1, 1926, by Mayor Henry Leonard Suderman of Sanger, Calif. A Christmas ceremony had been held at the tree at high noon on Christmas Day 1925. The tree honoring the native Ohioan had a maximum horizontal diameter of 40.3 feet at the base. At 200 feet above the ground, the diameter was about 12 feet. The tree was 267 feet high and from 3,500 to 4,000 years old.

Christmas trees are grown today in virtually every county of Ohio and are cultivated commercially in over half the state's eighty-eight counties. The bulk of these trees are grown east of Columbus and north of Zanesville.

Epiphany Listed On Early Church Calendars

Among some peoples who were early settlers in Canada, United States, or Latin American countries, Epiphany was more of an occasion than Christmas Day.

Epiphany was in church calendars after the 8th century A.D. as a separate feast commemorative of the Manifestation of Christ to the Magi—when Gaspar, Melchior, Balthasar were led by their guiding star to the Creche, bestowed their gifts, and did obeisance to the new-born King of Kings.

During the chronologically termed Middle Ages of Europe, miracle plays were staged in church sanctuaries or squares to impress the significance of the visit of the Magi. The productions, in actuality the progenitors of Western stage drama, gradually were transformed under secular influence to pageants. In England, after Henry VIII made himself an example for his people, in the role of Defender of the Faith, observances of Twelfth Night began popular deviation from religious significance.

Aptly entitled "Lords of Misrule" presided over the celebrations, with gambling accompanying the juggling of wassail and feasting on boar's head under pagan mistletoe.

One marked change in recent years is that Christmas begins earlier and earlier, with stores and shops starting their Christmas campaigns as early as late October, leaving many Danes thoroughly tired of Christmas long before The Big Evening.

Christmas Eve is the climax in Denmark. It is the only time of the year when vicars, preaching to almost empty churches most of the year, have standing room only for late comers. But then vicars also cleverly schedule Christmas Eve services to be over in time for everyone to be home for Christmas Eve dinner at 7 p.m.

The traditional menu is roast pork or duck with red cabbage and fat gravy, preceded by rice boiled in milk, or, more frequently in recent years, followed by boiled rice in whipped cream with lots of cut almonds.

Rice is indispensable, not because Danes are such great rice fans, but because one very old tradition says that the rice dish must contain one whole almond. The person who finds this almond in his helping is entitled to the "almond gift," which may be anything from a bar of soap to a book or a box of chocolates. (Mysteriously, the almond has a tendency to end up with the youngest child. Also, family peace is frequently preserved by the appearance of several almonds and the ready presence of several gifts.)

In the countryside, many families still observe the very old tradition of "not forgetting the pixies," by placing a bowl of boiled rice in the stables, in the hay-loft or elsewhere for the pixies to feast on. The folk lore has it that families who forget the pixies on Christmas Eve will be struck by severe misfortune.

After Christmas Eve dinner, there is Christmas tree dancing and singing. In recent years prosperity has made the two-Christmas-tree one indoors, one in garden or on balcony family quite common in Denmark. But there is no denying that the art of Christmas tree dancing is on the decline. In many homes, dancing is cut to a minimum. Small children still like it, teenagers join only reluctantly and are none too familiar with the old hymns and songs.

The exchange of Christmas gifts is an increasingly exhausting, time-and money-consuming affair. Statistics show that an average four-member family last year spent about 100 dollars on Christmas gifts for each other and for other relatives and friends.

But above all, Christmas in Denmark is synonymous with eating, beginning with Christmas Eve dinner and continuing with lavish Christmas family lunches on Christmas Day and again the next day. On Christmas Day one half of Denmark goes visiting and lunching with the other half; the following day traffic is reversed, the other half lunching with the first.

One Christmas fixture in Danish newspapers, on radio and TV is advice by medical experts on how to avoid overeating, or, at least, reduce the painful effects of same.

Yule Tree Light Inventor Develops Wireless System

By EDWARD S. KITCH Associated Press Writer CHICAGO (AP) — Christmas tree lights have created a happy glow in the life of Albert V. Sadacca, who invented them 53 years ago.

As a young boy in 1914, Sadacca devised the first string of lights when he was faced with the necessity for moving large stocks of tiny elec. bulbs from his father's New York City novelty shop.

"We lived in an apartment near the shop and I was the errand boy," he recalled in his office in the Merchandise Mart here. "I used to deliver little celluloid canaries that sat on a perch in a tiny cage and were illuminated by battery-powered bulbs."

At about that time he read that a number of children had been burned in a big fire caused by candles igniting a Christmas tree, and the idea occurred to him: "Why not Christmas lights that are electric?" His father had a big inventory of bulbs that he was anxious to clear from the shelves and Sadacca wired a set in series.

"The first sets didn't sell very well," continued the dark-haired mustache Sadacca, who is of Spanish ancestry. "But the next year we colored the tiny bulbs and they sold better. Electricity was becoming more and more popular in stores and homes. Then we decided to make a series set for use with 110-volt house current using a larger bulb."

The Sadaccas — Albert V. and brothers Henri, Leon and Nessim — then launched into the manufacture of Christmas light outfits, as they were called. In the early 1920s they founded the Noma Electric Co., of which Albert became the first general manager.

Now in his 60s, he is president and chief executive officer of a successor company, Noma World Wide, Inc., which is still manufacturing what he likes to call "festoons of lights." His son, Albert V. Sadacca II, 26, is executive vice president of the firm. He has already showed the family knack for inventiveness by creating a type of battery-operated light to decorate women's formal gowns and elaborate hairdos.

The elder Sadacca also remains innovative in the field. He is now developing a wireless light system and is working on a way to produce Christmas light assemblies by machine instead of the intricate hand assembly now required.

"One of the important things in this business is that the truth of that old adage, 'There's nothing new under the sun,' applies to Christmas lights," commented Sadacca. "We started with little lights and they grew bigger and bigger. Now tininess is coming back."

It started in Japan and Italy with the simultaneous development of the tiny elongated bulb.

"They were made for novelties and I decided to create a new light set with them," he continued. "So I made the first 110-volt string of lights using miniature bulbs and brought them to the U. S. States. And the same thing happened as in our first effort. People were not accustomed to them. It was a flop the first year."

But the next year the firm produced 5,000 sets. A few years later, after Sadacca convinced several large retail chains to feature the sets, the idea took off.

"The use of miniature lights may displace the larger lights that have ruled the lighting roost for 35 years," he predicts. "And possibly in a period of a few years they will be out entirely."

Largest Living Decorated Tree Is Located

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP) — The largest living decorated tree, according to a nation-wide contest, is in Wilmington, N. C. And the town officials have been decorating it for more than 40 years.

It all started in 1928 when J.E.L. Wade, then Commissioner of Public Works, was responsible for disposing of beautiful young trees once the Christmas holiday was over. He was tired of watching the slaughter of trees and set out to create within the minds of children the idea of decorating living trees instead of dead ones.

By way of setting an impressive example, a 110 foot tree with an 85 foot limb spread located in Hilton Park, close enough to the Public Works Department so employees on duty could watch over it, was decorated. That was the beginning of an annual holiday tradition. (The tree is only 70 feet high now due to hurricane damage.)

In 1969 the decorations included ten truck loads of spanish moss and 5,000 lights attached to 10,000 feet of stringers.

In recent years, approximately 250,000 people came to see the Christmas tree. While it is "old hat" to many of the local residents, they still come out to the tree sometime during the holiday season to "make t Christmas season complete."

GREATER LOVE hath no Jew than he lay down his Christmas Eve for his Christian brother, and here is Albert Rosen, 52, who offered to work without pay for a Christian on Christmas Eve, learning to tend bar in Milwaukee, Wis., for John Volpe Jr., who hasn't been home on Christmas Eve in nine years. Volpe is teaching Rosen to make a martini, and Rosen probably doesn't know you can't make a martini right—only the other fellow can, as any martini drinker knows.

French Give Canadians Many Holiday Customs

In Quebec, customs from France lend their special touch to a Canadian Christmas.

France gave Canada the "creche," gatherings after midnight Mass with family and friends, savory pork pies called "tourtieres," collecting gifts from door to door for the less privileged persons of the community.

After mass on Christmas Eve, the people of Quebec gather at homes of loved one to participate in a night-long feast called "reveillon."

There is no question first town in the Americas was La Navidad, founded by Christopher Columbus at Hispaniola, Dec. 25, 1492.

Hawaiian Pine Cannot Cope With Wintry Conditions

By RON STATON
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — The President of the United States may yet light a Hawaiian Christmas tree. As long as he keeps it inside the warm White House.

The National Christmas Tree Committee wanted Hawaii's tall, long-needed Norfolk Pine to grace the White House lawn in 1974. But climatic tests showed the island pine can't cope with the cold.

Last winter, the Hawaii Forestry Division shipped two Norfolk Pines to Washington.

Card Decorating Can Be Project At Christmas

When children need a change from the toys on Christmas day, a promising project could be to let them see what they can do with the family greetings cards.

Here are some suggestions: Tape or staple cards to lengths of ribbon and hang them on walls or doors.

Make a Christmas wreath by attaching cards to a circle of cardboard.

"Frame" the cards with construction paper.

Decorate a screen with cards.

"The climate was just too harsh," says Dave Fullaway, a forestry division spokesman. "The tree placed inside did well, but the one outside turned brown in about two weeks."

Since the Norfolk Pine couldn't qualify as the National Christmas Tree, Fullaway said Hawaii would try to have one placed inside the White House.

The symmetrical trees are long-lasting and their needles don't fall off. The tree was brought to Hawaii from Norfolk Island, near Australia, about a century ago. It now grows in large numbers only on Norfolk and Hawaii islands.

For years, Hawaiians have been decorating the trees for Christmas. About 10 years ago, Dr. Howard Crawford, an enterprising Hawaii Island physician, began exporting them to the U.S. Mainland.

"We shipped about 1,100 to California in 1962 and increased to about 8,000 in 1965," Crawford said. "But in 1966, about 16,000 trees perished after they were taken out of refrigeration. Now, they all go by air."

Fullaway said 9,000 Norfolk pines were sold on the Mainland, mostly the West Coast, last year. In addition, almost 25,000 were sold in Hawaii. The local sales were boosted by a shipping strike that made it necessary to air freight mainland trees, which were sold at higher prices.

The price in Hawaii is about 60 cents per foot.

One of the drawbacks of the tree is that it has no odor. Various experiments have been tried, but Fullaway said, "We can never breed smell into trees." However, he suggested that some sort of long-lasting scent could be packaged with the trees. Crawford's solution to the problem was to "put pine oil in the room."

Fullaway called the Norfolk pine a "versatile tree," and said it has the potential of becoming a million-dollar industry. He said the trees can also be used for windbreak and watershed protection, for the timber and even as a houseplant.

But Crawford cited the shipping problems, and said development of the industry "will take capital investment and a good marketing program."

In preparation for a developing industry, the forestry division has produced 77,000 seedlings and shipped them to growers. Fullaway said it takes an average of six years to produce a Christmas tree.

As carolers sing Yule songs, we join in with wishes for a most happy holiday.

Wreaths Got Pagan Start

During this holiday season, a wide variety of colorful wreaths deck the doorways of homes in this community.

The use of wreaths at holiday time stems from the customs of Advent season — the four Sundays before Christmas.

Traditionally, Advent wreaths are made of evergreens, trimmed with ribbons and hold four candles to be lit during the Sundays of Advent.

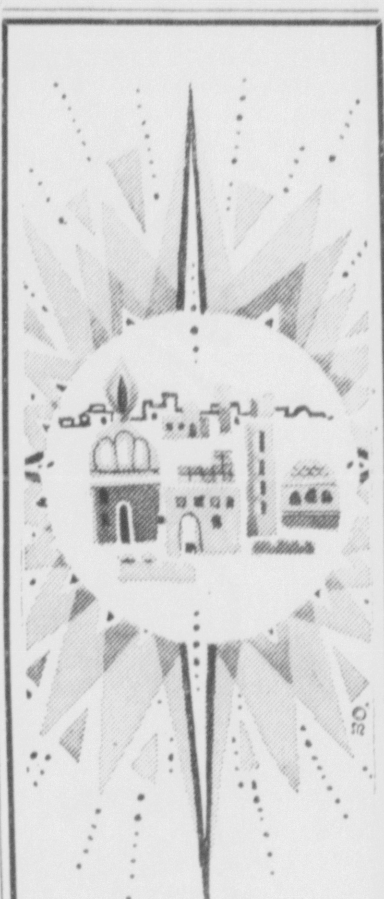

The wreath, which has no beginning or end, represents eternity and the evergreens symbolize growth and life, according to the editors of the New Book of Knowledge.

Like many other Christmas holiday customs, the Advent wreath originated in pagan ceremonies.

During the dark days of the winter solstice, the sun-worshippers of northern Europe sought to please their absent god, the sun, and persuade him to return, by using a wheel trimmed with greenery.

The wreath was made of an actual wheel, taken from a cart and wrapped in greens. Lights, too, were added.

Customs Of Christmas Come From Many Lands

Mistletoe, Santa Claus, letters to Santa, Christmas customs galore — where did they all be n?

The customs of Christmas come from many lands and many eras. They evolve from pagan ceremonies into Christian rituals. And they stretch from West to East, from North to South, as each country contributes something special and traditional to the celebrations of the holiday.

When seasonal gaiety rings out in Canada, the merriment is echoed in Mexico. When North or South Americans gather for Christmas festivities, the people of Sweden are doing the same—and so are the peoples of Holland and France and Italy and Spain and countless other European countries.

In the far East, Christian communities spread the customs of Christmas, which mingle with the year-end ceremonies observed by those of other faiths.

That the legend and lore of Christmas knows no boundaries is illustrated in the following round-up of Yuletide customs, based on information provided by the editors of the Encyclopedia International.

From the north of England comes the happy custom of the kissing bough. A large hoop, twined with greens, is decorated with apples and candles. And in the center there's mistletoe — signal for exchanging kisses.

Custom of writing letters to Santa Claus may have begun in Austria, where, long ago, it was an Advent tradition for children to write letters containing lists of what they'd like to receive on St. Nicholas' Day.

From Italy comes a most poetic addition to Christmas lore. For three weeks during the Christmas season, children traditionally go from place to place reciting Christmas poems. They expect coins in return, to buy holiday goodies.

An ancient custom that is still observed in some Swedish households today is that of "dipping bread into the pot." Each person dips a piece of bread into pork and sausage drippings and eats it for good luck.

For St. Nicholas season, it's traditional in Holland to make flat cakes called Klassjes. Once exclusively made in the form of the bishop, St. Nicholas, Klassjes now take any form of bird, beast or fish.

At Salers in central France, old-time tradition calls for a king and queen to rule over Christmas festivities. Rulers pay for the privilege, since they are "elected" by bidding at an auction held on the church steps.

A procession which blends pagan and Christmas customs is part of the legend and lore of the holiday in Ruppert, Germany. A rider on a white horse, symbolizing the horse of the pagan god Wotan, leads the parade. He is followed by Father Christmas, who is decked with ribbons and carries candy and fruit.

A Swiss custom that dates back to the Middle Ages is to start the New Year free of debts. December 6th, the feast of St. Nicholas of Myra, the first Santa Claus, is the day set to meet all monetary obligations such as rents and mortgages.

SANTA GREET'S SUBMARINE AT NORTH POLE — Santa Claus wasn't quite so busy when he greeted crewmen of the nuclear submarine USS Queenfish when it surfaced within 500 yards of the geographic North Pole Aug. 5. The photo was released when the submarine returned.

'WHERE IT'S A PLEASURE TO DO BUSINESS'

Changing Ways Of Celebrating 'Mass Of Christ'

By VELMA WESTSTYKES
Written for the Associated Press

'Tis the season to be jolly. 'Tis the season of peace on earth, good will to men. 'Tis the holiday that began as the "mass of Christ" in celebration of His birth; the holiday that still holds deep religious meaning for many, but for others is simply a time for rejoicing and merriment.

There are those vehemently opposed to celebrating Christmas with frolic and gift-giving. Their attitude is not novel. It's a throw-back to that of the Puritans who induced the English Parliament to pass a law, in 1644, that forbade the festive observance of Christmas. While this law was in effect Christmas day was officially designated a fast and market day, with shops compelled to keep open. Plum puddings and even mince pies were declared "heathen."

The Pilgrims who settled the New England states waited until we'd into the 19th century before generally observing a festive Christmas.

While Christmas began as a church celebration, it was not observed officially on December 25 until the Fourth Century. Prior to that, some had observed January 6 (Epiphany). The gospels, in telling the story of Christ's birth, do not specify a date. Mark and John do not chronicle the birth at all. Matthew and Luke both give Bethlehem as His birthplace, but only Matthew tells of the Wise Men from the East and only Luke explains the reason for coming to Bethlehem, and how the shepherds were apprised of the event. He also details the stable shelter "because there was no room for them in the inn." Matthew alone mentions the flight to Egypt and Herod's slaying of the innocents.

There has been much research and speculation about the authenticity of December 25 as the date of Christ's birth.

Because to some it seemed to matter, Chrysostom, "golden-voiced" bishop of Constantinople in the Fourth Century, came up with an argument based on the first chapter of Luke. He traced the date of Jesus' birth by way of the instance when the priest Zacharias received his revelation in the temple that he was to have a son (John) in his old age. Chrysostom figured the date on which Zacharias entered the temple was the Day of Atonement, in September. His wife, Elizabeth, Mary's cousin, was visited by Mary six months later — and Mary had just had her own miraculous experience. To Chrysostom this confirmed December as Mary's time of fulfillment. Whether that satisfies modern critics or not, it did help them to establish December 25 as the date. There have however, been other suggested reasons for choosing that date.

For instance, the Roman Saturnalia had been celebrated on December 25 and church authorities may have felt it better to introduce a new reason for a celebration — and new rites. The Christian Gauls seem to have used December 25 long before the Eastern churches. And in Britain, December 25 was a holiday long before its people became Christians. Bede wrote: "The ancient people of the Angli began the year on December 25, when we now celebrate the birth of our Lord."

It is not uncommon to set a more auspicious day to celebrate a king's or queen's birthday than the actual date. If the early church was in doubt about the real date, to pick a regularly observed pagan holiday to commemorate a Christian event among new converts was probably good religious strategy — especially if it changed the type of celebrating for the better.

As for the Christmas tree — St. Boniface is credited with introducing it in Germany, as a substitute for the sacred oak where human sacrifices were made to Odinn. Cutting down the oak, he placed a small fir there in tribute to the Christ child. Later, Luther added candles to the tree and Queen Victoria's husband, Prince Albert, brought the custom to England. German immigrants carried it to America. America has one Christmas "first" to its credit. It was the first to set up Christmas trees in public places.

Customs change and differ from country to country and even in different parts of the same country. Fireworks are commonly used for Christmas celebration only in our South. Normandy retains the old custom of children going out on Epiphany Eve to meet the Three Kings (Magi) on the highway. In parts of Mexico, preparation begins for the Posada (resting-place) on December 16. Nine families meet one another in different houses each night to re-enact the Biblical search for shelter by pleading in a Latin chant for entry. When admitted at the last room, they sing thanks together. In some Slavie countries, children are put to sleep on straw or hay on Christmas Eve to impress on them the humble birthplace of Jesus.

"FANTASY ON PARADE," reported to be the most colorful holiday program in Disneyland's history, is what Santa Claus and Mickey Mouse are calling attention to in Anaheim, Calif. It runs Dec. 19-Jan. 3, with 500 performers in 26 parades.

Take Plenty Of Snapshots At Christmas

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

Christmas Present is the main occupation of everyone at the moment but, as time slips by, it's Christmas Past that is a source of sentimental delight, each Christmas with a special memory that becomes more dear with the passing years.

Christmas memories in time to come will be even more vivid if you capture the highlights of the happiest holiday on film. Load your camera and focus on Christmas heeding these photo-taking tips:

If you see a good pose, take several pictures. One of them is sure to be great.

Take plenty of close-ups for impact and detail. Concentrate on the expressions of wonder and delight on a youngster's face, on Grandma's pleasure in the children, on the tree and decorations.

Change your position. Step up on a chair for an overall view. Stoop down to a child's level for a good shot.

Use simple equipment that eliminates fuss and bother. One new camera — an absolute gem — takes flash pictures without flash batteries. With an easy-to-operate camera, such as this one, you can concentrate on your subjects and not on the technicalities of picture-taking.

Takes pictures in a series that tells a story — a youngster struggling with the wrappings, opening the box, his delight at the gift.

For natural snapshots, shoot where the action is — when Dad's carving the turkey, the family's trimming the tree, etc.

Take pictures of everyone, including guests. They're all part of your story.

Hold the camera steady to avoid fuzzy pictures. Focus on the subject and gently squeeze the shutter.

Best wishes for a holiday season filled with happiness and good cheer. And sincere thanks for your patronage.

Englishmen Who Forget To Send Yule Cards Use The Classifieds

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
Associated Press Writer
LONDON, Eng. (AP) — Britons who forget to send their Christmas cards until it is too late — or who can't be bothered to send any at all — have an easy way out. They just place a classified advertisement in The Times of London.

Christmas card advertisements in the prestigious newspaper have become practically as much a tradition as Christmas cards themselves, with words of good cheer scattered among the ads for apartments in Belgravia, Rolls Royces for sale or companions wanted for hitchhiking treks to Afghanistan. You can find practically anything in the Times ads. But Christmas greetings, ads are rare or nonexistent in other British newspapers.

"Fatima Tima Hales-Tooke, lately of Chesham Bois, Buckinghamshire, and now living in Beirut, Lebanon, extends her greetings for Christmas and the New Year to all family and friends throughout the world," says a fairly typical ad.

Most, however, simply state that Mr. and Mrs. So-and-so are not sending Christmas cards this year, but extend greetings to their friends. Many say they intend to donate to charity the money they would have spent on cards, or apologize that illness or trips abroad have prevented them from mailing the usual greetings.

The most impressive ads appear not in the usual advertising columns, but beneath the Court Circulars that announce the daily doings of Queen Elizabeth II and her family.

Beneath a palace announcement last December that Princess Margaret had attended the Save Rave pon concert for charity ran the following: "Mr. Frederick J. Stephens of Crossacres, Pyrford Woods, Woking, Surrey, is not sending Christmas cards this year. He wishes his relatives and friends a merry Christmas and a very happy New Year."

Non-senders of cards who want to tell their friends they aren't sending cards and who want to do it beneath the lion and unicorn royal crest on the Court Circular page, have to pay two pounds (4.80 dollars) a line for their greetings. In the regular columns it costs 28 shillings (3.36 dollars) a line. Many of those who use the Court Circular page are titled, and their ads get printed above ones placed by commoners.

Just under an announcement last Christmas season that the Duke and Duchess of Kent had seen a James Bond movie was an ad saying the Duke and Duchess of Bedford regretted they wouldn't be sending Christmas cards because of a prolonged trip overseas.

Some ads are aimed at special groups. Mr. and Mrs. Philip Shane Woodwall last December advertised Merry Christmas wishes to all supporters of the Millwall soccer team. The Pipe Club of Great Britain wished good smoking in 1970 to anyone who happened to read the ad. Esmond Drury said he wished "all his 847 past pupils and friends a happy Christmas and good fishing in the New Year."

Other ads indicate the advertiser has been overwhelmed by the Christmas rush, such as: "Dr. and Mrs. Leslie D.

Weatherhad regret they cannot cope with the sending of Christmas cards this year." Or: "Thomas Widdington Sheridan sends Christmas greetings to everybody and wishes each a more prosperous New Year than he will have. No money. No cards."

Some are puzzling, such as: "Mr and Mrs. F. H. Towler LS21 SQ. Christmas cards being dispatched by computer."

Apologies for any errors or omissions." Or: "16 Took Court E. C. 4. Mr. Williams's friends, will not get cards and need not read this notice." Or: "Wombles and friends. Christmas greetings from Wimbledon. Great Uncle Bulgaria."

While most of the ads are serious and staid, some are frivolous. Others, like the following, are personal: "Annie Merrill will not be sending Alan Herbert a Christmas card this year as he has not sent her one." And there are contrary entries, such as: "Mr. and Mrs. Tim Starey are not receiving Christmas cards this year. Does nobody care?"

The ultimate ad last season was: "Peter Jolley is not placing an ad in The Times this year. He is sending Christmas cards instead."

Jamestown Christmas Held In 1607

By CLARK KINNAIRD
The London Company of adventurers who sailed away for Virginia just before Christmas 1606, enjoyed Christmas observances the following December as settlers of Jamestown. Captain John Smith's journal had notes about the occasion.

They had found that native children in the region of the Powhatan confederacy had dolls, hoops, tops (carved from acorns), balls (stuffed deerhide), drums, rattles and other playthings similar to those of European youngsters. Indian children even had ancestors, so to speak, of the "Teddybear" among their carved or stuffed miniature animals.

Spanish colonists in Florida earlier probably made similar discoveries. For conquistadors of Mexico (with Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California), Central America and South America found aboriginal pottery dolls with articulated joints, entombed with infant dead. They learned of the elasticity of rubber from the playthings of Central American natives.

Indian dolls of Northern America included some shaped of cornhusks. Variants had carved bone or wooden heads, others had dried fruit faces. The latter were copied by colonial mothers for small daughters. Fathers made miniature cradles for these. They also naturally whittled, joined, rigged miniature said craft or devised kites, sleds (with tallow runners), whirl-a-gig, tops, for boys.

Carl Drepperd remarked in his Kaleidoscope history Pioneer America: "The parade of American toys begins with toys laboriously fashioned by mothers and fathers in days when toy shops were nonexistent. It is fairly certain, however, that all artisans and craftsmen, once they set up shop, were called upon to make miniatures of everything as toys for children."

Examples of these, or Indian toy artifacts, are among the most treasured antiques today.

Typically, the Crandall family, renowned 19th century baby-carriage makers, also were major producers of doll buggies and many other kinds of playthings.

Santa's Reindeer From Scandinavia

The belief that Santa has a reindeer-drawn sleigh and enters homes through the chimney may have come from Scandinavia. An old Norse legend about the goddess Hertha said that she rode on a reindeer's back.

Her appearance in the fireplace in mid-winter was thought to bring good luck to the home.

Hobby Horse Dates Back To 'Old World'

The word hobby comes from hobby-horse. One who devotes himself to any recreational interest is figuratively "riding a hobby."

He (or she) may be a fancier of some of the most popular of all collectors' items, namely toys such as animal figures, dolls, miniature trains or other vehicles, miniaturized weapon replicas and model soldiers that have been Christmas gifts to generations of children.

The hobby-horse, obviously, had its origin among peoples of the Old World centuries back when the horse was the prime means of military, commercial, or other locomotion on land, except in desert regions to which the camel or dromedary was more adaptable. Specimens of this plaything have been found in tombs of the Middle East dating from 1200 B.C.

It apparently has a parallel at some old stage with the play cockatrice, possibly inspired by legends of Icarian flight, when men did experiment with kite transport.

The hobby-horse, consisting of pole with carved or stuffed semblance of head, and reins, was followed by the rocking-horse, which gave an illusion of cantering motion, and subsequently the wheeled horse. No one can be sure when these assumed improvements were effected.

Paraphrasing, the rocking-horse is said to have inspired the rocking-chair for adults, although it could be assumed that the rocking-cradle was the progenitor.

The era of transformation of the hobby-horse to velocipede or tricycle, thence to the motor-cycle and "gas buggy" (which started literally as a plaything) is certain: it took place in the last 100 years, when miniature replicas of baby carriages, i.e. cradles on wheels, were put in mass production for little girls' doll buggies.

The hobbyist - collector of toy conveyances, such as hobbyhorses, chariots, sleds, carts, wagons, doll carriages, tricycles, "Irish mails," battery autos, airplane or fire-engine replicas, boats, and so on, needs quantities of space for storage or display, even if he or she is a specialist. The enduring popularity of this first kind of toy to remain the No. 1 choice of boykind through centuries has produced thousands of varieties.

The first of those brilliant red and white flowers native to Central America as "flor de la Noche Buena" (Flower of the Holy Night) were introduced into the U.S. in 1828 by Joel R. Poinsett, minister to Mexico, and given his name.

Holiday Fun Prompts Lively Christmas Party Ideas

Party games designed specially for the season can spur on the fun.

For groups large or small, parties planned or impromptu, the following entertaining ideas are suggested.

One way to "break the ice," especially when all of the guests are not well acquainted with each other, is to play a guessing game. A Christmas Personality game can be played by pinning a name such as "Rudolph," "Santa" or "Christmas Angel" on the backs of several guests. Then each tries to guess his name by hints others give.

Another way to start a party is to start the guests out thinking! Have a little contest and see who can spell the most words with the letters in "Christmas."

A lively combination version of Musical Chairs and Hot Potato makes use of some unbreakable symbol of Christmas festivities — a small package, one of the sturdier tree ornaments, a big candy cane.

One person who is not playing puts on a Christmas record. Everyone sits in a close circle and passes the object around. When the music suddenly stops, the person who has the object in his hand is out. This continues until the circle is reduced to one — the winner.

Children never tire of exciting party games, while the adults may need a rest. One game that is loads of fun for kids to play and adults to watch is a seasonal version of "Pin the Tail on the Donkey." This one is "Pin the Star on the Christmas Tree."

It's easy to cut a large shape of a Christmas Tree out of green construction paper and tape it to a wall or door, making sure it is low enough for the latest guest to reach the top.

Each child gets a paper star with tape on the back and takes his turn being blindfolded and spun around. The one who can place his star closest to the top of the tree wins.

A Christmas Tree game that everyone can play is a guessing game. "Christmas Tree" the person who is "it" leaves the room while the other players decide on a secret word. It must be a verb, or a word showing action such as run, eat or swim.

When "it" comes back, he tries to guess the word by asking questions using

Community Tree Custom Began In Pasadena

The custom of the community Christmas Tree began in the early 1900's with the people of Pasadena, Calif., who decorated a tall evergreen on Mount Wilson with lights and tinsel.

Madison Square in New York and the Common in Boston were the scene of trees set up in 1912. In 1914 Independence square in Philadelphia had its first holiday tree.

Around each of these trees choirs gathered and sang carols. The custom of lighting the National Community Christmas Tree in Washington, D. C. began in 1923 when the University of Vermont sent a large tree to President Calvin Coolidge.

"Christmas Tree" in place of the word. He may ask, "Do children Christmas Tree?"

Celebrating Yule Once Punishable

"Anybody found feasting or observing Christmas day in any way shall pay a fine of five shillings."

And so, throughout New England Pilgrim settlers had to treat Christmas as just another working day. Governor Bradford noted that "no man rested all day" on Dec. 25, 1620, say editors of Encyclopedia Americana.

Today in the United States and Canada, Christmas celebrations are a colorful blend of customs from many lands. The main features of the holiday festivities are much the same everywhere — Santa Claus, Christmas trees, gifts, greetings, feasting, family visits and carol singing.

The best present a wife can give her "tension trapped" husband is a hobby, according to Dr. Albert Freeman, a Beverly Hills psychologist. Preferably it should be a non frustrating one that requires the use of his hands and some concentration that can be enjoyed in the family environment.

Cranberry Is U.S. Holiday Tradition

By ROBERT E. O'MEARA

WISCONSIN RAPIDS, Wis. (AP) — Those bright red berries that embellish your Christmas table came a long way — historically and geographically.

Not that the cranberry is limited any longer to the Yule season, or Thanksgiving. They're popular now year round.

Season To Guard Against Litter

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y. (AP) — Christmas may be the season to be jolly but it is also the season to guard against becoming a litterbug.

According to Allen H. Seed, Jr., executive vice president of Keep America Beautiful, Inc., the estimated 1970 accumulation of discarded Christmas wrappings and decorations will total more than 400 million pounds.

Against this dismal outlook Seed urges the following three simple rules for litterless holiday season:

1. Make good use of litter baskets at shopping centers and downtown areas while in pursuit of Christmas gifts.
2. Make sure that all discarded gift wrappings are properly stored in trash cans.
3. And finally, lay the discarded Christmas tree carefully to rest — burn it, give it to the rubbish collector or set it up as a feeding station for birds — but don't let it wander like a Christmas ghost through the neighborhood.

This year's record cranberry harvest totaled approximately 1.6 million barrels nationally — nearly 11 per cent more than last year and 16 per cent more than in 1967. Each barrel contains 100 pounds of the fruit.

That's a far cry from the days before Columbus when Indians harvested a few berries for decorative and medicinal purposes and then found they were good eating, too.

This central Wisconsin community is the merchandising and processing hub of one of the five major cranberry growing areas in the country. The others are in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Washington and Oregon. Massachusetts is the national leader, with Wisconsin running second.

About 200 Wisconsin growers produce the berries in a 4,000-acre area. The plants are a low, trailing vine that grow close to the ground in marshes, or "bogs." Vines are perennial and become intertwined within a few years of planting. During the growing season, tiny pinkish blossoms appear in June and July.

Eggnog Is Old English Drink

Who invented that popular holiday beverage, eggnog? It has been part of the festivities for so many years that nobody really knows its origin.

One possibility is that eggnog came from the Old English hot drink, sack-posset, which was also made of eggs, milk, nutmeg and sugar.

Fruits the size of marbles began ripening after Labor Day. Harvest of the many-seeded red berries begins in early September and continues through October.

During the October harvest season, semi-trailer harvest are lined up at receiving plants throughout the growing area. The stations operate six days a week, closing down for cleanup one day a week.

All the berries received at the plant in nearby Babcock are processed and canned at the Ocean Spray Cranberries, Inc. plant in North Chicago, Ill. Many of the berries are kept in large freezers at the Illinois plant to permit an even, year-round flow to the retail markets.

At Babcock, the berries pass through a mechanical sorter, where they are separated from leaves and other chaff which may accumulate in the picking process. The berries leave the sorter on two conveyor belts, according to size.

They pass through a stainless steel defoliation separator. Here, a detergent solution removes soft or broken berries from the firm ones, washing them in the process.

The large berries continue along the convey system to a row of tables, where women sort further by hand, discarding all but the firm, ripe, red berries, which will ultimately be processed into whole cranberry sauce.

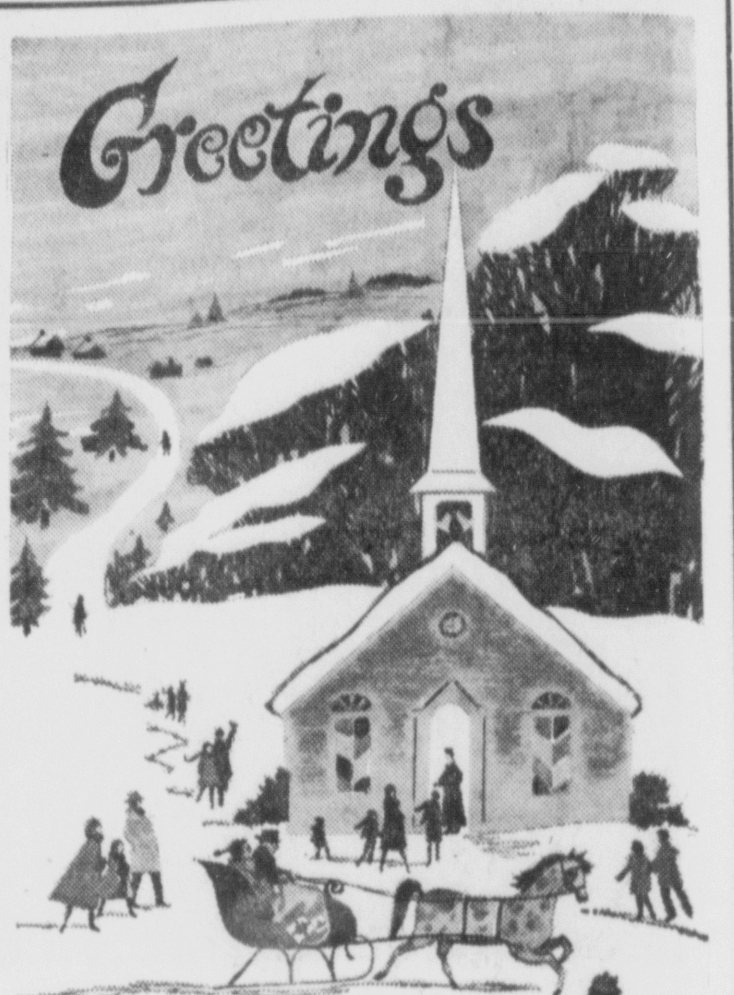

A similar hand sorting process is used for the smaller berries, although color is not as important here.

Silent Night First Sung To Holy

"Silent Night, Holy Night" was written in 1818 by a village priest in Hallein, Austria. Father Joseph Mohr wrote the words, to an accompaniment created by his organist, Franz Gruber.

Legend has it that the church organ was out of order — damaged by mice — and so "Silent Night" was first sung to a guitar accompaniment.

Favorite Way Of Saving For Gifts Is Christmas Club

By HARRY STEINBERG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the favorite ways of saving for Christmas gift-giving is still the Christmas Club.

Last year more than 16 million people saved over $2.2 billion at 10,000 banks through the United States.

Here's how the typical Christmas Club works:

A member opens his account and gets a booklet of 50 coupons, one for each week. The accounts are usually opened at the start of October, and continue to the end of the following October.

The bank operating the club sends the member a check for the amount saved in November.

Booklets are available with coupon denominations from $1 through $5, $10, and $20. This makes it possible to save from $50 to $1,000 during the course of the year.

Most banks pay no interest, though the trend in recent years has been toward paying some interest on the accounts.

Why have the Christmas Clubs been so successful?

"No one has really ever been able to figure it out," says James J. Shea, marketing manager of the Bowery Savings Bank in New York.

Shea adds that "vacation clubs," based on the same principle except that the money saved is used for travel, have never had the success the Christmas Clubs have had.

"It's convenient, and a painless way to save," says Shea.

Richard Field, assistant vice president at the First National City Bank of New York, says that the chief attraction of the Christmas Club is that "it is a forced vehicle kind of savings."

"There's no temptation to take money out, its not like a regular passbook where there's a big withdrawal column," he says.

Fields adds that money can be withdrawn from a Christmas Club account, but that many members don't know this.

Fields also explains that banks don't offer interest on Christmas Club accounts because the amounts are often small — the First National City average is $150 per account.

First National City's Christmas Club had 150,000 members who saved $22 million in 1969, Fields said.

He also explained that the expenses of administering the accounts, printing up the special coupon books and checks used in paying club members eats up whatever profit banks may make by not paying interest.

The concept of the Christmas Club was developed in 1910 by Herbert F. Rawll, an English printing salesman who specialized in bank stationery.

Rawll founded the Christmas Club Corp., a privately held firm, which prints coupon books and also supplies banks with posters and other promotional material for the clubs.

Rand McNally, the publisher and map maker, also offers Christmas Club services to banks.

Though the clubs have changed little since their start in 1910, the 10, 25 and 50 cent coupon books, the Christmas Clubs started with have been phased out.

Yule Traditions Fascinating Mixture Of Fact And Fancy

Who created Santa Claus? Why kiss under the mistletoe? When was Christmas first celebrated? The answers to these and other questions relating to Christmas are a fascinating mixture of fact and fancy, says Dr. F. Stuart Crawford, chief etymologist of the Merriam-Webster dictionaries.

Here are actual histories, legends and word origins of the popular Christmas traditions Americans enjoy today.

Santa Claus is a genuine American creation. His name is an Americanization of the Dutch "Sinterklaas," an alterative of "Sint Nikolaas." Even his jolly appearance originated in this country. In the early 1600's the Dutch settlers in New York, who loved Yuletide feasting and merriment, depicted Sinterklaas as a tubby character in short breeches.

The real St. Nicholas, whose name in many languages around the world is synonymous with Christmas gift-giving, was an early Christian bishop who lived in the 4th century in the province of Lycia in Asia Minor. He was known for his generosity to all people in need, especially children and is universally considered the patron saint of young people.

The Christmas Stocking, stuffed with gifts, is credited to a popular legend about one of St. Nicholas' many kindnesses. An impoverished merchant had three daughters for whom he could provide no dowry, which in those days meant the girls could not make a suitable marriage. So as each daughter grew up, St. Nicholas secretly passed by that house and threw a purse of gold through the window for her dowry. One of the bags of gold happened to fall into a stocking hung near the chimney to dry. That incident is reputed to have started the Christmas tradition of hanging stockings to receive presents.

The Christmas Tree is supposed to have originated among the German people. Actually, trees were revered among many early primitive tribes and trimmed with lights and decorations for festive occasions. The Romans before Christ decorated trees during their feast of Saturn beginning on December 17th, and sometimes placed twelve candles on them with an image of the sun god at the top.

Evergreens have been directly associated with Christmas festivities since the 8th century, when St. Boniface completed the Christianization of Germany.

Martin Luther, in Germany in the early 1500's, is said to have lighted and trimmed for his family the first Christmas tree as it is decorated today. In this country homesick Hessian soldiers, brought here during the American Revolution to fight the colonists, are reported to have put up the first decorated Christmas trees. It was not until the middle of the 19th century, however, that decorated Christmas trees were used to any great extent in American homes.

The mistletoe has an equally long history in many lands. The name used today, as traced in the Merriam-Webster Seventh New Collegiate Dictionary, comes from the old English "mistletoe" which means twig of basil.

In Greek mythology it was supposed to be a charm against evil. The Romans, who considered it a symbol of hope and peace, may have originated the custom of kissing under this plant. In Rome when enemies met under the mistletoe, they took off their weapons, kissed each other and declared a truce until the next day. The present day traditions of kissing under the mistletoe, which the English introduced here, has become much more flirtatious and romantic.

The poinsettia, now one of the most popular Christmas plants, is native to the American continent. It is named for Dr. Joel Roberts Poinsett of South Carolina, who discovered the colorful flower in Mexico when he was the American envoy there from 1825 to 1829. The Mexicans called the plant the Flower of the Holy Night or of Christmas Eve. A Swiss farmer in California, Albert Ecke, is credited with the original development of this flower and his son made Encinitas in the southern part of that state the poinsettia capital of the world.

Mince Pie, a popular holiday dessert, has been known for over 500 years in England. At first it contained as much as six pounds of meats, and the sweeter ingredients were added over the years. The pie has been called by a variety of names, among them "shred pie," "wayfarers' pie," since it was served to all holiday visitors, and plain "Christmas pie." It was believed to bring good luck if eaten between Christmas Day and Twelfth Night, and the left-over was distributed to the poor at the end of the Yuletide season.

Christmas Carols. St. Francis of Assisi is generally considered the father of the Christmas Carol. When he created the first nativity scene in Greccio, Italy, in 1224, he led the people in songs of praise to the Christ Child and a new idea about the holiday season came from this jovial singing.

Christmas carols, as they are sung today, date from about the 14th century, when people of many lands began to sing Christmas songs in their own languages rather than in Latin. The modern word "carol" has wandered far from its original meaning, says Dr. Crawford. Its origins are found in the Greek "choros" meaning dance. This was combined with the Greek "aulein," to play on the flute and formed "chorales," a flute player who accompanied the choral dance. The word evolved through Latin to the Old French "carole," a dance accompanied by singing. In the English form, gradually the meaning of dance was lost and song alone survived. Today a carol generally means a popular song or ballad of religious joy.

Toys Linked With Inventions

Toys and great inventions have been linked inextricably. The earliest known steam-power, forerunner of the most revolutionary invention before the electric generator, was applied by a Greek, Heron or Hero, at Alexandria, about 150 A.D., to a miniature, or toy, motor.

In experimenting similarly, the first demonstrations of the eventual practicality of steam pumps, steam carriages, steam boats, were given. Joel Ellis, a Vermont teenager, was inspired by a steam toy fire engine to invent a steam excavating machine for use by railroad constructors in making cuts and fills for new trackage. An improvement became the steam excavator that made tunneling more feasible. The earliest helicopters or autogyros were toys powered by twisted rubber bands, flown before man-carrying gliders or airplanes. There were wind-up toy cars before "gas buggies"; one hopeful tinkerer sought to make a spring-motor car big enough to haul passengers.

Potential Fire Hazard Exists In Yule Trees

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP)—There'll be more than 38 million Christmas trees lending gaiety to American homes this Yuletide season and a high percentage of them have the potential of turning gaiety into tragedy, a fire insurance executive warns.

An eight-foot pine tree, for example, can catch fire and burn itself out with consuming fury in just 27 seconds, turning the home into a charred Christmas ruin, says Myron Dubain, senior vice president for Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies.

Dubain offers this 10-point check list for Christmas tree safety:

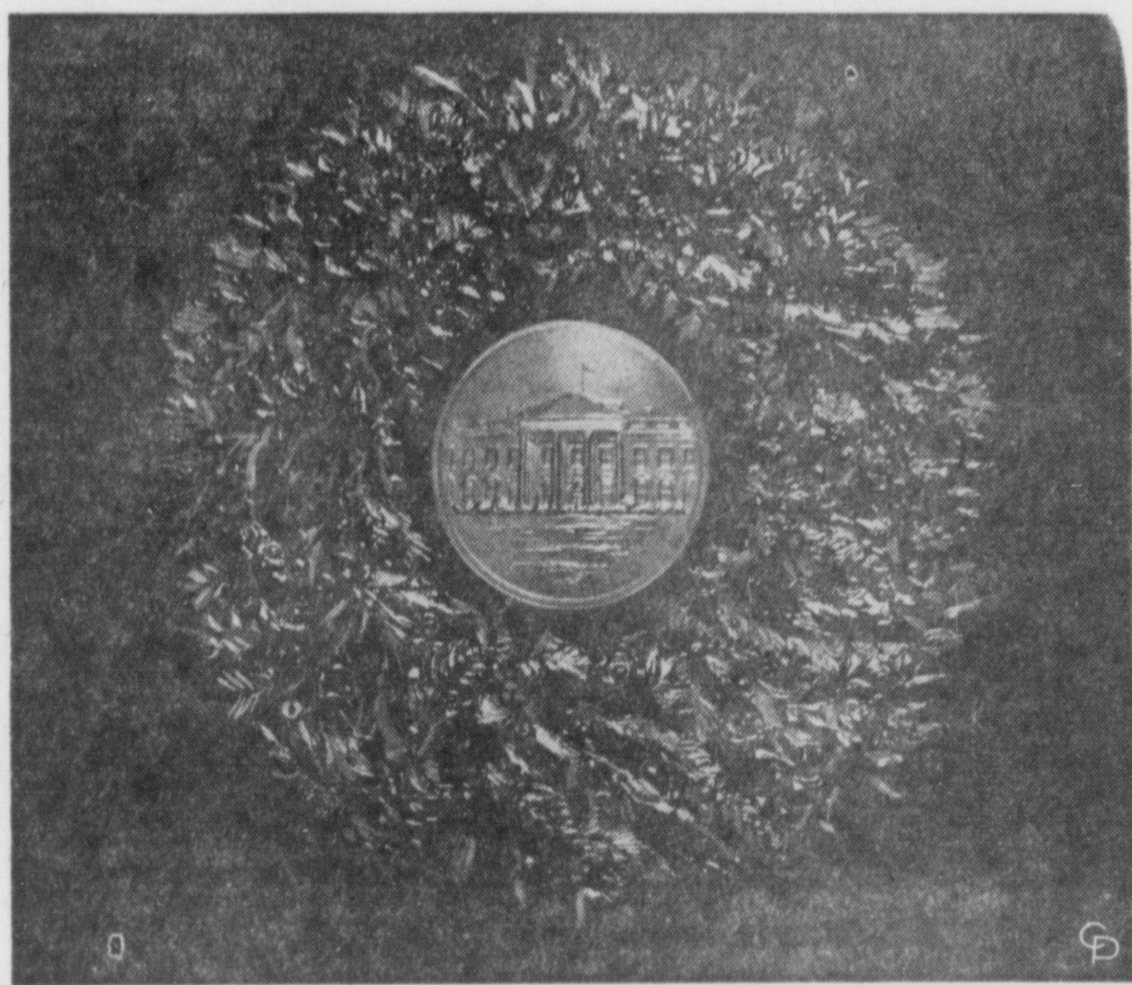

1. When you purchase a Christmas tree, ask your nurseryman if it has been sprayed with a reliable fire retardant. If not, make sure the tree is properly sprayed before you take it into your home.
2. Leave your tree outside the house or in a cold garage as long as you can.
3. When you are ready to bring it inside, saw off the trunk on a diagonal, about an inch above the original cut, so that it can absorb water freely. This will help keep the tree fresh and green longer.
4. Use a sturdy, water-containing stand — and be sure to fill it daily. There are many excellent solutions on the market that keep the tree green and fresh when mixed with water. Consult your nursery about product selection.
5. Keep the tree away from the fireplace, radiator, TV set or other sources of heat that could cause dryness or set it aflame.
6. Make sure the tree lights have the UL label of Underwriters' Laboratories. Check older lights for frayed or broken wires and loose connections.
7. Never join more strands than recommended by the manufacturer and never use lighted candles.
8. Do not attach lights to a metallic tree, because of the shock hazard. Light it with a spotlight mounted elsewhere.
9. Always unplug the Christmas tree lights before retiring or leaving the house.
10. Avoid the practice of burning gift wrappings, tissue or dry evergreens in the fireplace. They give off sparks that can easily ignite carpets and furniture... or the tree.

A happy season to you, with greetings and good wishes from us.

Christmas Comes Several Times A Year In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon, (AP) — Christmas comes several times a year in Lebanon and even the Moslems hang out the mistletoe.

There are about two dozen religious holidays a year in this eastern Mediterranean country with its population of 2.4 million almost evenly divided between Christians and Moslems.

The government, which is always headed by a Christian president and a Moslem prime minister, encourages observance of religious holidays because it ties the different sects together and promotes national unity. It also prevents outbreaks of religious fighting that have troubled other parts of the world.

Beginning in mid-December "Moslems and Christians give parties, decorate their homes, stores and streets and exchange cards and gift," one Lebanese said. "Like other parts of the world with non-Christian religions, Christmas here is becoming in many respects a secular holiday."

In past years, some Moslem holidays, which are determined by the moon, fell around Christmas and heightened the festive mood. That doesn't happen this year but conveniently Christmas falls on a Friday, the Moslem sabbath.

"The religious aspect of the holiday doesn't pose much of a problem," said one Lebanese Moslem. "Our religion recognizes Jesus as a prophet but not as important as Mohammed. In fact some of the most beautiful verses of the Koran are he ones that describe Mary and her child."

Actually there are several Christmases in Lebanon, which Ministry of Tourism officials never tire of describing as the only country in which Jesus Christ took a vacation.

The Eastern church — the Greek Orthodox and the Armenians — follow the Julian calendar, which is 13 days behind the Gregorian one used by the Protestants, Roman Catholics and Maronite Catholics. This means there is an almost continuous round of celebrations between Dec. 24 and Jan. 7 when the Armenians have their Christmas.

On these holidays, Moslem leaders visit Christian political leaders and clergy to pay their respects. Then the Christians return the visits on Moslem feasts.

"The concept of brotherhood among men is a characteristic of both religions," a Lebanese said. When Christmas and other holidays come, the Lebanese translate the idea into action. It's one of the strengths of our country."

Christmas Not Always A Happy Holiday

This is evidenced in 19th century encyclopedias. A complete entry in "New American Cyclopaedia," 1859 edition, reads: "In the United States, since the Puritans were at first stern opponents of Christmas pastimes, the day has been less generally celebrated in New England than in the middle and southern states. It has been made a legal holiday in some of the states, and is usually observed by a religious service and making presents, and not infrequently by trimming houses and churches with evergreens, and by imitating the German custom of Christmas trees."

That 26-volume reference, edited by the distinguished Charles A. Dana and George Ripley, has no mention of St. Nicholas or Santa Claus. Nor of a Druid custom in ancient Britain: candles lit on trees as tributes to the sun god, Balder.

Exactly two centuries earlier, in 1659, the General Court of Massachusetts Bay, decreed: "whosoever be found observing any such day as Christmas or the like, by forbearing of labor, feasting or any other way," be punished.

The Pilgrim rulers of Plymouth colony had reacted similarly. Their and Puritan objections were based on the derivations of gift exchanges, the Yule logs, holly and mistletoe decorations, wassail tipplings, and other turn-of-year solstice celebrations from pagans in Britain and most of Europe since Roman Saturnalian times.

Christmas revelry was forbidden in Oliver Cromwellian England, but the ban was maintained longer in Puritan New England.

Signs Of Nature Were First Decorations

Among the earliest Christmas tree ornaments were some that resembled the sun, stars and moon, or animals.

Using signs of nature as decorations can be traced back to the feasts of the winter equinox, when sun-worshipping pagans hung similar trinkets on trees.

Traditions Lost In Time

Although many traditions are now lost in time, there are other Christmas customs that have been recorded for posterity.

It has been said that there was no candle to light the stable at Bethlehem. But from time immemorable tapers have been placed in windows to light the way for the Christ child. Anyone who came to the door was invited to enter and there were those who believed. He would appear, concealing His identity, to learn the extent of their kindness. Candles contribute to the feeling of reverence and play an important part in holiday decorations.

Christmas wreaths may be traced to the customs of Advent season, the four Sundays before Christmas, a period of preparation for the coming of the Christ Child. The Advent wreath is made of evergreen branches intertwined with red ribbon. Four candles are affixed to the wreath. One is lit at dusk on the first Sunday of Advent, two the following Sunday, three the next and four on the last Sunday before Christmas. The wreath may be set on a mantel or set on a table.

Swedish soldiers once wore three-foot skis. Other skiers strapped a short ski on one foot to kick along with and a long sliding ski on the other.

Santa's White Beard, Red Suit Came From Cartoonist

Who gave Santa his red suit, broad girth, white beard, ruddy cheeks and nose, fur-trimmed hat and coat?

Surprisingly enough, the donor was a political cartoonist. The artist's name was Thomas Nast, cartoonist for Harper's Illustrated Weekly, who also created the now-famous symbols of the Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey.

The figure of Santa that Nast drew in 1863, and perhaps earlier, has proved to be the definitive one, and even today the figure as drawn by Nast appears occasionally on Christmas greetings.

"Nast's image of Santa was extraordinary," says Mrs. Jeannette Lee, director of design at Hallmark.

"He gave Santa many of the qualities that have endeared him to children ever since, and we wouldn't dream of tampering very much with them today."

Nast first credited Santa with keeping books on good and bad children, having a Christmas toy workshop and reading letters sent to him by children.

Perhaps it was the now-famous poem, "A Visit from St. Nicholas," by Dr. Clement Clarke Moore, that inspired Nast's illustration of Santa. In this children's classic of 1823, the right jolly old elf, who looked like a peddler with a pack on his back, was first described in print.

Nast followed Dr. Moore's description of Santa in several particulars, but many of his concepts were original.

At the time of Nast's Santa Claus drawings the nation was at Civil War, and families were separated. In a note to cheer both soldiers and their waiting families Nast drew "Santa Claus in Camp," for Harper's Weekly.

This earliest Santa was different from any artist's creations up to then. He was shown wearing stars and stripes of the Union and distributing gifts to soldiers. Actually, this Santa might have been meant as a representation of Uncle Sam also.

A later, equally moving Nast illustration featured a soldier's Christmas homecoming.

Born in 1840 in the tiny hamlet of Landau, Bavaria, Nast probably pictured Santa as the long-imagined Saint Nicholas of his childhood.

Albert Bigelow Paine, a friend and admirer of Nast, said the artist often revealed to him his love of the Santa illustrations. He later wrote in his biography of the cartoonist:

"His own childhood in far-off Bavaria has been measured by the yearly visits of ... St. Nicholas ... and the girlhood of the woman who was to become his wife (Sarah Edwards of New York) was intimately associated with brilliant and joyous celebrations.

"Nast's children later recalled there was always a multitude of paper dolls — marvelously big and elaborate, a race long since become extinct.

"And these the artistic father — more than 'half a child himself at the Christmas season — arranged in processions and cavalcades, gay pageants that marched in and about those larger presents that could not be crowded into the row of stockings that hung by the family fireplace.

"It was a time of splendor and rejoicing — the festive blossoming of the winter season — and it was a beautiful and sturdy family that made Merry Christmas riot in the spacious New York home."

In Nast's day, the idea of some sort of Santa was not new to this country. He was introduced to North America by the early Dutch settlers and his name was St. Nicholas. The annual visit of this kind man, who was thought to have been a fourth-century bishop, was his feast day, December 6th.

By 1802, Washington Irving was describing Santa as a small Dutch citizen who looked much like Father Knickerbocker.

Christmas Is Cells And Bells At The Pickaway County Jail

It will be business as usual around the Pickaway County jail Christmas day but somehow it won't seem like just an ordinary day to the people involved.

Matron Betty Radcliff and her staff are busy making preparations for the day and their efforts will make it just a little nicer for the people who aren't free to spend the day elsewhere.

Fireproof Christmas trees will be in the cell blocks and seasonal music will be in the air when 35 to 400 prisoners sit down to their morning repast of breakfast rolls and coffee.

Christmas dinner will be served at 11 a. m. and will consist of ham, sweet potatoes, green beans, hot rolls, carrot and celery sticks, cranberry sauce, Christmas cookies and coffee.

FRIDAY is not a visitor's day and the prisoners will spend the afternoon going about their normal routines.

After four o'clock there will be ham and cheese sandwiches, pickled eggs, fresh fruit salad, pumpkin pie and coffee for anyone who has room after consuming the noontime meal.

Mrs. Charles Rawlings, Mrs. Dorothy Sowers and Mrs. James Cassidy will be in the kitchen and their culinary talents will go into the preparation of the meals.

The rest of the sheriff's staff will be on their regular assignments and wouldn't it be a real Christmas present if they didn't have anything to do that day?

Pinata Fun Gets Break

A joyous Christmas tradition for Mexican boys and girls is the breaking of the pinata, a decorated earthen jar.

Sometimes, the pinata may be a caricature of people or animals.

The pinata is suspended by a rope that can raise or lower it. Each child is blindfolded and usually given three chances to poke at the pinata with a stick.

When it's broken, the pinata releases a bounty of delicious fruits, sweets, nuts and toys.

The children scramble to claim as many goodies as possible.

Mother Goose Tales Published First In 1715

In Boston folklore there was, once upon a time, a Mrs. Isaac Goose, widow, who lived with her youngest daughter and son-in-law, Thomas Fleet, printer.

Grandma Goose, so the story goes, amused the Fleet children with jingles, some of which she had heard, others she had improvised. Eventually, her son-in-law was moved to publish, in 1715, a chapbook entitled, "Songs for the Nursery; or, Mother Goose's Melodies for Children." This, also put into print at other presses in the English colonies, amassed a readership in colonial America second only to that of "The New-England Primer."

Boston could claim rightly the birthplace of the first enduringly popular Christmas book, if only Thomas Fleet's mother-in-law had been the real "Mother Goose." She wasn't. His book was a reprint of rhymes of "Little Boy Blue, Rock-a-Bye Baby, Jack and Jill, Little Tommy Tucker" and other verse a part of European folklore long before Fleet's time.

Charles Perrault, a Frenchman, is greatly credited with being the first to collect them in a book. He did not represent himself as the author. His edition of "Contes de ma Mere l'Oye," published at Paris in 1696, had no by-line.

Perrault's scholarly literary pursuits also included collecting the French traditional fairy-tales known to generations of English and American Christmas book recipients as "Cinderella," "The Sleeping Beauty," "Little Red Riding Hood," "Puss in Boots," "Bluebeard," "Hop-o-My-Thumb."

Universal popularity of these prompted gifted writers, such as Hans Christian Andersen, the Grimm brothers, A. M. Milne, E. B. White — naming a few — to conceive of similar tales as political satire or simple entertainment, and thus expand fanciful literature with which Christmas gift books enrich entire lifetimes.

Tiny Treasure Hunt Fun At Christmas

The simplest searching game is one in which one person leaves the room while another hides a small object that has been agreed upon beforehand — a small package, some wrapped Christmas candy.

When "it" comes back, he hunts for the object and the other person indicates that he is near it by clapping loudly or saying, "You're warm."

When "it" moves away from the object, the other person claps softly or says, "You're getting cold."

Irving wondered how the poor old man could get to all the homes in a growing America on his horse, so he invented the famous reindeer-drawn sleigh.

DINNER IS SERVED — While you're snugly enjoying your holiday dinner in all the comforts of home, give a thought to this scene near Mai Loc, northernmost major city in South Vietnam. Weeks of monsoon rains have made a quagmire of the place, 14 miles west of Quang Tri. The soldiers are in the 1st Battalion of 11th Infantry.

Scholars Study Source Of Star Shining In East

"There shall come forth a Star" — Numbers 24:17.

In this Old Testament prophecy by Balaam, was a real star meant, or does "Star" refer to a great person?

For centuries, Biblical scholars have considered this question. Many believe that the prophecy led the wise men to watch for and follow the "star in the east," of which St. Matthew wrote in his story of the Nativity.

The star itself is the source of many theories. Perhaps the best of all is that it was a miraculous appearance and as such needs no explanation.

However, astronomers through the ages have sought to connect the star seen by the wise men with other reported celestial objects — a comet, perhaps, or an especially brilliant star that only appears at long intervals.

Still another theory suggests that the star may have been a configuration or grouping of planets. In 1604, the German astronomer Johannes Kepler theorized that Jupiter, Saturn and Mars might have occurred in such a configuration at about the time of Christ's birth.

The fact that the star and the visit of the wise men were described only by St. Matthew has led to still another question. Did only the wise men see the star?

That they were so privileged is sometimes explained by the legend that the wise men were astrologers whose special interest helped them to notice the unusual brilliance of the three planets grouped together.

Servicemen Send 'Thanks' For Christmas Ditty Bags

By BETTY DAWLEY
Herald Staff Writer

On Christmas day, somewhere overseas, 100 men of the Armed Forces will be delivered a gift from Pickaway County.

The gift is the Red Cross "Ditty Bag" made by local Red Cross Volunteers, filled through the contributions of items, or money used to purchase items, by local residents, organizations and clubs.

Christmas Ditty Bag distribution is a program of National Red Cross which depends on local chapters and community units support. With this cooperation, each year on Dec. 25, all servicemen stationed overseas, receive a gift, made up by a Red Cross Chapter. The giver is you.

THE name inclusion has resulted in area residents receiving letters of "thanks" from a serviceman, recipients of the token gifts.

If the joy of giving is to the giver, then area residents who have contributed to this program should be joyous, indeed, to know how well their gift were received.

A few of the letters are reprinted here to share with all readers, many of whom have in some way contributed to the Ditty Bag program.

From a staff sergeant — "I wish to thank you for your generous gift from the bottom of my heart.

"I hope you and yours have a Very Merry Christmas and a most wonderful and prosperous New Year.

"My appreciation cannot be said in words. It sometimes is said, 'No matter to whom, no matter what, generosity to another is man's greatest contribution'. Perhaps this will have little meaning to you, but it is people like you who make my objectives, our country's objective, and the people of South Vietnam's objectives more meaningful to me and my fellow compatriots.

"I PRAY the Lord will bless and keep you well."

An Airman First Class writes — "I want to thank you for myself and the other guys for the goodie bags. The little things become big things here.

"Thank you again, Merry Christmas."

Pet Lodge Has Select Clientele

NEW YORK CITY, N.Y. (AP) — A recently opened hostelry, with 104 accommodations, insists on proof of vaccination for distemper, hepatitis, and leptospirosis before guests are allowed to register. It is the Pet Lodge in a refurbished 80-year-old building originally a stable for truck horses and later a plumbing supply warehouse.

Upon registering his pet, the owner must give its name, breed, sex, age and any special feeding instructions.

"We feed our guests twice a day, unless there are other instructions," said Charles Mahnen, the manager. "A miniature poodle guest had to have scrambled egg for breakfast and cooked hamburger for dinner."

There is no possibility of guests going thirsty either. According to Mahnen, each accommodation has an automatic drinking bowl. When the eater falls below a certain level, the bowl immediately refills.

Earliest Christmas carol written in America was "Jesus is Born," by Father John de Brebeuf, a missionary among Huron Indians, in their language, about 1650. He adapted the air from a French folk song.

Romans Held Gift Exchanges

Sa'utory gift exchanges at turn of the year were traditional at the Roman Saturnalia, before the Christian era.

In times of the Caesars, friends bestowed, and naturally wanted in return, strena, such as fancy pastries, rare fruits, especially designed pottery, if not jewelry.

Masters and mistresses "remembered" retainers, servants, slaves with the expected largesse. These obligations had parallels in Near Eastern and Oriental civilizations. They probably were prevalent in some forms in Asia Minor of the Fourth Century A.D., when St. Nicholas was a Bishop there.

As subsequent patron-saint of seafarers, Nicholas was linked with seasonal beneficence in all coastal countries of Europe before the discovery of America.

Colonists from Netherlands, where Dec. 6 was St. Nicholas' Day in church calendars, continued the observance of it in the Hudson River Valley as a joyous occasion for visits by Saint Nikolaas with gifts for youths. Washington Irving's entertaining "Knickerbocker History of New York" popularized the jolly, chubby, bearded Dutch image of Saint Nikolaas (which English understood as Santa Claus) across the country, despite opposition from Puritan New Englanders.

He inspired C. C. Moore's ringing verses, "A Visit from St. Nicholas," which made Santa Claus an American institution corresponding to the Pere Noel, Father Christmas, Father Frost, Belsnickel, La Befana, Kriss Kringle, Khoong Khoong of other peoples.

Among Dutch, Saint Nikolaas rode a white horse to doorways. Irving conceived of his sleigh with reindeer whirling across house-tops to chimneys.

Season To Be Sad

In Brazil, Christmas always has been celebrated with great enthusiasm. There is this intense desire to exchange gifts, to put the presents under the tree, to "deck the hall" and have a good time.

But in the nation where per capita income is around 280 dollars per year this enthusiasm is mostly restricted to the upper and middle classes. To most Brazilians, it is not a season to be glad.

Popular Subject Of Early Books Was Christmas

The first books printed in English, by William Caxton, fostered numerous Christmas story books for the young.

They introduced tales of Helen of Troy and King Arthur's knights of the roundtable, among other legendary heroes and heroines, as well as Aesop's Fables.

Wynken de Worde printed first collection of carols in English, 1521, during reign of Henry VIII, who encouraged Yuletide masques and pageants, the inspirations of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night."

Mince pies were established in that time as part of Christmas fare — before plum pudding.

"The Messiah" was composed by George Frederick Handel in England, 1742, and performed first at Dublin. Isaac Watts' verses, "Joy to the World," written in 1719, were not popular in Christmas chorals until given a musical setting taken from "The Messiah."

Similarly, "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing" verses by Charles Wesley, 1739, were not well received until adapted to music by Felix Mendelssohn, 1855.

No song came to be played and sung more often seasonally in America for generations than James S. Pierpont's "Jingle Bells," or "The One-Horse Open Sleigh," written for a Sunday school entertainment at Boston, in 1857.

"Jingle Bells" was eclipsed as a world-wide favorite by "White Christmas," with words and music by Irving Berlin for a 1942 motion picture, with Bing Crosby as the original singer. The musical historian David Ewen says "White Christmas is second only world-wide to carol.

Local Women Share Traditional Family Recipes Of Foreign Lands

By MARION SINES
Herald Society Editor

Recipes which are family favorites during the holiday season have been given by local homemakers to share with anyone wishing to include them with their own traditional foods. The recipes came from England, Germany, Italy, Greece and Sweden.

NURNBERGER COOKIES
1 cup honey
¾ cup brown sugar (packed)
1 egg
1 tsp. grated lemon peel
1 tsp. lemon juice
2½ cups all-purpose flour
1 tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. cloves
½ tsp. each, allspice and nutmeg
1½ tsp. soda
1½ cup cut-up citron
1½ cup chopped nuts
Glazing icing (below)

Heat honey to boiling in large saucepan. Cool thoroughly. Stir in sugar, egg, lemon peel and juice. Mix in remaining ingredients. Cover and chill at least 8 hours.

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Roll a small amount of dough at a time to ¼ inch thickness on lightly floured cloth-covered board. (Keep remaining dough in refrigerator.) Cut dough into 2-inch circles. Round up each circle a bit toward center, place blanched almond halves around edge. Place small round of citron or candied cherry in center of each. Place 1 inch apart on greased baking sheet. Bake 10-12 minutes or until no imprint remains when touched lightly with finger. Brush icing lightly over cookies. Remove immediately from baking sheet. cool. Store in airtight container with a slice of apple or orange. Makes about 5 dozen cookies.

GLAZING ICING
Mix 1 cup sugar and ½ cup water in small saucepan. Cook over medium heat to 230 degrees on candy thermometer. Remove from heat, stir in ¼ cup confectioner's sugar. If icing becomes sugary, reheat slightly, adding a little water.

Nurnberger is a variation of Lebkuchen and is a honey cookie recipe from the Black Forest, Germany, according to Mrs. Dennis Blecha, 394 Meadow Lane.

STRUFOLI (Christmas Balls)
In a deep fry pan heat 24 oz. vegetable shortening or oil to 365 degrees or very hot. Meanwhile in a large bowl put 1 pound of all-purpose flour and ¼ pound of sugar and mix. Make a hole in the center of mixture and add 4 eggs, one at a time, add ½ tsp. vanilla extract. Mix ingredients well to make a firm dough. Add more eggs only if necessary to firm the dough.

Turn dough onto a lightly floured surface and knead thoroughly. Divide dough into 8 equal parts. Roll one part at a time into a cylinder or rope-like shape of ½ inch in diameter. Then cut the cylinder into ½ inch strips and roll each piece into a ball. Fry 20 to 30 balls at a time for 1 to 2 minutes (lightly browning and turning frequently.) Remove from oil, drain and place in a large bowl. Pour honey and colored nonpareils over balls and mix thoroughly so that all balls are coated.

Mrs. Thomas Plinio of Plaza Drive makes the Christmas Balls each year and find they are a favorite with family and friends. The recipe comes from Italy.

CHRISTMAS PUDDING
¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. mace
¼ cup plus 2 tbsp. brown sugar
¼ cup milk
¼ cup cooking sherry or cider
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup seedless raisins
1 cup dried currants
2 cups mixed candied fruit peel
¼ cup flour
1 cup soft day old bread crumbs.

Sift together first 6 ingredients. Mix suet, sugar, milk and cider or sherry, add eggs. Mix raisins, currants and fruit with ½ cup flour. Add with crumbs and flour mixture to suet mixture, mix well.

Turn into greased and floured 2 quart mold or 2 pound coffee cans. Cover with two thicknesses of waxed paper, allowing space for pudding to rise, and tie tightly with string. Place on rack in kettle with tight fitting lid. Pour in enough boiling water to come halfway up on side of mold, cover with lid. Bring to a boil, turn heat to simmer and steam 2½ hours. Serve with hard sauce or custard. Makes 12 servings. When bringing the pudding to the table pour brandy over it and light.

ENGLISH TRIFLE
Put sliced jelly roll on bottom of an 8 x 8 inch glass dish, soak with sherry, (dilute if preferred) or with fruit juice. Then arrange a layer of fruit on top of either Mandarin oranges or sliced peaches, chill. Make a gelatin dessert and when cool pour slowly over fruit and jelly roll, allow to set one day. Make a pint of thin vanilla pudding, when cool pour on top of gelatin. Top with whipped cream or favorite topping. Mrs. Fred Howell, 101 Reber Ave., brought these recipes from England, he native country.

NEW YEAR'S DAY BREAD
½ lb. butter
5 eggs, beaten
1½ cups sugar
2 cakes yeast
½ cup milk
½ tsp. baking powder
Flour as needed, perhaps 2 pounds
½ cup cinnamon water (made by boiling water with a stick of cinnamon)
2 or 3 dimes washed and wrapped in wax paper
Mix butter and sugar, and beaten eggs and blend. Dissolve yeast in milk, add to first mixture. Add flour, baking powder and water until you have dough which can be kneaded. (Don't forget baking powder.) Knead just until smooth (a minute or two.)

Divide into two or three portions depending on size of pans. Wrap a dime in wax paper and conceal it in dough. Place in greased baking pans (I prefer round, cake-type pans) cover and place in warm spot to rise. (I place them in my oven overnight as the pilot light gives off just enough heat.) The loaves should be at least double in size. Brush tops with beaten egg yolk.

Bake in moderate oven 350 degrees for one hour (the smaller the size loaf the less baking time.)

Mrs. Nicholas Apostolakis, 535 Meadow Lane, tries to bake the bread on New Year's Eve so as to have the aroma in the house the last day of the year.

At breakfast, the first morning of the New Year, Mr. Apostolakis slices the bread. He designates a portion to each member of the family. Whoever gets the portion with the time in it has a particularly good year ahead of him.

SWEDISH RYE BREAD
½ cake yeast
2 cups warm water
¼ cup green label molasses
¼ cup white granulated sugar
¼ cup white granulated sugar
2 cups rye flour
4 cups (about) all-purpose white flour
1 tsp. salt
2 tsp. melted shortening

Combine ingredients in order given and turn out on floured pastry board. Knead with just enough flour to form a ball. Place in well greased bowl, cover and let stand in warm place until double in size. Shape in two loaves and let raise until double, brush with butter or shortening and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees for approximately 60 minutes, cool on wire rack.

This bread recipe was brought from Sweden over 100 years ago. Most of the descendants of William and Isabella Johnson bake the bread at Christmas for family use and to give as gifts as it keeps very well and had a distinctly different flavor and texture. This is a favorite family recipe of the Herald Society editor.

Churches Grace Greeting Cards

As jubilant bells ring out the good news of Christmas, churches of this community stand as symbols of the true spirit of the season.

Landmarks in the history of Christendom, these churches are the living center of current activities, especially at Christmas, when choral programs, pageants and other special services express holiday joy.

Across the country and in other lands, soaring steeples and ringing bells beckon worshippers to "Come to Church on Christmas."

Small wonder, then, that churches are a favorite subject for Christmas greeting cards. This year, the 95th anniversary of Christmas cards in the United States, is no exception.

A look into the past shows three well-known churches which were favorite Christmas card features. The Little Church around the Corner and Trinity Church, both in New York City and Westminster Abbey in London are pictured on cards dated around 1925 and now in the Norcross historical collection.

The oldest of these church buildings is Westminster Abbey, a national shrine and the Mother Church of the Commonwealth of Great Britain.

In 1966 the Abbey celebrated its 900th anniversary, and thousands of people from all over the world visited the church where both commoners and royalty have worshipped for centuries.

In commemoration of the event, Westminster underwent a 10-year program of cleaning and repairs that cost $1,120,000.

It was on Christmas day that William the Conqueror was crowned at Westminster, and buried there are Newton, Darwin, Keats, Tennyson, Browning and royal personages such as Queen Elizabeth I and her rival for the throne, Mary Queen of Scots. Richard II, Henry VII and St. Edward, whose shrine is the most sacred spot in the Abbey.

In September 1965, a tablet was added in memory of Winston Churchill.

Mistletoe Long Banned By Church

Mistletoe, said to hold a license for kissing, was renowned in ancient times for many mystical powers. Because of its pagan associations, it was long forbidden in churches.

A German legend held that, if a sprig of mistletoe was carried into an old house, the ghosts of the house would appear and answer questions.

There is no certainty when Christmas was observed first in the New World. Possibly by St. Brendan of Ireland and companions to whom a westward voyage to (presumably) Mexico was attributed in Middle Age minstrelsy throughout Europe. Or it may have been introduced by Norsemen from Greenland and Iceland in 10th and 11th centuries.

CHRISTMAS TREE FOR ALL OF US — A polarizing filter on the camera lens makes streaks of light from lights on the national Christmas tree on the ellipse behind the White House. Smaller trees represent states in the Pageant of Peace display.

Modernistic Yule Trees 'Reversions'

The most 'modernistic' tree substitutes in shop windows, advertisements, or homes this holiday are kinds of reversions to the Yule-trow of centuries ago.

Yule-trow? An old definition is: "A framework of tree-like form upon the leve arms of which candles were burned and placed at Christmas celebrations, especially in churches of England from circa 1410.

"The Moravians also used a similar device. This, coupled with the Norsemen's celebration of the return of the sun involving cut evergreen trees, resulted in the Christmas tree as we know it today."

That last sentence is questionable. Decoration of trees at the solstice was a well-established custom among pagans long before the date mentioned above. The Yule-trow could have been a purposeful discountenance by church authorities of remaining adherence to the pagan tree reverence. Also a rational discouragement of the wasting of small trees in a time when timber supply was far more essential to livelihood than today.

Festive decoration of green trees at the turn of the year was as prevalent in the Near East as in European civilizations prior to the Christian eras.

In Near East, as in Northern Europe, the favored trimmings were dried fruits, cakes, and other sweetmeats. The enormous variety of these is indicated in a stimulating new reference, "Festive Recipes and Festive Menus," by Sula Benet (published by Abelard-Schuman). Naturally, surprise kinds of gifts were on trows for young children.

While candles were frowned upon in homes because of the fire hazard, substitutes of fine-spun or moulded glass figures in various shapes reflected gleams from fireplaces colorfully.

The trow had its geometrical equivalent in ancient Egypt, where green date palms were taken indoors during winter solstice festivities, as symbols of rebirth again of life in the dying months of a year.

CANTON, Ill. (AP) — Mrs. Marion Tarr, who specializes in group piano teaching, has adopted the electronic piano as a teaching tool.

"Electronic pianos definitely are not designed to take the place of conventional pianos," Mrs. Tarr said. "They are used as an aid to group teaching and the studio piano is also used by each student during every lesson."

Marvin Glass Is Santa's Helper

CHICAGO (AP) — When Santa Claus comes to town, Marvin Glass, the leading toy designer, is riding close behind. Glass, who heads his own firm of toy designers for the $3.2 billion industry, creates about 10 per cent of all the toys on the market.

He maintains a large staff of artists, engineers, scientists and skilled technicians to develop his ideas.

Glass said speed and novelty, which economists claim are the two factors chiefly responsible for the rapid changes in today's society, are best demonstrated in the toy industry where imagination knows no limits and competition is very great.

Stock Course Set For Prisoners

CHICAGO (AP) — Ira Distenfield, a young stockbroker trainee, has convinced his stock brokerage firm and Illinois state officials that a course in stocks and bonds would be useful for prisoners.

Distenfield said he will teach a six-week course to Stateville prisoners at Joliet. The course will be held two hours a day, two days a week.

"We believe the interest is there, and, if everything works out, we hope to make it a continuing course," he said.

First known seasonal greetings were New Year felicitations printed from woodblocks in 15th century Germany.

The earliest reference to Feast of Nativity is in the archives of St. Clement I, Pope 88-97 A.D. Observances took place in different seasons among peoples during the 2nd centuries before S. Julius I, Pope 337-352 A.D. decreed Dec. 25 was the most correct date of the Nativity. Carpet Worker Foils Robbery

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A man with a chrome-plated .38-caliber revolver tried to hold up Leo Lubjic, 37, as he was delivering a carpet to a Quincy Avenue residence Sunday.

Lubjic, a Yugoslavian immigrant who owns a carpet store, scuffled with the man, took the gun by the barrel and broke the barrel off by smashing the weapon against a wall. The man fled, but was arrested.

"I was thinking of Christmas and my family and a funeral for them instead of gifts and I said to myself, 'Nothing doing. I don't want to be dead,'" Lubjic said. "God gave me the power to pull that gun from his hand and break it. I leave Yugoslavia to escape the Communists to get killed here? Nothing doing."

Manger Is Theme Of Latin Yule

Though Santa and gaily decked trees often appear nowadays in Central and South America, Christmas is traditionally a time for religious observances.

Mass, at midnight on Christmas Eve or early Christmas day, forms the heart of the holiday in Latin America, and the creche or manger scene marks the season throughout churches and homes, say the editors of the Encyclopedia Americana.

Bountiful feasts, processions and other special events may provide a festive note, but custom says that gift-giving time is "Three Kings' Day" — Twelfth Night, January 6th, when the Wise Men brought their gifts to Jesus.

Children put their shoes under the bed or in the window, hoping to have them filled with toys and gifts. Water and hay are set out for the Three Kings' horses or camels.

While many Latin American countries share these traditions and celebrate Christmas in similar ways, each country also has its own special festivities.

Hallaca, a native Venezuelan dish, is an awaited delicacy during the Christmas season. It is made of corn meal with pork and chicken stuffing and numerous other ingredients, and then wrapped in plantain leaves to form a type of pie.

It's a mid-summer Christmas in Argentina and the traditional feast is generally served outdoors. Rosebuds and jasmine deck the table, which has as edible centerpiece a whole roast suckling pig.

Brazilian lore and legend says that Three King's Day is a time for poetry contests. Verses accompanied by guitars are featured.

Unique among Christmas customs in Chile is a grand fiesta that centers around horse racing.

People parade in masquerade on Christmas Eve in Colombia. Each masquerader tries to guess the identity of others. When someone guesses correctly, he can claim a small gift from the person who was "unmasked."

In the island country of Costa Rica, "portals" are set up in homes. These are elaborate Nativity scenes sometimes filling an entire room.

An ancient custom in Guatemala is to "light the road to Bethlehem" by placing lanterns in windows and doorways for nine nights before Christmas.
